The Florists' Mutual Casualty Association, the new coöperative insurance association launched recently, is meeting with great success, according to Herman Junge. Applications for the amount of insurance necessary to incorporate the association have been received, Mr. Junge says. The association is continuing its campaign for membership.

The Pahud Floral Co. has an excellent lot of cyclamens coming on for the holidays.

Joseph Mock is spending his vacation on an automobile trip in Wisconsin.

The Circle Flower Store provided the decorations for the banquet celebrating the winning of the pennant in the American Association by the Indianapolis club.

Baur & Steinkamp have had an excellent business in carnation plants and cuttings this season. They report that shipments have been extraordinarily heavy.

Albert Pittet will leave soon for Los Angeles, where he expects to go into the business of growing sweet pea seeds on a large scale.

Edwin M. Nelson left September 21 for Camp Taylor, near Louisville, where he will train for service with the army.

BALTIMORE.

Jewish New Year Brings Business.

The Jewish New Year last week gave some of the stores their first rush of the season. This holiday is fast becoming a flower day to be reckoned with, as in the better Jewish districts more flowers are being used each year. At Robert L. Graham's North Avenue store, for instance, there were two days that would have compared favorably with Christmas or Easter. This year the holiday fell on Monday, September 17, and on the preceding Saturday, until 11 o'clock at night, the whole Graham staff was busy selling and delivering plants, such as palms, ferns, pepper plants and Jerusalem cherries. Robert, Jr., told me the one great drawback was that there were no good blooming plants to be had at this season, and blooming plants were one of the items for which the call was heavy. Monday was cut flower day and a great many roses were used, together with dahlias, asters and gladioli. At the Graham establishment baskets of growing plants, such as are used at Easter, were prepared, and sold well.

Saturday afternoon I was at the Leo Niessen Co. place and Mr. McKissick told me they had so many orders that they were having the stock shipped in on Sunday, so they could get it in water and give it a chance to harden and be ready for the first call Monday morning.

Some of the stores which I visited did not seem to know anything about this holiday, and when asked if there were many New Year orders, the reply would sometimes be: "We have a few orders, but nothing to amount to anything." Other stores, even with extra help, had their hands full. In these days when one hears so much about publicity and advertising campaigns, it seems to me there is no better day to start than on the Jewish New Year. This is business which, with little effort on the part of the store people, can be increased, and at a season when everything is plentiful. Anyone who watched these people buying flowers could not help but realize that they are people who can be educated to be good flower customers. To start with, they want the best; they are quick to see the quality in an article, and, in most cases, being good business people, they are reasonable and not hard to convince that to produce a good article costs more than to produce an inferior one. I do not think there is a holiday in the year, outside of Christmas and Easter, that has the possibilities of the Jewish New Year to be worked into a big flower day.

Why Not Advertise the Day?

However, the holiday is past for this year, with some stores doing a rushing business and others doing nothing. There is nothing that demonstrates, to my mind, the need of team work along the lines of publicity more than this. The florists should forget trade jealousies and get together, and the Florists' Club would be the proper medium through which to do this. Do not think of yourself as an individual, but boost the trade with the whole city in view. To illustrate, say that prior to the Jewish New Year a contract had been made with the company having charge of the street car advertisements to carry a card in each car, with the inscription, "Send a floral New Year gift," advertising no one in particular. Let this be the club's business, and the grower and retailer alike will benefit by it. Get the day once established as a flower day, and it will last. There are plenty of other ways, but the most important thing, in my estimation, is coöperation. Try to imagine the result of a regiment advancing against the enemy with every man on his own "hook," instead of working under the prearranged plan of an officer. Let the florists get together and work under the guidance of a publicity expert, and I am sure the results to the whole trade will more than justify the expense.

Various Notes.

Robert L. Graham, Jr., has been drafted and has passed the physical examination.

A visit to the wholesale houses last week showed business on the mend. At the S. S. Pennock Co. store Mr. Perry was saying good-bye to his son, Ward, who is off to Anniston with the field artillery. Mr. Perry said that business had picked up during the week, that there was plenty of stock and that prices were holding good.

At the Leo Niessen Co. store Mr. McKissick said that business had been fine all the week, and that if there had been more really first-class stock there would have been no trouble moving it. Tate.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business is quiet, with a steady supply of stock arriving daily. Chrysanthemums have not yet appeared, but will be with us soon. Gladioli are practically gone and the asters are rapidly waning. Dahlias, in especially good varieties, are now cutting a figure in the market. Valley is being offered regularly, with the demand about equal to the supply. Roses are of excellent substance and color, with cuts slightly decreased. American Beauties and Russells are especially good at present and continue popular. There is a large call for all outdoor flowers having color suggestive of the autumn, and stock of this kind is abundant.

In the retail branch trade is normal, and to stimulate business several stores held special sales of roses with gratifying results. Dahlias, tritomas, hydrangeas and helianthus are sought for window trimmings.

Various Notes.

A leading topic of conversation among retail florists is the F. T. D. meeting to be held in Detroit, October 2 and 3, and prospects point to a goodly attendance of Cleveland florists.

The first fall meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the rooms in the Hollenden hotel, October 1. Let everybody turn out and give the new administration a rousing send-off.

M. A. Vinson, manager of the Cleveland flower show, announces that the November show will be staged in the Grays armory instead of at the Statler hotel, as previously planned. This gives 5,000 feet of additional floor space, together with twenty spaces along the walls, which are to be sold to commercial growers for display purposes.

Charles N. Cotter, of the Lakeview Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., called on friends here last week. Mr. Cotter reports business as satisfactory, and is most optimistic as to his firm's prospects for the coming year.

All retailers in Cleveland are urged to attend the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit, October 2 and 3, and it is suggested that they plan to attend the club meeting and then go direct to the D. & C. boat, after the meeting. It is expected that Cleveland will be well represented at Detroit. J. McL.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

William Mansfield, of Lockport, N. Y., called attention to the vacant chair in which his father sat when making cuttings, and memory brought back many years of pleasant visitations, when the subject of heating was threshed out. Our deceased friend was a boiler machinist by trade, and at every convention expounded his theory, which, to his hearers, while highly interesting, was rather oppressive at that heated season. He left, among many good things, a seedling scarlet geranium of exceptional merit, of which sufficient stock has been worked up for distribution next year.

Charles Sandiford, of Buffalo, who for many years grew the finest strain of cyclamens in the Bison City as a private grower, says there is quite a different feeling when doing it commercially—and he knows how.

Manager Wallace Eiss, of the William Kasting Co., Buffalo, expressed the opinion that, judging from his experience in the Florists' Club, it is essential to have a social gathering or offer some attraction to hold the crowd. Several of the members whom he had hoped to meet a second time while at the convention had left early. Since his return business has steadily improved, shipments arriving keeping up with the output. OBITUARY

Walter W. Erdman.

W. W. Erdman, a well known grower of Baltimore, Md., died September 24 of meningitis, at the age of 50. Mr. Erdman served his apprenticeship with the late John Donn, of Baltimore, afterward going with the Strauss Co., of Washington, D. C., and other large concerns specializing in roses. About seven years ago he returned to Baltimore and took a position as foreman of the Lehr Bros. range. In May of this year he formed a partnership with W. A. Burnett, the firm acquiring the Rider range in Anne Arundel county and operating it under the name of Erdman & Burnett.

The decedent is survived by a wife and three children. P. C. Erdman and Howard C. Erdman, assistant superintendent of Greenmount cemetery, are brothers. The funeral was held September 24, with interment in Landon Park cemetery. Tate.

F. C. Bartels.

The immortal bard knew little, if anything, of commercial floriculture, but when he said that "death loves a shining mark," he spoke a truth having peculiar application to that particular pursuit.

Ferdinand Charles Bartels, whose violent death at the hands of an assassin was recorded in The Review for September 20, was born at Lubeck, Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, September 14, 1855, and had just passed his sixty-second milestone when he was killed by a burglar in his home at Rocky River, O., September 15, 1917.

After passing through the schools of his native town, he entered the navy, serving part of the time upon the same vessel with the present Kaiser. His term of naval apprenticeship over, he became attached to the botanic gardens of Hamburg, and after spending three years there under the tutorship of the celebrated Professor Reichsbach, he came to the United States in 1879, settling in Long Island, N. Y. In 1881 he came to Cleveland—no, not by Pullman—where virtually the whole of his career in America was destined to be spent. He was first with Robert Hughes, the venerable Carnegie avenue florist, next going with W. J. Gordon.

He entered the employ of J. M. Gasser in 1884 as rose grower, at the greenhouses upon the site of the present range on Wooster road, where thirty-three years later he was to meet with such a cruel and tragic death. Except for short intervals, spent at the World's Fair with John Thorpe, in 1893; with Mendenhall's, Minneapolis; with G. L. Huscroft, Steubenville, O., and a period of seven years—1906-13—at the Essex Greenhouses, North Olmstead, O., in business for himself, the entire time was spent with the J. M. Gasser Co. His services played an important part in the development of that pioneer concern, for the greater part the history of the place being the history of the man.

He married Anna Maria Fox, a sister of Mrs. J. M. Gasser, in 1886, who, with two married daughters, Mrs. Bernard M. Kimball and Mrs. James Winton, both of Cleveland, and a brother, William Bartels, of Hamburg, Germany, survives him. The funeral services, attended by a large body of florists, were held at the home, with interment at Lakeview cemetery, East Cleveland.

F. C. Bartels was an ex-president of the Cleveland Florists' Club and a member of the Society of American Florists. He was the type of man whom the profession can ill afford to lose. He loved his chosen lifework; it was his whole existence. By combining close study and travel with tireless application, he became a recognized authority upon matters floricultural. Always ready to adopt new methods, always on the lookout for merit in new creations, and never satisfied with mediocrity in quality, those that knew him will forever associate his name with excellence.

Edwin M. Haven.

Edwin M. Haven, of the Haven Seed Co., Santa Ana, Cal., died at his home near that city September 15, after a prolonged illness from pernicious anæmia.

Mr. Haven was born at North Eaton, O., July 11, 1855, being the eldest of a family of four brothers. Eight years later he removed with his parents to Bloomington, Mich., where all of his earlier life was spent.

In 1875 he began the business of seed growing and continued that business in

F. C. Bartels.

Bloomington until 1891, when he removed to South Haven, Mich. In 1893 the business was incorporated under the name of the Haven Seed Co. and was conducted under Mr. Haven's management until 1903, when he, with his family, removed to California in order to carry on the seed growing operations under more favorable climatic conditions.

For many years the activities of the company have been mainly devoted to growing tomatoes for seed, and Mr. Haven did much thorough work in the breeding of tomatoes, devoting his attention to the perfecting of stocks rather than to the introduction of new varieties.

Edwin M. Haven.

The business is incorporated and will be continued as heretofore under the management of his sons, A. B. Haven being president, and L. S. Haven secretary of the corporation.

Mrs. Haven, three sons and three daughters survive.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Many florists are beginning to realize how great an aid the F. T. D. is to their business, especially at this time, when express deliveries are so uncertain. One of the leading florists of Columbus is telegraphing all of his out-of-town orders, and he also notices that other florists are beginning to realize that life is too short to ship flowers a long distance, when there is a reliable florist at the other end to deliver fresh flowers to the customers on receipt of a telegraphic order. Try this the next time you have an out-of-town order for flowers.

The Block Floral Co., of Columbus, which takes care of the flower lovers at the Ohio State University, is again doing business, having started with the beginning of the school year.

Stuhldreher Bros., of Mansfield, O., will soon be ready with some fine chrysanthemums. They state that if business in the future is as good as in the past, they will have a banner season.

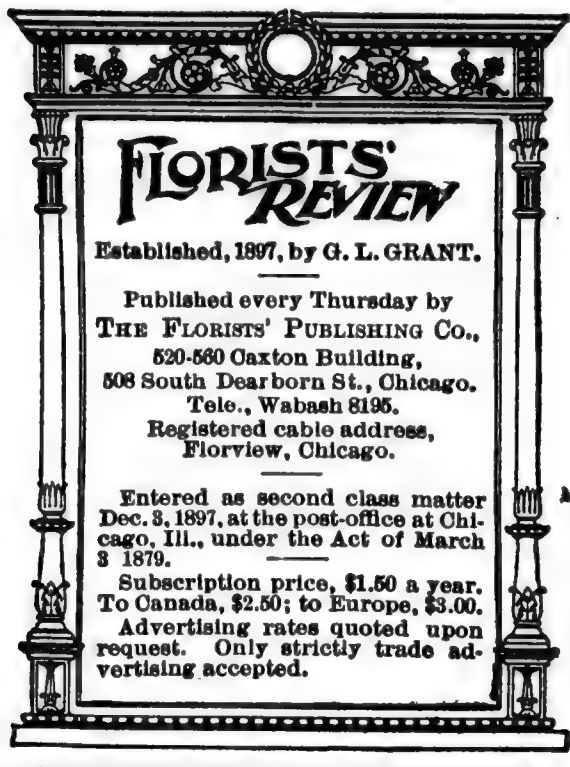

Wilson's Flower Shop, of Painesville, O., will soon be settled at the new location. When the present decorative schemes are completely carried out, the store will be one of Ohio's finest.

The beautiful new store of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., on Broad street, Columbus, was a blaze of color last week, being beautifully decorated with seasonable outdoor flowers.

John Colton, at East Liverpool, O., has several thousands of mums coming along in great shape.

The Mount Gilead Floral Co., of Mount Gilead, O., can show the visitor a truly grand sight—that is, if the visitor likes good things to eat. One side of a greenhouse is occupied by ripening Honey Dew melons. If the writer were not homeless, forever traveling from place to place, Mr. Munk might find here a suggestion as to where a case of the fruit might be sent. Alas, that it cannot be!

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE sale of such great numbers of baskets and flower bowls has had an appreciable effect in reducing the number of calls for the refilling of fern dishes. But, by the same token, it has increased the calls for cut flowers for table use.

It is safe advice to urge every man responsible for the heating of a greenhouse to get in all the coal he can now. Statistically, car shortage has been reduced, but practically the movement of freight never was slower than now. It is sure to be worse in the winter.

THE reports are generally to the effect that more flowers are being sent to funerals than in any previous year. The rich are sending less elaborate wreaths, perhaps, but the working classes are ordering more pillows than in the days when earnings were lower.

How generally the Help and For Sale columns of The Review are watched is shown by the fact that a recent blind ad brought an advertiser over sixty answers from readers interested in his proposition, while a particularly attractive Help Wanted ad brought nearly 100 applications for the job.

THE classified ads in The Review are an excellent index to trade conditions. That the returns to advertisers seem this season rather better than in any previous autumn might not mean much if it were not for the fact that there also are about fifteen per cent more classified ads than at this time last year. Evidently there are considerably more both of buyers and sellers.

As handsome a vase of asters as ever has decorated the Editor's desk has come from Frank Winans, Petoskey, Mich., where garden flowers have not yet been attacked by frost.

WE all expect too much of September; the business of the month, while better than in midsummer, rarely comes up to anticipations. We must wait for the first frosts, or at least for the autumnal equinox, as ours distinctly is a business in which weather is the most important influential factor.

TWO GOOD RULES.

There is nothing that so hurts a business man's credit as carelessness about paying small bills; neither is there anything more exasperating to a business man than to have to send a statement of a small account several times. Neglect to pay many times is taken as an indication of inability to pay; inability to collect promptly takes the profits from small sales. Pay small bills promptly and ask prompt payment of small bills are two good rules for any florist to follow.

CREDITS AND COLLECTIONS.

The discussion of credits which is going on in the trade almost invariably refers to the credit of florists, not the credit florists extend to the public. But in either case credits are entirely a personal matter. It is up to some individual to decide.

What the average florist wants of a credit agency, whether he is considering the case of a florist or an outsider, is an opinion as to whether or not the bill will be paid; information as to the buyer's financial standing is not enough, for the florist does not seem to know how to interpret it.

Of all the florists who sell to the trade, the man who has devoted more time and attention than any other of the writer's acquaintances to investigating the standing of new customers practically always ended by extending the credit. It was not because he always found his information satisfactory, but because he did not know how to interpret the information, or because he lacked that quality of character necessary for the rejection of business that held even a remote promise of profit.

What florists need is not so much additional credit information as it is a stiffening of the backbone. The credit information now available to the trade is far from complete and none too exact, but there are plenty of men with nothing whatever to recommend them for credit who, nevertheless, have no trouble in getting all they want. Someone always is ready to take a chance.

What the trade really wants is a collections bureau able to repair the mistakes of the individual.

THE GUN FOR THE GAME.

Every business man knows that modern business divides itself into specialized and more or less closely knit and organized groups.

He knows that his business is centered in one or more of these groups—every business is.

With progress in that group his business progresses. With stagnation there his business stands still.

He knows that to the extent to which he gains the good will of the men in the group in which he does business, his business prospers.

Now, in every one of these groups there is at least one efficient, responsible business paper—a medium that reflects and crystallizes the public opinion of that group. The worthy trade paper is depended upon not only by the "captains" of the field it represents, but also by the rank and file.

The attitude of the readers toward The Review is one of intimate connection, because The Review is literally made by the men who read it. It is the clearing house for the business it serves.

Obviously, advertising in The Review is intensive advertising. Here, for instance, are two letters in support of the statement:

Our classified advertisement of bulbs in The Review has brought wonderful results—we were entirely sold out after the first insertion. Buyers in person, telegrams and letters were in evidence from almost every section of the country, and we are still returning checks in almost every mail. Of course, we realize the shortage of importations has its effect, but, nevertheless, the returns we received were indicative of the value of the advertisement.—Hoffmann's Dutch Bulb House, Baraboo, Wis., September 7, 1917.

Please take out my snapdragon ad in The Review. I am sold out; in fact, I had to return some checks today.—Clarence Alwine, Alden, Pa., September 10, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The condition of the wholesale cut flower market shows gratifying improvement, with stock of all kinds cleaning up well each day. Although September 20 and 21 could only be called fair days, so far as sales were concerned, a noticeable increase in demand occurred September 22, which became even more brisk the first days of the present week. The Hebrew holiday, September 26, probably accounts for a portion of this increased activity, especially in the demand for red stock of all kinds, while many funerals have also made for a stronger call.

A decided shortening of supply has also occurred and in some lines it is often found difficult to fill orders. In roses this is especially true of American Beauty and Russell, while orchids and valley also are on the short side.

A ready market is found for all American Beauties which arrive, and no salesmanship is required to secure satisfactory prices. Russell, as before mentioned, is scarce and retains its place as the leading seller. The best grade now brings $3 per dozen. There is also a noticeable shortage of good red roses, which are also in active demand. Ophelia appears to be picking up, but does not yet sell as well as the darker varieties.

Carnations are in active demand. Though not noteworthy as yet, the quality steadily is improving and some good stock is arriving, not enough, however, to satisfy the brisk call.

The season for gladioli is nearing its conclusion. Not much stock is arriving and the demand also has fallen off. Easter lilies are in sufficient supply. Orchids, though still scarce, are in a little larger supply. Asters are arriving in diminished quantities. Their season is almost over. Some good long-stemmed rubrum lilies are coming in, and chrysanthemums arrive in slightly increased quantities and are in good demand. White mums, however, are scarce and orders for them often are found difficult or impossible to fill. The first pompons of the season have made their appearance. There were a few single violets September 26. Pansies still come in. A small supply of California poppies is available. Sweet peas have passed out. There are plenty of water lilies, the fancy colored sorts still selling well. Lyatris, Tritoma Pfitzeri and double helianthus are popular for windows and baskets.

The city retail business is picking up, there having been a distinct gain in activity since September 21, but the buyers who visit the market are loth to pay the better prices now asked by wide-awake wholesalers, especially for roses and particularly for Russell. The retailers, or at least the ones who make the effort, are getting better prices this season than last, but they are not in a hurry to share the better prices with the wholesalers as long as market conditions make it possible to get what they want at summer values.

At the Oechslin Range.

Frank Oechslin has increased his stock of cyclamens, rhododendrons and heather to take the place of azaleas, which will undoubtedly be scarce if there are any at all for the holiday sales. These pot plants will be brought along so that they will be at their best for Christmas. Mr. Oechslin considers himself fortunate in having a considerable stock of palms, which, it is expected, will be in short supply this season. Potted mum plants here are beginning to show bud and will be ready in a few weeks. All stock is in excellent condition and Mr. Oechslin says business is beginning to show the effects of the opening of the autumn season.

The coal supply at the Oechslin establishment is complete. Mr. Oechslin put in the usual quantities of Pocahontas and Illinois coal. He says he probably paid a slightly higher price than he would if he had waited until prices had been fixed by the government, but he has the satisfaction of knowing that no matter how short is the supply of fuel, his wants are provided for.

Various Notes.

Many Chicago florists have adopted the F. T. D. idea for small local sales. For example, if a bouquet is ordered of a west side florist to be delivered to a south side address, the order will be telephoned to a florist in that locality. When the occasion arises, the process will be reversed, thereby saving the cost of delivery, which would eat up the profit on orders of $1 and $2.

A leisure afternoon before the first frost cannot be better spent than in a visit to Mt. Greenwood cemetery, where the gardening is an inspiration for every florist. The cemetery never looked better than it does this week. This year the big bed of cannas in the beautiful entrance planting is Yellow King Humbert. It is a fine sight, but C. W. Johnson says it is not so well liked in that spot as is the red flower and bronze foliage of King Humbert, which has been used heretofore.

Max Weiss was drafted and the store closed by Weiss Bros.

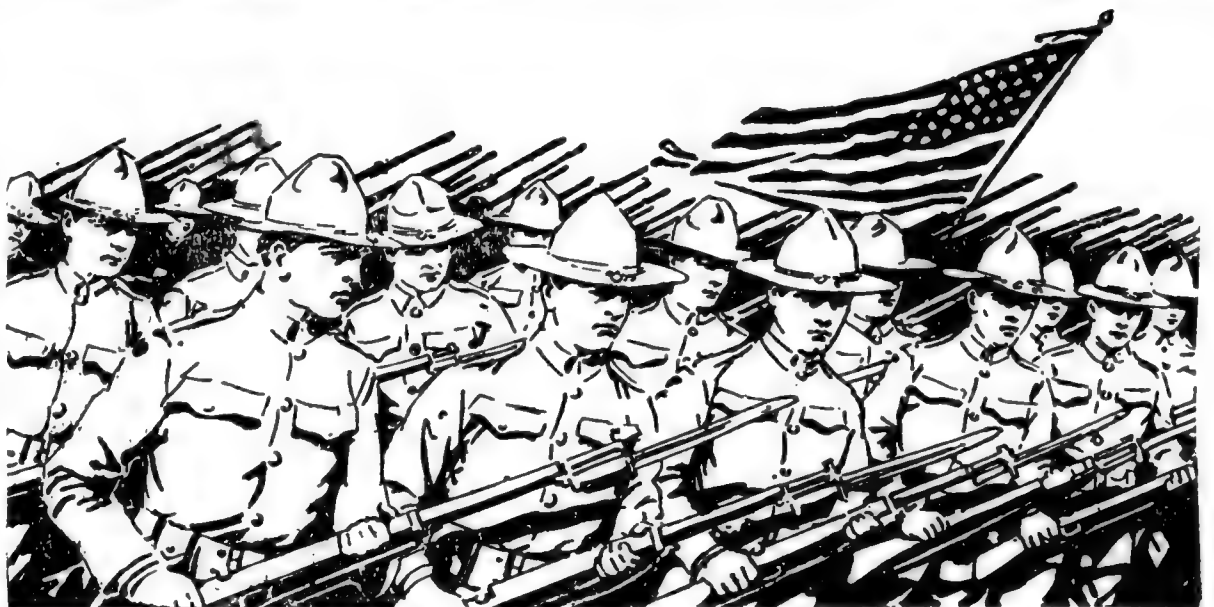

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has over 12,000 chrysanthemum pot plants, one of the finest lots the company has ever had, according to August Poehlmann. Also, 75,000 cyclamens will be ready for the Thanksgiving and Christmas trade.

Bruno Rautensperger, a florist living at 419 East Forty-second street, was arrested last week on complaint of Edward A. Mr. Rautensperger's attorney argued the case was a neighborhood quarrel, but his client was held in $1,000 bonds.

country. Frank Jaral has joined the sales force of Zech & Mann.

What probably was the first shipment of violets to reach the market this season was received last week by the A. L. Randall Co. The shipper was L. Gilbert, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

With many conventions and flower shows scheduled, October commences as a regular globe-trotting trip for Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co. During the first week he will attend the F. T. D. as well as the Vegetable Growers' convention.

Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., is a strong believer in the future of Evelyn Nesbit, the new corsage rose. He says he believes it will replace Baby Doll in many orders this season.

The busy season seems to have opened for the Rapid Wrapper Co. and some large sales are reported, one customer last week placing an order for 16,000 wrappers and 150 pedestals.

Miss Ruth Wattmann, of Bassett & Washburn, has returned from a three weeks' vacation spent at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Visitors.

Joseph H. Hill was up from Richmond to spend Sunday with his father and mother, who are at the Presbyterian hospital, 1753 West Congress street. Mr. Hill is getting along well after his operation and hopes to be able to be up in a wheeled chair before this week is ended. Mrs. Hill is his constant companion. There have been many callers, numerous telephone inquiries, and Room 345 is a bower of flowers.

Eugene Dailedouze and Mrs. Dailedouze, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are making headquarters at Hotel La Salle this week, while they make side trips to points of interest. Sunday night they went to Richmond with Joe Hill, visiting La Fayette on the way back. They are on their way home from a trip to the Pacific coast.

Harry Papworth and J. G. Schattmaier, store man of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., have returned to New Orleans after spending a week in relaxation and in visiting the trade here.

Walter Mott, ambassador and minister plenipotentiary for Benj. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., was here last week.

At Wenona, Ill., William Metzger arose at 3 a. m. September 24, in order to spend the day in Chicago. He has a fine business in plants and cut flowers and is a steady buyer here.

Ed. Dahlgren, foreman for the Kemble-Smith Co., Boone, Ia., is undergoing an operation at the Norwegian-American hospital in Chicago.

The Market.

Business has not been quite so brisk this month as last. Plenty of good stock is on hand. Chrysanthemums are beginning to show up, but gladioli will be gone in a few days, along with asters and other garden flowers.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith was the only florist exhibiting at the fair this year, taking first and second prizes on everything. His exhibits would have merited a goodly number of prizes with stiff competition. He has about one-half of his winter's supply of coal.

Lewis Kunst has put up two new houses this summer. The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. has raised the greenhouses and put steel gutters in place of the old wooden ones.

The Market.

The market would be in good shape were it not for the express trouble. Incoming and outgoing shipments of flowers have been lost through delay; business has declined because of the uncertainty of delivery; and things generally are in a mess. The express companies are making efforts to improve conditions, but the shippers seriously doubt the ability of the companies to handle their business. Please write to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C., asking its aid in giving the express companies the needed cars to handle shipments promptly.

It may seem funny to begin a market report this way, but unless something is done the cut flower and plant industries will receive a severe blow.

The market is moderately supplied with flowers. Dahlias are splendid, the unusually cool, fine weather having been of great assistance to them. Beauties, Russells and the smaller hybrid tea roses are the next most important flowers. Then come asters, with a diminishing number of good and an increasing number of ordinary blooms. Easter lilies are dependable. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have made their appearance; also a few October Frost. Cattleya labiata is slowly coming in. Valley is a little more plentiful. Gardenias have appeared. There are a few tritomas and some tuberoses. Greens are in moderate supply.

An Express Meeting.

A number of leading shippers of plants and flowers met Thursday, September 20, at 2 p. m., at the office of the S. S. Pennock Co., 1620 Ludlow street, to discuss the express problem. The gravity of the situation was fully realized by all present. They talked the matter over thoroughly, without coming to any definite conclusion. Those pres-

Another meeting will be held Monday, October 1, probably at the same time and at the same place.

The Club Contest.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club will be held in Room C, seventh floor of the Parkway building, at 8 p. m.,

Tuesday, October 2. The only contest is for the office of secretary; the president, vice-president and treasurer are unopposed. The withdrawal of David Rust narrows the contest down to two candidates, Robert Kift and Fred Cowperthwaite. The older florists will undoubtedly support Robert Kift, probably to a man. The younger members will rally to the support of Fred Cowperthwaite. It is a clean-cut contest, old methods against new ones. Who will win?

have been obliged to refuse a number of cases of Japanese baskets because of the excessive freight charges. We paid $120 to the Japanese basket makers for the contents of these cases. Ordinarily the freight on them would be less than $60. They were charged against us at eight times this amount. We might have been able to sell these baskets for $300, possibly not so much. It therefore was better for us to lose the first cost of the goods rather than to increase our loss. Formerly we were able to make contracts for the freight; today we must pay whatever is asked or give up the goods.

"European freight charges have also advanced sharply, an advance that is increased by the high U-boat insurance rates. I am afraid there is going to be a serious shortage in florists' supplies before the season is over."

Wyncote.

Joseph Heacock was at Roelofs, Theodore Shober was afield, but the palms, those home-grown palms of Wyncote, were there in force. You would not suppose that the place was not built yesterday; it looks so clean and neat and thrifty. Everything about the greenhouses at Wyncote pleased. The Joseph Heacock Co. does things well; everybody knows that. The houses are well built, the plant is economically heated, the palms are well grown.

There seemed fewer of the specimen kentias than of yore. Perhaps that is just as well, for it is not everybody who can afford a specimen kentia such as they produce at Wyncote. They are magnificent. The medium and smaller-sized kentias are largely represented. So are the ferns. Besides the Boston and Scottii, Cibotium Schiedeii is conspicuous. They are grown on pedestals in great numbers and present a most attractive appearance.

There Were Fifty.

Just a glance at the carnation houses of the Joseph Heacock Co., which are filled with fine plants that are not yet in bloom, before coming to the orchids. There are two ranges, the larger devoted to cattleyas and the smaller filled with cypripediums. In the larger range is one of those model collections of orchids that are a treat to see. The plants are staged with precision and cultivated with rare skill. They presented a sheet of green foliage to the view, except in one spot where there were just fifty fine blooms of Cattleya labiata, to add a Changes in the Wholesale District.

The most important change in the wholesale cut flower district is announced for Monday, October 1, when Stuart H. Miller will enter the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. The Exchange organization will then be composed of William A. Leonard, Jacob M. Deutscher and Stuart H. Miller. This change is made necessary by the temporary retirement of Mr. Deutscher, who has managed the Exchange since its formation, to serve in the selective draft army now organizing at Camp Meade. During his absence Mr. Miller will manage the Exchange. Edward Callahan, formerly with Samuel F. Lilley, will assist Mr. Miller.

Crepe-Wood is Made of Thin Sheets of Wood--Not Paper

CREPE-WOOD IS NOW GREATLY IMPROVED.

By reducing the thickness one-half we accomplish the following:

1. Flexibility increased 500 per cent.
2. Shipping weight reduced one-half.
3. It will take the shape of the pot as pictured below.
4. Cost reduced about one-third and is about the same as so-called water-proof paper.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society Show.

The fall show of the Newport Horticultural Society, held in Convention hall, at the Beach, was fully up to the standard, notwithstanding adverse conditions, the ball on the closing evening attracting a larger crowd than ever before. The net proceeds will be divided equally between the horticultural society in France and the Newport chapter of the American Red Cross. One of the features of the show was the unusually fine collection of foliage plants, the winning group, by Victor May, gardener to E. B. Andrews, being as fine as anything ever seen here, the crotons being especially good. Mr. May also took premier honors in the group of ferns and variegated foliage plants, receiving the Hitchings cup. The Lord & Burnham Co. prize for greenhouse plants, arranged for effect on round table, went to John B. Urquhart, who also took first for adiantums, besides other awards. The Julius Roehrs Co.

NEWARK, N. J.

The quantity of chrysanthemums in the market has increased this week, but it is still too early for a large supply. Asters have passed their prime and are nearing their end. There are some gladioli to be had, but it will not be long before they will have passed for the season. Weddings are more numerous and there has been considerable funeral work. The transient trade has not shown much improvement.

There was a special sale of ferns at Penek's Flower Shop, 637 Broad street, last week.

The Market.

A decided improvement has taken place in cut flower conditions since a week ago, and everything now points to a satisfactory fall and winter business. The supplies of asters continue large and of fine quality, but the blooms are cleaning up much better. Some good indoor-grown flowers have wholesaled for as much as $5 per hundred. Such frosts as we have had do not seem to have injured asters. Many late gladioli still arrive, but the season for these will soon end. Roses are in heavy supply, but are cleaning up much better, at improved prices. Ophelia remains the best seller. Ward is popular and, being of a much richer color than Sunburst, sells better. Francis Scott Key, Miller, Dark Pink Killarney and Russell are all good. Of newer sorts Prima Donna and Mrs. Hearst are showing up well. There is an increased supply of American Beauties. Best quality flowers sell at $25 per hundred.

Carnations are coming in more freely, and with improved quality prices have made a good advance. Golden Glow is about the only chrysanthemum seen in any quantity, but some Early Snow and Advance are also coming in. A few bunches of single violets appeared this week. Cosmos and calendulas are both quite plentiful. Lilium longiflorum cleans up better, but speciosums are somewhat too abundant. Valley is scarce and good quality stock sells at fancy prices. A few Cattleya labiata have appeared, and yellow oncidiums and Vanda cærulea are seen in small lots. The call for asparagus is improving. The pot plant trade is starting up, and cyclamens, with a few flowers open, are already offered in some of the stores.

Club Meeting.

The opening fall meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, September 18, brought out a good attendance. Financial reports on the June ladies' night and the July picnic were read and approved. A balance of more than $100 remained of the picnic fund. It was voted to appropriate a balance from last winter's banquet to prizes for the great vegetable show to be held October 9 in Horticultural hall. Three new members were elected. James Donald showed some splendid English and American melons and a grand dish of Sutton's Prizewinner runner bean, which was awarded a report of merit. Frederick Cave received the same award for Sutton's Superlative dwarf bean. The Blue Hill Nurseries showed the Chinese anemone, hupehensis.

William H. Elliott was the speaker of the evening and interested his audience for one and three-quarter hours with his lecture on a late transcontinental trip to California. The seedling roses of the E. G. Hill Co. impressed him wonderfully. The establishment of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, Ill.; W. L. Rock and Samuel Murray, at Kansas City, were visited. He was agreeably surprised to find Kansas City so beautiful. The Grand cañon was most graphically described, as was the Yosemite valley and the many charming cities in California. As it was winter when he made his visit, the native flowers, such as lupines, brodiaeas, etc., were beautiful. He remarked that the display of roses at Los Angeles was wonderful, but that the finest flowers seen there came from Salt Lake City. He called at the residence of Luther Burbank at Santa Rosa to pay his respects, but was told that the plant "creator" would not grant any interviews. The vegetation, scenery and people of the Golden State were critically and interestingly discussed, and a rousing vote of thanks was tendered Mr.

Elliott at the close.

Various Notes.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, has a splendid lot of winter-flowering plants in his greenhouses, including cyclamens, primulas, begonias, carried-over azaleas and poinsettias. He is cutting good Golden Glow mums and has a fine lot of late varieties.

The Budlong Rose Co. now receives from 8,000 to 12,000 flowers daily, of the usual high quality. Wards, with 18-inch to 24-inch stems, are noteworthy; also Francis Scott Key, Milady, Double White Killarney, Ophelia and Shawyer. Of the newer sorts, Sunrise is promising. Montrose is coming well, also Prima Donna, and Mrs. Hearst is extra fine. No chrysanthemums are being grown this season.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, is marketing a fine lot of carnations. His houses look exceptionally well. Specially fine are Matchless, Pink Delight, Nancy and Benora, not forgetting the old Queen.

Adolph E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, has been enjoying his vacation touring through Massachusetts in his Overland car. He is sending in good batches of Mrs. Sander marguerites, in which he specializes, and asters.

The Florists' Bowling League hopes to start its season October 3 with eight teams. Of the Coöperative Flower Market team Max Aronson will be manager, Jacob Hirsch, captain. Other members are R. Kopelman, Harry Ronis and Israel Mursky, with Johnson Knight and Harry Flynn as substitutes.

William McFarland, only son of John McFarland, of North Easton, is a member of the army in training at Ayer, Mass., where some 40,000 men are accommodated. Harry A. Benwell, son of Thomas Benwell, representative of A. H. Hews & Co. at the wholesale markets, is at the officers' training camp at Plattsburg. John Elliott, son of William H. Elliott, who has been in charge at Madbury, N. H., has joined the colors. S. Gerard Smith, a popular employee of Carbone's, has joined the English army.

John Barr, of South Natick, has his carnation houses in splendid condition and picks up to 1,500 flowers daily. He is strong on Pink Delight, Matchless, Ward, Nancy and Albert Roper.

Penn had a fine decoration September 22 at Trinity church for the Watson-Pratt nuptials. One of the windows of this concern, filled with Asplenium Nidus-avis in various stages of growth, is most interesting. The blue Salvia farinacea is being given good publicity here.

The Welch Bros. Co. has some remarkably fine greenhouse-grown asters, which realize fancy prices. This concern reports a decided improvement in shipping trade in all kinds of flowers.

A. H. Hews & Co., of North Cambridge, are now using a steam tractor in lieu of horses for plowing up the clay for their flower pots, and find it a wonderful improvement. The pot trade at present is brisk.

Peter Pederzini, of Medfield, opens for business September 29. His carnations and early mums now are flowering freely and he has a nice stock of pot plants. He has a truck for delivery purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Miller are enjoying a fortnight's vacation with friends at Newport, R. I., and Bar Harbor, Me.

William R. Nicholson, of Framingham, is sending in fine Early Snow chrysanthemums and carnations.

Several silver medals, cups and other specials, in addition to cash prizes, will be awarded at the special vegetable show to be held by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Horticultural hall October 9. Robert Cameron, F. E. Palmer and James Wheeler will act as judges. A large and attractive exhibit is assured.

McAlpine Bros., of Exeter, N. H., are shipping unusually good American Beauties, Double White Killarney and Hoo-sier Beauty roses.

At the establishment of D. & E. J. Welch business is reported as decidedly better. The shipping trade has braced up considerably.

Peirce Bros. are cutting good Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Hadley roses.

In addition to the regular fairs, which are always numerous at this season, scores of exhibitions of garden produce are now being held all over the state, in which schools, granges, improvement associations, women's clubs and other bodies are interested. The writer has seen a good number of these displays and can testify to their fine quality. Surely one result of the terrible war will be to give horticulture a great boom.

Recent callers included the veteran Harry A. Barnard, representing the Stuart Low Co., England; David Smith, of Thomas Smith & Sons, of Stranraer, Scotland, who says business with his firm "is not bad at all," and A. E. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J. W. N. C.

stem. Roses are coming in larger quantities and the price has advanced slightly on selected stock. Russells have the call over Beauties. Some excellent Stanley, Hadley and Ophelia roses were seen, while the Killarneys are showing better quality.

Asters are still in abundance and are in good demand at low prices. Dahlias are in heavy supply, with only a fair demand at prices lower than normal. Easter lilies have been in demand, but only a moderate supply has come in. Valley and orchids are scarce, while the call is good. A few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums have been received. Among the daily consignments to the market are gladioli, cosmos, snapdragons, tuberose and cornflowers. Smilax, adiantum and asparagus increased in quantity last week.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its monthly meeting September 20 at Edwin Denker's place in St. Charles, Mo. The members gathered in the wholesale district at noon and were taken to St. Charles by automobiles. At Pattonville the St. Louis machines were met by several automobiles containing county growers, who also attended the meeting.

There were fifty members present when the meeting was called to order by President Bourdet. Chairmen of the various committees reported. The auditing committee reported that an examination has disclosed that the books of the secretary-treasurer were correct. W. C. Smith, chairman of the publicity committee, told of plans his committee had made for fall and winter.

George Waldbart, F. Miller, Fred J. Hermann and Joseph Witek were elected to membership. The application of August Hartmann, of Kirkwood, Mo., was referred to the committee.

J. F. Ammann and J. J. Beneke were appointed as a committee to install the new officers. They are: President, Jules Bourdet; secretary, J. J. Windler; treasurer, William C. Smith; trustee, W. A. Rowe. Vice-president August Hummert was not present and will be installed in office at the next meeting.

President Bourdet called on J. F. Ammann to give a report of the S. A. F. convention at New York. Mr. Ammann responded in fine style, the members being particularly interested in the publicity plan proposed at the convention.

After the meeting the club members were taken on an automobile trip through St. Charles, returning for a tour of Mr. Denker's greenhouse range. A luncheon at Mr. Denker's home followed, after which the club extended a vote of thanks to the host for a delightful day.

The next meeting will be held October 11 at Joseph Hauser's place at Webster Groves, Mo.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular meeting September 17 at the Knights of Columbus hall, on Olive street near Grand avenue. President F. H. Weber says it was the largest meeting the association has yet held, and one of the most interesting. There was considerable discussion of plans for coöperative publicity during the coming season. A number of the retailers announced their intention of going to the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit October 2 and 3. The membership committee has been active and expects to have a number of applications ready for action at the next meeting. The Knights of Columbus hall will be used for the association's meetings during the winter.

Albert P. Scheidegger, chairman of the publicity committee of the County Growers' Association, reports that his committee has raised $300 for publicity purposes. The association will cooperate in this work with the St. Louis Florists' Club, the Retail Florists' Association and the National Flower Show committee.

W. T. Wells has resigned as secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association and President Knapp has appointed L. H. Archias, of the Archias Floral Co., Sedalia, Mo., to the position. Mr. Wells said that his duties with the St. Louis forester's office made it impossible for him to continue to serve the state association.

Miss Edna Albrecht, of the Grimm & Gorly staff, has returned from three weeks' vacation spent at northern resorts.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle met September 12 at the home of Mrs. John L. Koenig on Clarence avenue. There was a large attendance, and all report an enjoyable time. Mrs. Emil Schray will entertain the circle at her home October 10.

The next meeting of the County Growers' Association will be held at the Eleven Mile House October 3. President Rowe says there are important questions to be discussed at the meeting.

Joseph Hauser has begun picking his violet crop. While the first flowers were small, Mr. Hauser says his crop will be large and of good quality.

ing the summer and now presents a most attractive appearance. This store is noted for the excellence of its window displays.

Edward Westmann, manager of Vandervoort's floral department, has the first big wedding decoration of the season this week. The order will run into several hundreds of dollars.

The Shadd Florists' bowling team and the Brix Floral Co. team, leaders in the South End and North End leagues, respectively, are arranging a match to be played soon.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., has returned from an eastern trip. He says that the nurserymen in the east are in excellent shape for the fall season, but that they are hampered by the lack of help, a condition that is prevalent here.

The downtown store of the Mullanphy Florists is undergoing many changes, notable among them being some artistic interior decorations. Martin Seeger, head of the concern, says business is good.

Andrew Meyer, Jr., has his show house on South Jefferson avenue filled with decorative plants. Mr. Meyer reports a splendid business during the summer.

The wholesale houses are preparing for a busy fall season. George H. Angermueller has a large stock of supplies coming in, and the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. last week received a shipment of white wood easels.

Archie Williams, chauffeur for the Schoenle Floral Co. during the last five years, left September 21 to join the new national army. He was among the first drafted.

Marion Uhl Schmidt, manager of Grimm & Gorly's store at East St. Louis, Ill., has made a number of improvements to the place during the summer. Mr. Uhl Schmidt now has a splendidly equipped establishment and looks for a busy season. It is reported in the trade on both sides of the river that Dan Cupid has selected Mr. Uhl Schmidt as a target for his arrows.

The Market.

The supply of stock last week diminished a little, while the demand became more brisk, and at the close of the week there was not nearly enough to go around. The shortage, however, was not so severe as to cause an increase in prices, but it is expected that prices soon will advance to some extent. Some good home-grown carnations and roses are now being received. The gladioli are about through with, and asters and dahlias are the only good outdoor flowers now.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes placed a large decoration at the Emory, Bird & Thayer store for "Old Glory" week, using about 500 plants of all kinds.

The Alpha Floral Co. has its new telephone board in operation and finds it a big saving. Mr. Elberfeld is bringing in many sweet peas, dahlias and gladioli daily from his farm.

The Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that business is good but stock a little short. They are getting better prices, at present at least.

Miss Jennie Murray reports that business is picking up. Funeral work has been good.

T. J. Noll says that business is better both in and out of town and that he looks for a good fall trade.

The amateur flower show at Hotel Muehlebach, September 22, proved a success. There was cut stock there that made the florists and nurserymen open their eyes. The receipts of the show and from the sale of the stock after prizes were awarded went to the Red Cross. Stock that was not sold was donated to the hospitals. W. J. B.

Dayton, O.—C. W. Hoffman has sold his nursery and florists' business to T. Pearson. Included in the sale was the Hoffman home, which is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Pearson. Mr. Pearson will continue to grow stock for the trade.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE market for Paper Whites is stiff.

GEO. C. THOMPSON, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, was a recent visitor in Chicago.

RECENT rains in France, while not causing any material damage to crops, are said to have delayed harvest.

H. A. BARNARD, of Stuart Low & Co., London, England, has arrived at New York for his usual tour of the United States.

NOTICE of the death of Edwin M. Haven, of the Haven Seed Co., Santa Ana, Cal., appears in the obituary column of this issue.

A GOOD crop of commercial Lima beans is expected from southern California, where the acreage was exceptionally heavy this year.

THE government seems to fear a shortage of farm crop seeds next spring and is urging farmers to select and save their own seed from this season's crops.

A. H. SMITH, of the Leonard Seed Co., has returned to Chicago after his trip to the west, where he visited several coast points and took some extended automobile trips.

THE onion sets in the Chicago district are being warehoused in excellent condition. There are not nearly so many empty trays in the fields as was the case a year ago.

CHARLES JOHNSON, American agent for Denaille & Son, Carignan, France, temporarily during the war doing business at La Menitre, has removed from Marietta, Pa., to Cynwyd, Pa.

WEEBER & DON, New York, are going after the private gardener and market gardener trade around Chicago. They have engaged W. J. Smart, who has a car, to canvass that section of the country.

THE wholesale bulb catalogue of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, reached The Review September 21. It features Darwin tulips. In it is a special notice: On account of unusual prevailing conditions, all prices in this catalogue are subject to change without notice.

THE Harvey Seed Co., Buffalo, reported in last week's Gleanings to have "released a few bushels of wax beans at $1 per bushel," has had many requests to "release" a few more; but of course the price was a typographical error, $12 having been the real figure.

A CHICAGO jobber in bulbs reports that the freight from Yokohama now is $50 per ton. He figures this to be equivalent to a little more than $3 per case on giganteums and believes the end is not yet; he looks for this season's imports to cost nearly if not quite $4 per case for transportation.

Koning, exporters of Holland bulbs, last week advised the trade that the steamer Waaldyk of the Holland-America line had already sailed, and that "the S. S. Schiedyk will sail with a cargo of bulbs and peonies." No date was given for the sailing of the latter vessel.

The letter further declares that a cablegram from the "state department at The Hague" assured Americans that "export of nursery stock is permitted. Export of bulbs possible under license."

The government permits no announcement of the movements of vessels, but it is reported in the bulb trade and among forwarding agents that the Schiedyk sailed from Rotterdam September 21 with a cargo principally if not wholly of bulbs. It was reported last week that the Waaldyk was in Halifax, due at New York September 25.

These two boats bring about as many bulbs as came in last year.

PACIFIC COAST SEED NOTES.

The West Coast Seed Growers, Inc., of San Francisco, has been authorized by the California corporation commissioner to issue to the A. Levy & J. Zentner Co., of that city, forty-seven shares of its capital stock, and to W. L. Hoyt, L. M. Spiegel and W. C. Hanley one share each, all to be sold at par, $100 net to the company.

C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco, last week shipped seven carloads of vegetable seeds to New York for re-shipment to France and England. The entire shipment went by express in order to make connections with certain steamers.

The Bertrand Seed Co., a partnership of San Francisco, has been dissolved, John P. Cotella retiring from the firm and August A. Bertrand continuing the business. The business consists of growing and selling seeds.

J. C. Robinson, of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., called on the trade last week.

EARLY MORNING STAR. Deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard, with rich orange pink wings. Under glass it is magnificent. The flowers are large and of best Spencer form and borne in threes and fours in wonderful profusion. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SONG BIRD. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer." The placement of the flowers is splendid for packing and the flowers are borne on long stems in threes and fours. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY MELODY. This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer." The effect is very floriferous. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well-waved blossoms to each stem. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

Yarrowa. Bright rose-pink.....	.65	2.25	8.00

EARLY SNOWFLAKE. This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY HEATHER BELL. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long stout stems and are of beautiful bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SPRING MAID. Light pink on a cream ground. It is a most effective flower and carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

Snapdragon Seed

It is a proved fact that, for profit and easy doing, there is no greenhouse plant that will equal good Snapdragon. They require very little attention and seed sown now will yield continuous blooms from February until July, giving a bumper crop at Memorial, the great special flower day.

Start some seedlings today and be ready to fill all empty space after mums are done. It is far better and cheaper to grow your own plants.

Seeds of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 8 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Yellow, White, Garnet, Light Pink, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 8 for $1.00. A special Pink Mixture, $1.00.

PACKERS' TROUBLES.

The canners have been having their own troubles this season and some of them are of a kind with which seedsmen can sympathize. For instance, last year the Maryland and Delaware packers paid the farmers 15 cents per basket for tomatoes, but this year agreed to pay them 25 cents. The scarcity of tomatoes and the increasing demand for canned goods led to prices being inflated, until in some canneries as high as 75 cents a basket has been paid this year. Many of the growers, unable to resist the temptation, failed to make good their contracts with the canners and sold to the agent paying the highest price.

Evidently the packers are not content to have allowed the farmers to freely lie down on their contracted obligations for acreage, for reports from Delaware indicate that the well known firm of Richardson & Robbins has brought suit against one John P. Grier, a grower of West Dover, Del., to compel him to live up to his contract. This suit, it is said, is but the beginning of many similar actions to be brought against tomato growers, and the seed trade, which has had similar experiences, will watch the outcome with interest.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

W. T. Philipps & Co., Toledo, O., have experienced a good season, cleaning out practically all lines of stock. Local harvestings are better than usual; fine samples of Bloomsdale spinach and clovers were noted. Mrs. Philipps, who has been dangerously ill at the hospital, is gaining in health.

S. M. Isbell & Co., of Jackson, Mich., celebrated, during fair week, the occupancy of their handsome store, which, with its twice double show windows, is in the front rank of modern design. S. E. Beeman, who occupied a desk for many years in the old building, mentioned that the new storehouse soon to be completed will have every convenience for the handling of the large grain crops, which, Manager Luck

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Thomas J. Gray Co., Boston, Mass.—Catalogue of bulbs and roots; sixteen pages and cover. "We have omitted all the illustrations from this catalogue this year," says the company, "not wishing to feature any varieties until we are absolutely sure of receiving them." The fact is also emphasized that, "owing to the unusual market conditions, all prices are subject to change without notice."

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale fall catalogue of bulbs, plants, seeds, tools, fertilizers, insecticides and a general line of florists' supplies; forty-four good-sized pages, in a handsome colored cover. Among the illustrations are three full-page colored pictures, showing specialties in phloxes, peonies and geraniums. Among the plants offered, besides geraniums and hardy perennials, are pot-grown strawberry plants and pot-grown hydrangeas for forcing.

V. Lemoine & Son, Nancy, France.—A closely printed catalogue of greenhouse plants, hardy shrubs, perennials and other herbaceous stock, bulbs and roots; fifty-one pages, besides full-page pictures showing four new plants—a hydrangea, a philadelphus, a clematis and a primula. Apparently the aim has been to compile not a complete list, but a select and up-to-date one, comprising the varieties most recently introduced, especially the Lemoine hybrids.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Thorburn's Bulbs," a well printed, illustrated catalogue, consisting of thirty-six pages and cover. Besides bulbs and roots, it offers seeds, insecticides, fertilizers and sundries. Among the specialties are mixtures of grass seeds for various purposes.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business may be said to have recovered from its summer lethargy, for it is resuming a normal condition. There is no attempt at stiffening prices, and during the present state of affairs this is hardly reasonable. Help is decidedly scarce and almost every material used in the production and sale of flowers has advanced; but flowers are being sold cheaper than they were ten years ago. In this town there is far too much cutthroat competition, and until this is eliminated there will be no bed of lavender for anyone engaged in the flower business.

There is a fair variety of flowers offered. Asters have held sway for some time, but they are now commencing to wane. Gladioli are making fine displays and are largely used. Lilies are plentiful and move well. Carnations are not in good condition and the supply is scant. Roses from outdoors are few, but the indoor stock is plentiful, with a good demand. Centaureas in variety add to the attractive displays in the stores, and some of the late-flowering perennials help the autumn leaves in glowing colorings. There is not much variety in pot plants; aspidistras, palms, ferns and a few premature cyclamens are about the only offerings.

Various Notes.

Earl Poehlmann, of Chicago, who is making a motor trip through the Pacific states, visited the trade recently.

The staff at the Hollywood Gardens has been intensely busy with funeral orders and other work. T. W.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Fashion show week called for a great deal of large, showy stock, and there was enough fine funeral work to keep many busy. Retailers say that their regular patrons are returning and causing more or less the usual demand. The out-of-town shipping is phenomenal for this time of year.

Chrysanthemums now are fine and sell well. Roses are good, but good carnations are scarce. Dahlias make a big showing, as usual, and large bunches of perennial plants help the display. With the coming of C. labiata, orchids are more plentiful, but up to the present there have not been enough for the demand. Valley is extremely scarce. During the present week greens of all kinds have been sold up closely, but this was due to the heavier local demand and may not continue.

"The season just closed has been a most successful one, and we are more than pleased with the results of the advertising we carried in The Review." — Los Robles Nursery, Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 17, 1917.

Various Notes.

Having returned from his vacation, which he took on the installment plan, A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., reports business as being fine. Albert Knopf, his partner, leaves this week for a vacation to be spent on his ranch near Santa Ana.

Miss A. M. Hosp, of Bakersfield, has been a visitor this week. She reports business good.

Charging for boxes and packing has its humorous side as well as the more serious one. Fred Sperry, manager of the L. A. Floral Co., is showing a letter which says: "You have charged for 'P. and D.' on the last two bills, but they have not been in either of the boxes."

Dahlia shows as a means of selling the bulbs have proven a success, and one at the Morris & Snow Seed Co. store on South Main street proved a good drawing card. According to O. M. Morris, Golden West was the variety most in demand, followed closely by Wanamaker and Minnie Bungle. Many of the flowers were exhibited by C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery.

William Clark, who has been connected with the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. for several years, was married September 18 to Miss Olive Bronson. This was on the eve of Mr. Clark's departure for the training camp at American Lake, Wash., as he was included in the first draft from Los Angeles. The nursery business must be a healthful one, for Mr. Clark passed the highest physical examination in the city.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. is holding a dahlia show this week at the big store on Main street, but at the time of writing the staging had only just begun.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The Jewish holidays the first part of the week brought a heavy demand for both cut flowers and potted plants. With some stores the arrival of large numbers of enlisted men also brought a noticeable increase in sales.

The growers have not been so fortunate as the dealers, as the hot weather at the end of last week did much damage to the blooms. As a result first-class flowers have been a little scarce, but are now beginning to come in normal supply. Carnations are still scarce, but growers promise a plentiful supply next week. The demand for these is active, all available carnations being snapped up at $5 per hundred, which would ordinarily be considered an exorbitant price at this time of the year. The rose situation has not improved, the few extremely hot days having done some damage. Violets are still too soft for shipping. In fact, dealers are looking forward to a general scarcity of violets, and to high prices, as the crop is smaller than usual and there are reports of a decided shortage in pickers. Some growers and wholesalers are advocating higher prices in order to permit of better wages and better flowers.

Chrysanthemums also were too soft for shipping, but they are now beginning to reach this market in good quantities, particularly the yellow and white varieties. Pink mums are still scarce, and all offerings are above the normal in price. Orchids are still in short supply, but the growers expect to have an abundance within the next ten days. The sweet pea crop has begun to arrive in good shape. Shipments of asters have practically stopped, the crop being about cleaned out. Valley is scarce and so far is not all that could be desired as to quality, wholesalers in most cases hesitating to accept advance orders for it. Potted plants are scarce, the supply not being up to the demand; and ferns are not as plentiful as could be desired. In general, business for September is larger by a nice margin than that done in August. No flowers are going to the dump, as the demand exceeds the supply. Collections are good.

Various Notes.

Following the dahlia show held earlier in the month at the Palace hotel, the Dahlia Society of California has decided to hold a second show, this time at the St. Francis hotel, September 27, 28 and 29. The dates give an opportunity for the display of the later blooming varieties, as well as a better chance for those who did not secure suitable space at the first show. The committee in charge of the coming show includes the following: Mrs. Jessie

Stock continues scarce, and the little there is does not leave room for much choice. There is no novelty. Auratum lilies are more plentiful, as well as rubrums, but little can be said about their quality. Carnations are only fair. Local roses are still scarce, most of those seen on the market having been shipped in from the south or from east of the mountains. Ophelia roses lead all others, both as shippers and in local sale. Gladioli and asters still form the backbone of the market. Mums are coming in from San Francisco, arriving in good condition. The mums draw a crowd, but it is still a little early in the season for active buying, as the outdoor flowers are still blooming in private grounds, though not in abundance.

The weather is perfect for early fall. Autumn tints prevail, and tinted vine maple is being used to good effect in florists' windows and in interior decorations. The boys in khaki are good customers, and with so many boys away from home it is only to be expected that the telegraph delivery and night letter business will increase during the winter holidays. If florists all over the country would make a special effort to inform the soldier boys with regard to the practicability of distant deliveries, it would be a big boost for the business later on.

Various Notes.

A. Zirkman called on the trade last week. Mr. Zirkman was well pleased with business conditions on the coast.

Mrs. M. E. Hayden, of the Hayden-Watson Co., motored to Mount Tacoma last week with a party of friends.

William Crammatte, of the Home Florists' Co., of Aberdeen, has purchased Mr. Van Slyke's interest in the Van Slyke & Seamons Co. The company will hereafter bear the name of Tacoma Wholesale Floral Co. The company expects to make improvements as soon as practical.

The Hayden-Watson Co. has incorporated under the name of Hayden-Watson Floral Co. It expects to handle a wholesale line of florists' supplies for the convenience of local and coast florists.

been pinched back for October bearing. The blooms find a rather desultory market, sweet peas, asters, gladioli and other such outdoor stock making up the bulk of the retailers' business. Carnations are slowly improving in quality, but, from present appearances, will be rather scarce during the first few weeks after the killing frosts have taken the outside stock.

There is a general scarcity of greens of all kinds, and it soon will be necessary to begin to buy plumosus and adiantum from California. If the California growers would only take lessons in packing for long-distance shipping from some of the Chicago and other eastern wholesalers, it would be of great advantage to them and to their customers.

Various Notes.

F. H. McCormick is shipping in some good roses. As he is practically the only one growing other varieties than Ophelia and Russell, he is finding a ready sale for his cut.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Bright fall weather last week helped business considerably. The Jewish New Year celebration the first of last week created a demand for stock, while many of the department stores had their fall openings, which called for palms and baskets. The supply of flowers consists mainly of asters, zinnias, lilies, gladioli, marigolds and other outdoor stock. Roses are coming in good quality, and carnations have improved. The first yellow pompons are in, while the larger chrysanthemums are coming from California. Japanese anemones, both pink and white, are being used considerably for funeral work. No potted plants have yet reached the market. The supply of ferns is ample and the quality excellent.

Floral Society Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Portland Floral Society was held September 18, more than thirty members being present. Plans to bring the membership up to 100 and a proposal that retailers charge for packing cut flowers for shipment and for making up designs were discussed, some fine exhibits of seasonable flowers were staged and the members enjoyed an old-fashioned baked bean and brown bread spread.

The outcome of the discussion over increasing the membership was that each member present promised to bring at least one applicant to the October meeting. The question of making a charge for packing when flowers are to be shipped by parcel post was referred to the retailers' committee. It was pointed out that the post office ruling that all flowers must be packed in corrugated boxes had increased the cost. There also was considerable discussion on the proposal to charge for making up designs, it being declared that the increased cost of materials heretofore not charged for had made such action necessary. Reports on these subjects will be made at the October meeting.

LIVERPOOL, Eng.

now gives his entire time to the army. Secretary Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, says the matter will be considered further soon.

FRENCH STOCK CAN COME.

A French ministerial order of September 17, reported by the consul general at Paris on the following day, permits the exportation of trees, shrubs and nursery stock to the usual allied and American countries. This order is in derogation of the embargo decree published about August 29.

BIG CROP AIDS NURSERYMEN.

Now that practically definite returns of the farm crops for 1917 have been announced by the government, showing that there has been a record production at record prices, the farmers may be classed with the munitions producers in the point of profiting from the war.

This situation will have a beneficial effect on the nursery trade. At least that is what happened in Canada. Reports from nurserymen there, published in The Review last May, said that the effect of the war in the farming countries had been to put more money in the pockets of the farmers, and the nurserymen felt the effects of this prosperity. The demand for fruit stock increased greatly, one nurseryman estimating that his sales in 1916 increased forty per cent over the year preceding.

Perhaps the fact that the farms of the United States are older and better supplied with orchards than the more recently developed territory in western Canada may militate against such an increase of sales in this country. Nevertheless, unless all signs fail, nurserymen should have prosperous times this fall and next spring.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business continues about normal and the supply of stock equal to the demand. Outdoor flowers have become smaller and poorer in quality. Asters are of good quality, but the supply is too large to be absorbed. The annual Catholic ceremony of "blessing the graves," September 22, gave an outlet to large quantities of outdoor flowers. The supply of roses meets the demand and includes some excellent stock, the foliage being especially clean and perfect. Good Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia, White Killarney, Maryland, Sunburst and Ward roses arrive daily. The prices, however, are low. A few carnations are coming.

Easter lilies are excellent, but do not move rapidly. Calendulas are plentiful. There is a good call for larkspurs, while the supply is limited. Pompons have a good call for basket work. A few chrysanthemums have arrived, but there is little demand for them. Gladioli are plentiful and are chiefly in the darker shades. The quality is poor. A few good sweet peas have arrived and sold well. Greens, with the exception of asparagus, are plentiful.

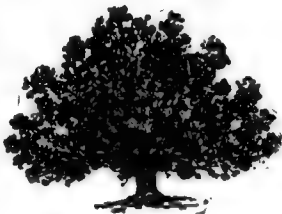

Funeral work fell off considerably last week, but weddings kept several of the stores busy.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors last week were J. H. Gould, of Middleport, N. Y.;

SPIRAEAS

(Van Houttei)

Oak Brand Kind

VAN HOUTTE'S SPIRAEA is, as you know, one of the very choicest members of the Spiraea family.

It is an immense bloomer. Its snow white flowers are borne in plume-shaped clusters all over the plant. Blooms in May and June. Grows 5 to 6 feet in height.

Give your customers a chance to secure their share of it. Sell them the strong rooted, sturdy sure-growth Oak Brand Kind—the kind that will bring them back to you for more next year.

Manuel Oppenhine, of Olean, N. Y.; Mrs. William C. Buechi, of Buffalo, and Hans Moller, of Pittsford, N. Y.

George T. Boucher had the decorations at Bedell's, a new store that opened last week. Palms and ferns and vases of gladioli and American Beauty roses were used.

Chester Ament, of the Ridge road, has been cutting some good Golden Glow chrysanthemums, which have found a ready market. His carnations are coming along in good shape.

H. E. Wilson had two elaborate pieces at the opening of the new Chamber of Commerce building, a gift of George Eastman to the city. One was a Rotary wheel, ordered by the Rochester Rotary Club, and the other a reproduction in flowers of the emblem of the Rochester Ad Club.

George Kramer is at Conesus lake on a fishing trip.

H. E. Rogers, of Spencerport, is rebuilding his greenhouse range, the work being under the supervision of the Lord & Burnham Co. Mr. Rogers expects to have a large supply of stock this winter. He reports that business was good all summer.

Thousands of persons are visiting the aster farm of James Vick's Sons at Ogden, N. Y. The asters in many colors cover several acres and make a magnificent sight. The seed crops from outdoor flowers have been heavy.

George Case has returned from Syracuse.

The New York Florist store in the Reynolds arcade sold thousands of asters Saturday and Sunday for the "blessing of the graves" ceremony.

Frank R. Bohnke says business has been good at his store, he having had considerable funeral work recently.

The triangular corner of the store of Salter Bros. has recently been partitioned off for an office of the telegraph company.

Hugo Teute's house of cyclamens is already contributing a considerable number of flowers.

H. J. H.

Ashtabula, O.—Tong & Weeks experienced a busy summer in funeral work, with a quiet interim just now, previous to a good fall business, it is hoped.

Improper trimming ruined this tree

Trimming, correctly done, is good for trees, good for their appearance and good for their health—in fact, necessary for most trees.

But—incorrectly done, it is positively dangerous, yes ruinous.

The fine old tree in the picture above was “trimmed” by somebody who had little or no conception of the scientific requirements of the work.

Fungus spores entered the unprotected wounds left on the tree and decay set in, rapidly disintegrating the internal cell structure of several of the largest branches until nothing but weak shells remained.

Then the inevitable happened!—a severe storm blew up, the weakened branches gave way, and the tree was ruined.

No matter what the condition of your trees may be—whether they need merely a little scientific trimming or whether they require thorough treatment for decay and disease—it is dangerous to entrust them to anything less than tree surgery of proved worth. Remember, also, that little troubles with trees soon grow into big ones.

The PROVED Tree Surgery

Davey Tree Surgery is proved Tree Surgery; it saves trees without guessing or experiment.

Proved by time—by a record of successful performances spanning a generation.

Proved by the U. S. Government, which, after official investigation, endorsed Davey Tree Surgery as the only Tree Surgery good enough for the trees on the Capitol grounds and elsewhere.

Proved by the success of the Davey concern as an institution, which is today doing a volume of business thirty times greater than the volume of a decade ago.

Proved—and proved best—by Davey clients. Hundreds of estate owners between Kansas City and Boston—prominent men and women whose recommendation you can accept with complete confidence—enthusiastically endorse Davey Tree Surgery.

The Market.

Business is about normal for the time of year. The weather has been warm and consequently the supply of garden flowers still is plentiful. The supply of stock that reaches the market is adequate for the demand, with the exception of American Beauty roses, which are scarce. Carnations are beginning to show signs of quality and quantity.

Bowling Scores.

The Detroit Florists' Club bowling teams met September 20, with the following results:

Albert Pochelon, of the L. Bomb Floral Co., is a busy man these days preparing for the meeting of the F. T. D. to be held in Detroit October 2 and 3.

Visitors last week were George McCallum, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; George Cooke, of Cleveland, O.; Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York, and A. M. Anderson, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. H. T.

Louisville, Ky.—The Jacob Schulz Co., which reports a satisfactory summer, is doing a fine business with maternity flowers arranged in miniature cradles, small Leghorn hats, etc. A window display of these novelties, rearranged daily, has created much new business of apparently permanent character.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

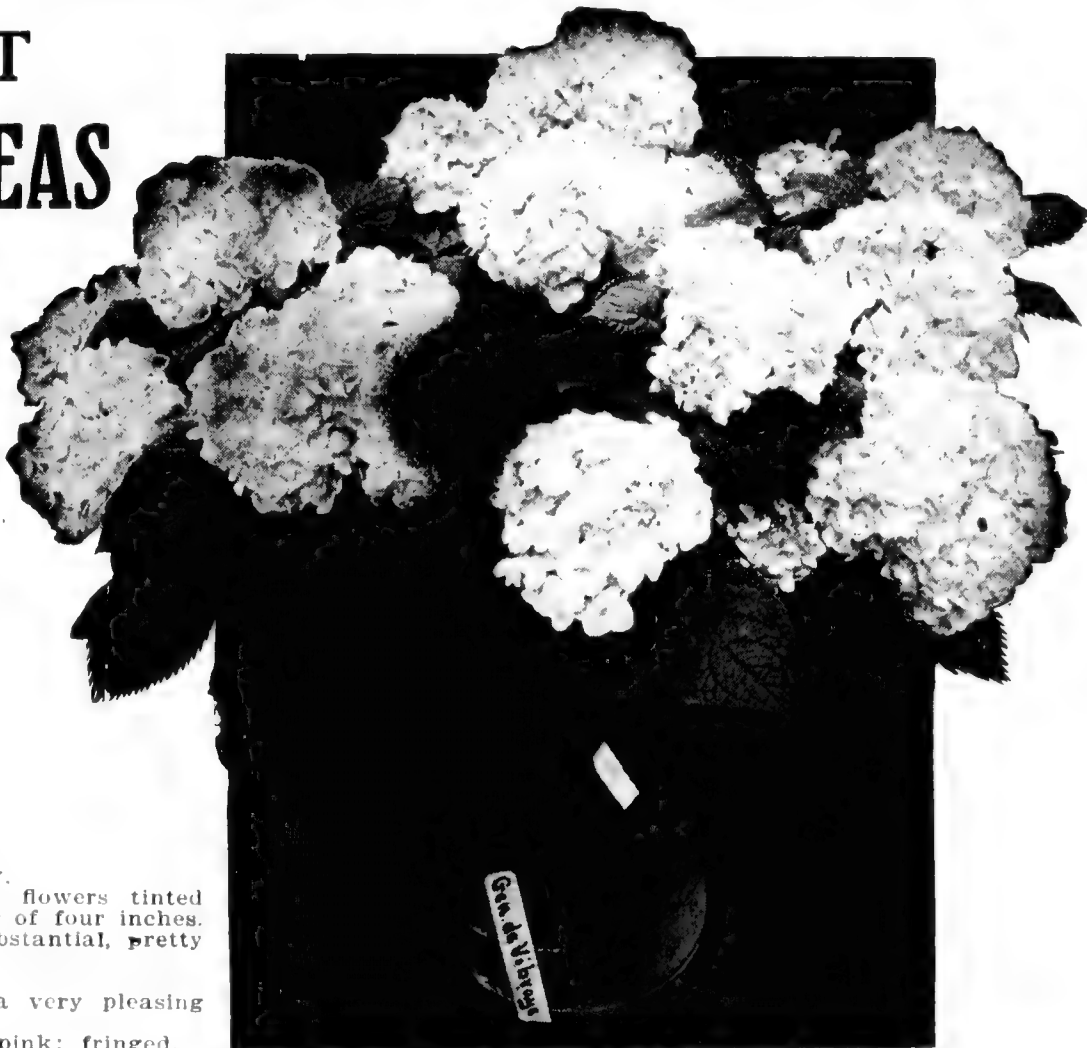

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for either October or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

5-inch pots, at $25.00 per 100;

6-inch pots, at 35.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermet. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
 5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
 5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. R. Jaquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.
 5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of pale-rose flowers. Early and practically everblooming.

Opale. Quite distinct in color. A lively pale rose with attractive pale-green, vigorous foliage.

5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.

Radiant. A reliable and popular carmine-rose.

Souv. de Lieut. Chauré. Immense heads of bright rose-carmine, flowers on bold upright stems.

Souv. de Mme. E. Chautard. Deservedly the most popular forcing variety. Early and free. Bright rose.

Souv. de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.

Vieux Chateau. Late, large, vigorous, fringed white, shading to pale-rose. A striking novelty.

Otaksa. The old reliable form still fancied by many. We have an immense stock of well-grown plants.

We have also limited stocks of the following in 7-inch pots, which we offer at 75 cents each; $8.00 per dozen

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

Outdoor stock, generally speaking, is about at an end, although there are some fine asters and dahlias at some of the stores. There have been weddings during September that have called for a variety of decorations, thus using the surplus stocks of cut flowers. Downtown stores report that business is picking up briskly, and all hands are making preparations for a busy season. Some fine giganteum lilies are being cut and come in handy for funeral designs.

At one time the coal situation seemed rather serious, but some concerns have received their supply and others have their orders booked.

Various Notes.

James Horan & Son are cutting some fine mums and carnations. Enchantress is taking the lead. There is extensive rebuilding going on at the Horan corner.

The Park Gardens are numbered among the lucky concerns who have their winter's supply of coal in, to the amount of several hundred tons. The men are cutting splendid carnations.

James Beach expects to have an extra supply of pansies next season.

Fred Kolb has been seen around town in a bright new car.

Robert Hawkins reports the demand for cut flowers greater than the supply. He has had an abundance of funeral work.

Julius Reek has his coal in, and his Easter lilies are all set and doing well.

G. C. Bouton & Sons recently furnished a decoration for a silver wedding anniversary in which were white asters and Whitmanii ferns. They have a fine assortment of ferns. Trade is picking up and preparations have been made for a busy fall trade. I. L. B.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Thomas W. Cornell is doing a good business in plants. He grows asters, salvias, zinnias, petunias, cannas and other flowers, besides many vegetable plants.

Hybrid Tea Rose LOS ANGELES

From the many complimentary letters that we have received from amateurs who have purchased the Los Angeles Rose the past spring, we are convinced that this variety will become one of the most popular Hybrid Tea Roses for bedding purposes.

Every plant sent out during the past season has been a live advertisement and we are confident that there will be a phenomenal demand for it in the spring of 1918.

We are sole distributing agents for the introducers for all points east of the Mississippi River and we are now booking advance orders.

The price for strong two-year-old California field-grown plants for 1918 will be $1.50 each at retail. The general wholesale price will be $1.25 each, but we are prepared to book orders now for lots of fifty plants or more at the rate of $100.00 per 100. Delivery of these to be made as soon as stock arrives; usually during the latter part of December.

McGredy's New Hybrid Tea Rose GOLDEN EMBLEM

We are also American distributors for this wonderful new yellow rose of McGredy's which attracted so much attention in our display of Roses at the exhibition of the American Rose Society at Philadelphia, March, 1917, and which was awarded the Society's Silver Medal.

The following is the introducer's description

"A great improvement on Rayon d'Or, the color being richer and deeper, with larger and more perfect blooms. It is so perpetual-flowering that as a garden and bedding rose it is without a rival. At its best it surpasses Marechal Niel in shade. Its habit of growth is ideal; free and branching, with holly-like, glossy-green foliage; delightfully scented."

Price: Strong, two-year-old, imported, budded plants, ready in December, $2.00 each.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The pleasant weather of last week brought in quantities of roses. Some fine Richmond and Hadley roses sold at good prices. Killarney, Sweetheart and Bon Silene roses have been plentiful. There are enough American Beauties to satisfy the demand. Asters are excellent and continue to bring good prices. The opening of the Bank of Buffalo in its new quarters created a demand for Beauties and baskets.

Various Notes.

Edward Stroh is at the Stroh greenhouses, Attica, N. Y., where he will stay until October 1.

Felton's Flower Shop had the Willys-Overland opening decoration September 17. Palms, ferns and baskets were used.

John Kramer, proprietor of the Sangster store, reports an increase in business since September 1. Mr. Kramer has received a shipment of made-up wreaths and crosses, which he is going to push.

The Stroh Quality Store had some carnations with 1-foot stems last week.

The Palmer greenhouses at Lancaster, N. Y., have a collection of pompons in fine condition. Some of the varieties, such as Zenobia, Iva, Lulu and many others, are from three to four and one-half feet in height. These varieties when in flower will have 2 to 3-foot stems. A batch of Leo is now in bud. The collection of large-flowered mums is also of the best. All of these are extremely vigorous, having fine, clean, heavy foliage, and are of a good height. In one of the long houses there is a whole bench of Patty. The orchid house is attractive with its collection of cattleyas and oncidiums. Some Gaskellianas are being cut. These flowers are of good quality. A house of Ophelia roses is producing a large cut. Bon Silene, Sweetheart and Francis Scott Key roses are doing finely, but the Killarneys show some mildew. Carnations are all planted. Some of those benched early are throwing up fair stems. A good retail business is being done at the store in connection with the greenhouses.

Some florists are now thankful that many azaleas arrived in bad flowering condition a year ago. Scott has a whole house of these, which are going to be excellent for this Christmas.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

JOINING RETURNS TO BOILER.

I wish to get some information as to the proper method of connecting return pipes to an ordinary return-tube, horizontal boiler, rated at about fifty horsepower and to be used for hot water heating. Of course, the flows should proceed from the dome, but where should the return openings be made? The boiler is 14x44 inches, and has forty-six 3-inch tubes. Would two 5-inch openings be better than one 7-inch? I expect to use the boiler under moderate pressure, ten to twenty pounds. I shall appreciate an early reply. S. C. W.—Pa.

So far as the efficiency secured is concerned, it really makes little difference where the returns are connected. Two 5-inch returns will work well with a 7-inch main flow and we would connect them where it will be most convenient. Connection may be made on the top of the shell if the boiler is well below the lowest returns. In that case, one of the returns could be connected two feet from each end. Another way would be to enter the side of the shell, connecting the two returns on opposite sides of the boiler, preferably near one end.

SOME OF THE PIPES ARE COLD.

Will you kindly help me out of a heating trouble? A year or so ago I built a salesroom in front of my greenhouse, and placed in the salesroom a radiator and four 1½-inch returns. The four 1½-inch returns are fed by a 2-inch flow, which also feeds three 2-inch returns on the side wall of the greenhouse. The 2-inch flow, in turn, is fed by a 3-inch main. The radiator is not fed by this line at all, but by another 3-inch pipe. The return from the radiator and from the 1½-inch coil runs under the 2-inch returns to the rear of the greenhouse and empties into the 2-inch return through a Y.

Since installing the pipes in the salesroom I have been unable to get any heat from the 2-inch returns on the side wall in the greenhouse, and I shall be thankful if you can tell me how to change the piping so these 2-inch lines will heat. Hot water is used for heating. I enclose a sketch of the piping.

W. E. P.—O.

The sketch shows that return bends have been used in making up the coils, and such an arrangement tends to hinder the circulation as compared with a coil built with headers. It is also possible that the alignment of the pipes in the 2-inch coil is such as to permit the pocketing of the air. If the trouble is not due to such wrong alignment, we would suggest that a coil built up with headers be constructed from the 2-inch pipes, and that another be constructed in the salesroom from the 1½-inch pipes, provided a good circulation is not se-

PIPING IN A MILD CLIMATE.

Will you please inform me as to the best method of heating my houses for carnations, by the hot water system? I have two connected greenhouses, with a 12-inch gutter between them. They are 14x16, running north and south. The north end is boarded up and contains one door, 3x6 feet, with a ventilator 18x24 inches over the door. The south end is all glass except the door and two feet of boards just above the ground. The east and west walls are four feet six inches high and contain two feet of boards and two feet six inches of glass.

—you've got a date in Detroit!

PACK your grip and come along for the two big days in the F. T. D. workshop at Detroit, October 2 and 3. Hearts are beating for the big F. T. D. meeting, and you're wanted—every florist is wanted—members and non-members. There's work, fun and recreation—just the right mixture to send you home happier, keener, stronger.

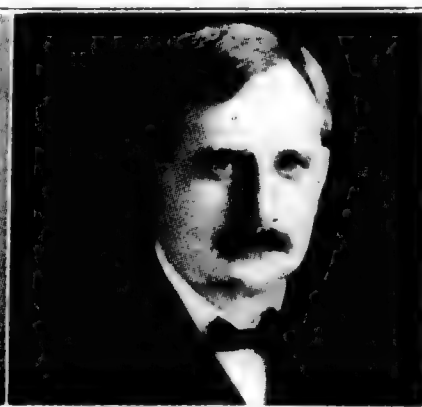

President Gude.

Vice-President Asmus.

Treasurer Rock.

Secretary Pochelon.

Meet the men at the F. T. D. helm - good fellows, big times, you don't want to miss.

OUT of the F. T. D. meeting will be born an inspiration for more intelligent, more efficient F. T. D. service—and more business; an inspiration that will spur each attendant to greater efforts and renewed capabilities.

Mark the dates on your calendar now; make up your mind to meet and counsel with the indefatigable workers of the F. T. D., the likeness of some of whom you see above. Do you want to expand in a business way? Then blow up your tires and come to Detroit.

AND while you're doing your "bit" at Detroit shake hands with Fred Lautenschlager, the Boiler Man. Mr. Lautenschlager's specialty is boilers, Kroeschell Boilers of unequalled fuel economy. If you've got heating troubles of any kind, why not put them up to Mr. Lautenschlager?

Perhaps you will be interested in Kroeschell's factory-to-user prices, and why 3,016,286 square feet of glass were equipped with Kroeschell boilers during 1916. There are many other factors that will convince you of Kroeschell superiority. The catalogue tells about them, and it's free.

is five feet three inches wide and is sixteen inches from the ground. The side benches are two feet six inches wide and eighteen inches from the ground. The benches are eight inches deep.

I have a 9-horsepower boiler. I also have 400 feet of 3-inch pipe and 400 feet of 1-inch pipe. I thought of putting the boiler at the northwest corner of the house. I want one house for carnations and the other for snapdragons and other plants that will grow at the same time. There is no partition between the houses. In this part of northern California the outside temperature in the winter is about 35 to 40 degrees at night, and about 60 to 70 degrees in the daytime. Sometimes we have colder spells, with temperatures as low as 27 degrees above zero, but that does not happen often. I thought of burning wood in the boiler. T. R. F.—Cal.

The 1-inch pipe is rather small for use in a greenhouse sixty feet in length, unless the boiler can be located at least five feet below the returns. In the present case there is sufficient 3-inch pipe to provide the radiation needed, and there will be no occasion for using the 1-inch pipe except to connect with the expansion tank.

While we would prefer to use for each house a 2½-inch flow pipe under the ridge, with a 2-inch return under each of the side benches and two returns under the middle bench, good results may be obtained by running one 3-inch flow under the ridge in each house and placing a 3-inch return under each of the side benches. Give the flow pipes as well as the returns a slope of one inch in fifteen feet, and connect the highest point in each flow pipe with a 10-gallon expansion tank.

THE two insertions sold everything I had.—H. M. Morris, Rantoul, Ill.

PORTLAND NEWS NOTES.

There were several fine exhibits of cut flowers. Martin & Forbes showed some excellent Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty roses, besides a yellow sport of Ophelia, which they had propagated. It is a light canary color. The carnations shown by this firm were Cottage Maid and Mount Hood. Herbert & Fleishauer, of McMinnville, sent in a large display of asters. Clarke Bros. exhibited several vases of named gladioli. Mr. Clarke expressed the opinion that gladioli will increase in public favor. E. J. Steele brought in some of his new pansies that have the color of wallflowers and a ruffled edge.

Various Notes.

Feldenheimer's jewelry store had a fine display of Crissey's gladioli last week. Several of the other stores showed dahlias.

The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. will have an exhibit at the state fair at Salem.

E. H. White was one of the judges at the Tacoma dahlia show September 14 and 15. Mr. White's dahlia gardens at Portland boulevard and Albina avenue are just coming into bloom. His brother, who is associated with him, expects soon to join the army.

Clarke Bros.' store will celebrate its twentieth anniversary October 3. They intend to establish a lunch room soon on the third floor of their building.

Visitors last week were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mills, of Kalispell, Mont., and Mrs. Ralph M. Ward and daughter.

D. M. Cookingham has traded his greenhouse range for a farm and expects to move to the latter place soon.

The Mountain View Floral Co. has just finished budding 150,000 roses at its range at Linnemann station, on the Gresham electric line. The company has seventeen acres devoted exclusively to roses and ten acres to nursery stock and perennials. Mr. Feser says he looks for excellent business this fall.

The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. has nearly completed its new houses and will have them piped by October 10.

R. E. Gehr has returned from a vacation of two weeks, spent at Seaside and nearby places. W. G. W.

Delightful weather, following the cold and frost which killed much of the outdoor stock, gave an impetus to business last week. Stock was plentiful and the retailers moved considerable quantities. Dahlias, gladioli and asters are plentiful. White and yellow chrysanthemums of good quality also are coming. Other stock is sufficient for the demand.

Various Notes.

The merchants at Butler, Pa., had a window decoration contest last week and the A. Krut Floral Co. carried away the first prize. The decoration was made by Mr. Krut's daughter, Mrs. Maguire.

A new and exceptionally attractive flower store has been opened in the east end by Mr. Kronis. The store is located in a business block in that section. Among the features of the interior decoration is a fountain in the center of the store.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

gardens for the benefit of the Marin County, Cal., chapter of the Red Cross, September 26.

T. C. Holmes, of C. C. Morse & Co., spent his vacation at Ziegler Springs, Lake county.

C. C. Morse & Co. have issued a new dahlia catalogue in which about 500 varieties are listed. A feature of the new catalogue is the listing of the dahlias according to types—one page containing a list of all the dahlias of a certain type and the opposite page showing a distinctive flower of that type.

John and Joseph Picetti, salesmen in the floral department of the Emporium, whose names appeared in the draft, have enlisted and are awaiting a call to the front.

Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week.

Mr. Case, formerly manager of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash., is now in the employ of the Art Floral Co., in the capacity of salesman and designer.

John MacDonough, formerly in the employ of the Art Floral Co., was drafted and has left for American Lake, Wash.

Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has returned from Santa Barbara, where he has been staying for his health. Mr. Rossi's friends will be glad to hear that he both looks and feels much better. Mr. Pelicano's chauffeur at the ranch has been called to the colors and leaves for American Lake, Wash., in the near future. The firm announces that it will have a big exhibit at the Dahlia show at the St. Francis hotel, where Mr. Pelicano expects to win another prize.

Mr. Bacigalupi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, has been drafted and left last week for American Lake, Wash.

The California Seed Co. had a splendid display of dahlias last week. Some choice and rare varieties are shown, and a good attendance is reported. This company is planning on a large exhibit at the coming show at the St. Francis hotel, and will endeavor to duplicate its success at the Palace hotel show, when it carried off a cup.

Mrs. J. Wessels, bookkeeper for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has returned from a vacation spent chiefly in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. S. H. G.

This Tankage of ours is animal flesh, blood and bone, thoroughly pulverized.
It contains not only valuable fertilizing ingredients that are immediately available in the form of Nitrogen, but many others that continuously become available as the process of putrefaction goes on.

N. A. C. Ten-Ten Tankage is pure

animal tankage. No filler is used. It is the cheapest, safest and most quickly available fertilizer that you can use as a top-dressing for Chrysanthemums, Roses, Carnations and all other plants that make growth previous to flowering.
Many growers are ordering carload lots from us.

Ten-Ten Tankage should be used at the rate of 50 lbs. 1000 square feet of SPOKANE NOTES.

H. L. Olsson reports that the plant shipping business is good. His only complaint is that he has not enough 2-inch cinerarias to take care of his trade. He was the first in the market this year with mums, his Golden Glow and Early Frost being ahead of all others by at least two weeks.

A. J. Burt has again entered the ranks of the retailers. He has opened a store in the Clemmer theater building and will handle all his business from that location.

Another business change was effected when the Spokane Florist Co. declined to renew its lease on the room in the Davenport hotel, where the company has conducted a flower store since the hotel's opening three years ago. The place is now being conducted by the hotel's decorators.

Gustav Peterson has come over from Seattle to assist at Donart's House of Flowers. He was well known in Seattle, having been with the Hollywood Gardens and Rosaia Bros., and later associated with his brother in the nursery business.

Robert Briggs, for many years with the Hoyt Bros. Co., and later with E. S. Eugene, has decided to give up the flower business. While on his vacation he took temporary employment at a lumber mill at Elk River, Idaho. The wages and conditions there are so attractive that he has decided to remain there, at least until the big demand for lumber is over. L. B. H.

WESTERLY, R. I.

George L. Stillman is serving as a member of the grand jury at the September session of the Superior court of Washington county.

James Brenan, a well known rose grower and a former resident here, has returned with his family from Philadelphia.

S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., has practically completed the benching for the new season.

Conrad Schultz has completed the renovation of his houses and has his benching completed. W. H. M.

New Snug Folding Arms. They close up like a jackknife.

The old kind Not quite as bad as barbed wire entanglements but pretty bad.

WHICH In the Walk or Out?

HAVE you cursed the cussedness of the vent arms that stick out in the sidewalk, making you walk sideways like a pumpkin seed to avoid bumping into them?

Or have you been so exasperated with them, that when you built next, you robbed that side bench to make the walk wider?

Robbing benches means robbing your bank account year after year. Consider what that means at the end of 20 years.

Buy our new Snug Folding Arms.

They give just as wide an opening as other arms and do not extend into the walk beyond the line of the shafting.

No matter when or of whom you buy your ventilation apparatus, buy these arms of us.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

Anglin & Walsh Co., Williamsbridge, N. Y.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 thorough-bred varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties, in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had. I have received thousands of testimonials from amateurs and florists, of which this is a sample:

"The pansies last year could not be beat for color, size and long stems. I grow for cut flowers only (Boston Market), and consider your strain way ahead of anything I have tried or seen. Perry Green, Quincy, Mass."

"This is the 7th year I have used your pansy plants and each year I have found them satisfactory in size of flowers, colors and other respects." J. W. McCabe, Washington, D. C.

I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years and believe I have the largest and best stock of plants for the wholesale trade in America. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it; and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Plants from earliest sown seed, $4.50 per 1000; from August sown seed, $3.50 per 1000. Cash with orders.

The Market.

Business is good, the demand for stock being active and steady, with the supply large enough to take care of all ordinary requirements without any trouble. Prices are fair.

Roses are in strong supply and the quality is good. There are excellent blooms of Ophelia, Russell, Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty and White Killarney. A limited number of carnations arrive and sell readily. Easter and rubrum lilies are plentiful. Dahlias are in heavy supply and meet with an excellent demand. A few yellow chrysanthemums are available. Asters and gladioli may be had. Greens are plentiful and sell well.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been having a good demand for fancy greens during the last fortnight.

Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., have been shipping some fine Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Shawyer and White Killarney roses to L. H. Kyrk.

E. G. Gillett has returned from his northern Ohio and Michigan business trip.

Among recent visitors were: E. J. Gould, of London, O.; H. S. Price, representing the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; W. J. Cox, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago. C. H. H.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Horticultural Society Shows.

Despite early and severe frosts, which robbed it of many intended exhibits, the annual September exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, which was held last week in the parlors of the Narragansett hotel, was most successful. The crowning feature of the show was the large collection of dahlias by professional growers. One of the drawbacks of these exhibitions for a number of years has been the lack of interest on the part of the professional growers, but the last three or four years has witnessed a more general response by this class to the society's invitations.

Much interest was created among the amateur exhibits in the competitions for special prizes offered by Willis S. Pino, the Michell Co., Joshua Vose and William Steele.

Among the winners of awards were William Steele, Albert Poulton, N. J. Jillson, A. H. Sellew, W. D. Hathaway, C. L. Alling, Neil Ward and C. E. Waite. There were gratuities for M. Macnair and Johnston Bros.

Various Notes.

Max Viller, for several years with Johnston Bros. and later with Smith the Florist, but now in the quartermaster's department, officers' reserve corps, at Fort Strong, Mass., was in town last week on a furlough.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis S. Pino have returned from an automobile trip to the White mountains and the Berkshires.

John A. Macrae has completed the benching at his houses on Smith street.

Thieves ransacked the office at the James B. Canning Co. greenhouses. The break was discovered by the manager, Philip F. Lavery, who said the principal loss was a gold watch valued at $25.

The fountain display in the corner window of Macnair's, corner Broad and Chestnut streets, continues to attract attention.

J. Ludwig Trottier was a member of the local contingent that left September 19 for Ayer, Mass., to enter the national army camp.

William H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich, has a contract with the Danbury Fair Association for his usual exhibit there. This year it will consist of a floral arch seven feet high and seven feet wide, all of asters. About 3,500 blooms will be used.

Swan Peterson has commenced the erection of a greenhouse, 20x100 feet, in East Providence.

Fred C. Green has returned from St. Louis, Mo., where he attended the convention of the park superintendents.

George H. Johnson & Son furnished the palms and ferns used for decorative purposes at the recent show of the Elmwood Improvement Association.

W. H. M.

LANSING, MICH.

At the suggestion of the leading bank of this city, the florists, with one exception, cooperated in giving a flower show in the capacious bank building. Asters and gladioli were leaders, the latter being labeled. A large collection of varieties was staged. The show was made a society event and lasted one week. Mrs. Harry E. Saier, who had charge of the exhibit, remarked that there was much work involved, but that the result was satisfactory to all interested. Many notebooks were observed, the owners taking notes of the varieties; some orders already have been received.

In the midst of building, Mr. Saier made a flying trip east, being a member of the F. T. D., a recent addition to the fraternity. He took advantage of the opportunity to exchange ideas. He believes the success he has met with proves the truth of the assertion that there is business to be done if one goes about it in the right way. From what he saw he has formed the opinion that the florists in the larger cities need to advertise more than others, their opportunity for localizing being less. In connection with the local flower show, for instance, all of the flowers were sent to the hospital and the donors received much free publicity at the hands of the press.

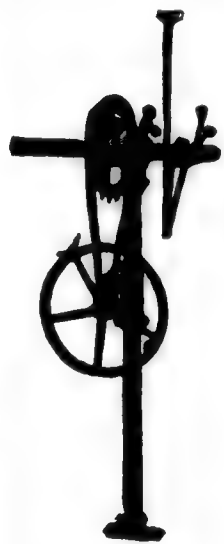

Mr. Saier reports a banner seed business. He is putting up more glass and is afraid that the present store, occupied but two years, will soon be too small.

W. M.

Lincoln, Ill.—C. E. Gullett, of Gullett & Sons, the largest growers in central Illinois, is president of the local telephone company, a highly successful independent concern, the lines of which are open to connection with the Bell system under contract.

Galesburg, Ill.—I. L. Pillsbury, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has sent a letter to all florists of the state inviting them to the fall meeting and flower show, which the association will hold November 6 and 7 at the armory in Galesburg.

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas

GIANT SPENCER VARIETIES

The best that can be procured for winter flowering under glass.

Five Good California Varieties

Early Snowflake, large, pure white, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$1.25; oz., \$2.00.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Heather Bell, rich mauve, changing to lavender, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$2.25; lb., \$8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive. We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.

Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.

Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.

Concord White, large, pure white.

Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.

Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

Extracts from Endorsements on "SUPERIORA" MAGNOLIA LEAVES

Received from the Leading Wholesale Florists
By

DR. H. DUX CO., Inc.,

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh: "We have stored these leaves under all conditions and found that they will not mould; it is a very satisfactory leaf indeed."

W. Q. Potter Co., Cleveland, O.: "Every wholesale florist who wants to protect his trade should sell only your product."

Jos. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia: "—but find your leaves to be far superior to all others."

Barteldes Seed Store, Denver: "—we have found all of these leaves which we received from you to be of an even size and medium length, both the size and the length being extremely uniform."

Kervan Co., New York City: "Since we have handled your leaves we have never had a complaint, but before that there was dissatisfaction."

Montreal Floral Exchange, Montreal, Canada: "—and the trade in Canada appreciates the durability and the keeping qualities of your leaf."

Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, Mich.: "—many compliments on these goods."

Jos. E. Koppelman, Providence, R. I.: "We feel that we can sell your leaves to people who have used them once without any trouble."

McAlpine & McDonald, Boston, Mass.: "—we have found them a most satisfactory leaf in every respect."

New England Florists' Supply Co., Boston, Mass.: "Have found 'Superiora' Magnolias the best on the market."

Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.: "—'Superiora' brand are the best leaves we have been able to obtain in the last few years."

Russin & Hanfling, New York City: "We find your leaves to be pre-eminent to all others placed on the market, particularly with the view that your leaves are all of one uniform color, as well as being pliable and non-moulding."

Henry M. Robinson & Co., Boston: "—and it is a pleasure to offer such stock for sale."

Reed & Keller, New York City: "—and we are indeed pleased to say that they are superior in every way."

Wm. Murphy Co., Cincinnati, O.: "—take pleasure in congratulating you on same and recommending them to all in need of a first-class satisfactory leaf."

B. E. & J. T. Cokely, Scranton, Pa.: "—always considered your leaves to be a standard for quality, etc."

Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co., Baltimore, Md.: "We are confident that any other manufactured Magnolia Leaves could not compete with yours."

N. F. McCarthy & Co., Boston, Mass.: "—your good firm prepares the best leaf that has yet been offered."

Jos. Ziska & Sons, Chicago, Ill.: "Even buyers that were always accustomed to getting the foreign brands realize and admit that your leaves are far superior."

Cleveland Florists' Exchange, Cleveland, O.: "Never as yet have we had a complaint on the 'Superiora' Magnolia Leaves, etc."

Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis, Ind.: "We will continue to use 'Superiora' exclusively, as we consider it superior to any other leaf on the market."

Leo. Niessen Co., Philadelphia: "—your leaves are of the best quality."

Cleveland Cut Flower Co., Cleveland: "We like your goods."

Dale Estate, Brampton, Ontario, Canada: "—were always as reported and gave satisfaction in our business."

Geo. H. Angermueller, St. Louis, Mo.: "—and I credit my success to the fact that the quality of your leaves has always been entirely satisfactory to my customers."

Oscar Leistner, Chicago, Ill.: "—and the trade seems anxious to buy your leaves exclusively."

New York Florists' Supply Co., New York City: "—they are fully up to the standard of the best imported."

C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati: "—and they do not dry out or become mouldy, and every leaf can be used, and when this is taken into consideration they are also the cheapest, besides being the best."

McCallum Co., Pittsburgh: "—and that we did not think their leaf would give the satisfaction yours did."

L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, Ill.: "Your leaves need no recommendation—they speak for themselves."

A. W. Shurragar, San Luis Obispo, Calif.: "Can you give us the address of the wholesale firm handling your Magnolia Leaves on the Coast? We have been trying to get some good quality goods, but what we get is all broken up and half of it not fit for use."

One of the many uses of Hill's Hardy Evergreens

A Money Making Proposition for Progressive Florists

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG,
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of imported decorative material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the list of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no effort to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. If you want some you should place your order now for immediate or later delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus.
These had been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

Chrysanthemums

Extra Choice Large Blooms, the choicest found in this market. These flowers have long, stiff stems and are all grown at our own greenhouses, being carefully chilled before shipping. These yellow Mums are the Golden Queen, which is the best early yellow—a good shipper and does not bruise. The white are the Crystal Gem, another fine shipper.

Beauties, Russell, Hoosier Beauties, Ophelia, Shawyer, Double White Killarney and Sunburst, all in splendid condition and sold at the regular market prices. Buy your flowers direct from a large grower. We cut and grade our flowers especially for the shipping trade and now that there is so much delay in express shipments, good fresh flowers are the only kind to buy.

We close at 5 P. M. Week Days and Sundays at NOON.

All shipments must be delivered to the express companies by 5 P. M. each day.

TRICOLOR RIBBONS

RED, WHITE AND BLUE STRIPED

Many florists are tying their boxes with "Werbro" all silk tricolor ribbons. In view of the spirit conveyed, it is an excellent idea and invariably the recipient is pleased. Be sure, however, that the ribbon you use is not cotton mixed like most of the tricolor ribbon on the market.

We are pioneers in introducing this idea to the florists of America, and we are now in a position to make delivery of all widths, from the narrow baby ribbon size up to five inches, at very reasonable prices.

Ask to see these goods when our representative calls or write for samples. At your service.

HOW TO GET MORE PROFIT OUT OF BUSINESS

At the annual meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, at Detroit, October 2 and 3, the outstanding feature was the report of a special committee appointed to find the way to more satisfactory profits in retail flower selling. The committee gave figures from its members' own books and drew deductions therefrom.

IT IS needless to say that each and every one of us is interested in securing the maximum of profit out of our business without jeopardizing our relation with the buyer," said H. P. Knoble, of Cleveland, prefacing a report at the meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit this week. "It is possible to accomplish this by applying modern business methods more generally, utilizing these principles, and adapting them efficiently.

"At the meeting of the S. A. F. in New York, your president appointed a committee, composed of Mr. Asmus, Mr. Anderson and myself, to present a paper on this proposition. In order to get this question before you properly, it was thought best to take a record of our own businesses and to present them so that discussion on these various items might be taken up, with the thought in view of improving them. It was our judgment that when three businesses were taken into consideration, one located in Chicago, one in Buffalo and one in Cleveland, it would be possible to arrive at a fair basis. While the items vary a little in each case, yet on the whole they resolve themselves into more or less equal final results.

"The following is a list of the items in percentage of the total annual sales:

Overhead expense.	45.1%
Merchandise of every description except baskets, ribbons and chiffons	37.0%
Baskets, ribbons and chiffons....	4.3%
F. T. D. out-of-city accounts....	3.6%
Profit and loss account	10.0%
Total	100.0%

"Some of the items of special interest are:

OFFICERS ELECTED

President
W. F. Gude.....Washington, D. C.
Vice-President
Phillip Breitmeyer....Detroit, Mich.
Treasurer
W. L. Rock.....Kansas City, Mo.
Secretary
Albert Pochelon.....Detroit, Mich.

The secretary and treasurer are elected by the board of directors, but the retention of Secretary Pochelon and Treasurer Rock seems a foregone conclusion.

Cost of advertising.....	6.0%
Salaries	21.0%
Delivery expense	9.0%
General expense	9.1%
Percentage for rent.....	2.0%
Cost per delivery.....	.40 cents
Cost per mile with White trucks..	20.04 cents

Cost per mile with Ford trucks.....	11.05 cents
Average amount of orders.....	$4.01 each
Amount of bills receivable taking the average of the entire year, per month	18.4%
Cash business	32.3%
Charge business	67.7%

"Analyzing the above items separately, you will note that the overhead expense is 45.1 per cent of the gross sales. Merchandise of every description, except baskets, ribbons and chiffons, is 37 per cent. Baskets, ribbons and chiffons are 4.3 per cent. Out-of-town F. T. D. business costs 3.6 per cent. Profit and loss is 10 per cent.

"Further analysis of the overhead develops these items: Cost of advertising is 6 per cent of the gross. This of course is very flexible. Location will have much to do in changing this item. Those living outside of the center of the city will have to spend more in proportion for advertising than those located in the downtown district, where much of their publicity can be obtained by window displays and other methods that can be used where traffic is heavy.

"Salaries in each case seemed to be about the same, 21 per cent of the gross sales, and this of course should include a liberal salary for the proprietors.

"Delivery expenses are about 9 per cent. In some cities of course this will vary. The type of delivery equipment which you have will also have a tendency to cause this. In our case, up to this time we have used White trucks and, while we find that they cost, drivers' salaries, depreciation, upkeep, insurance and all, 20.9 cents per mile, yet we find this type of vehicle very reliable and, while it seems high, it is a question whether it is not better than the cheaper type of delivery. However, we are trying out the Ford car in conjunction with our Whites for the smaller loads and we find that this can be operated on a basis of 11.5 cents per mile.

"It costs anywhere from 34 cents to 40 cents per package to make a delivery. The location of the store changes this item. In our case the average value per delivery for the last year has been $4.01 each.

"You will also note that we have found the amount of money that we carry on our books will average about 18.4 per cent per month for the entire year.

"Our own business, being more of the telephone than the transient trade, is represented by 32.3 per cent of cash sales and 67.7 per cent charge sales.

"It is our judgment that plants purchased for resale should be figured on a basis of three for one. In other words, if a plant costs $1 it should be sold for $3. If this plant is placed in a basket, the basket should be figured on a basis of two for one in addition. If this plant was placed in a basket costing 50 cents, the complete article should sell for $4.

"Cut flowers bought for resale should be figured on a basis of two and one-half for one, and preferably three for one. That is, carnations costing $4 per hundred should sell for $1.50 per dozen. Roses costing $8 per hundred should sell for $3 per dozen.

"In figuring made-up work, we believe that the maximum to be allowed for the cost of the raw stock should not be to exceed 33 1/3 per cent of the retail price of the finished article, deducting the selling price of the basket that the flowers are arranged in. As an illustration, where you aim to make a $5 basket, if this basket costs 50 cents, according to the previous figures it would sell for $1 without any flowers. You will then have to deduct from $5, $1, leaving the balance $4, and the cost of the flowers in this basket should be one-third of $4, or $1.33, this to include flowers and greens. This illustration is figured on a maximum allowance, and you should, wherever possible, aim to make that even less than one-third; 30 per cent would be much better. Of course your ability to buy will be a feature that will govern this situation more or less in every detail.

"We recommend that steps be taken to make our prices more uniform throughout the entire country and suggest that a committee be appointed to work out this phase of it. Its results should be submitted to the secretary of the F. T. D., he in turn to mail each member a complete list of prices suggested, at least once every two months. In this way the retailers all over the country would have a basis to work on that would be universally applied.

"We believe that in estimating a decoration the cost of all articles to be used should be figured on a basis of three for one. In other words, if the cut flowers, greens, etc., used on the decoration figure $100, the retail price should be $300. Accessories, palms, etc., should be figured on a basis of from 15 per cent to 20 per cent of their original cost for the loan value and this sum should be added to the retail price of the other items to obtain the proper quotation.

"You will note we recommend in the above that the plants and cut flowers be figured on a basis of three for one, made-up work on the maximum basis of three for one, preferably less, and yet you will see that our actual records show that the cost of stock is 37 per cent of the gross sales. The difference is made up of destroyed and wasted plants and flowers.

"Mr. Anderson suggested that if 20 per cent be added to the cost of everything as it reaches the store it would be a safeguard to overcome this situation and we believe the suggestion is well made.

"Analyzing the merchandise cost, represented by 37 per cent, and our recommendation to make this 33 1/3 per cent at the maximum, or still more desirable, only 30 per cent at least in all made-up work, you will notice the appreciable difference in the actual figures, 7 per cent, against our prospective aims of 30 per cent. In round figures, 7 per cent would be one-fifth of 37 per cent, or the 20 per cent referred to by Mr. Anderson in making his suggestion. So you see this is a vital point and, since it works out with figures, we believe it to be so worthy that it should command universal adoption.

"It seems this is the only place wherein it is possible to shade in order to try to increase the profit. We do not believe that 10 per cent is a just net profit on the gross volume of sales for the enormous chances that one has to take in a business of this character and also when you consider the unusual hours.

"We should like to have a thorough discussion on this subject, so that it will be possible for all of us to go back to our business and revise our conduct of it to increase our profits to a basis where they justly belong."

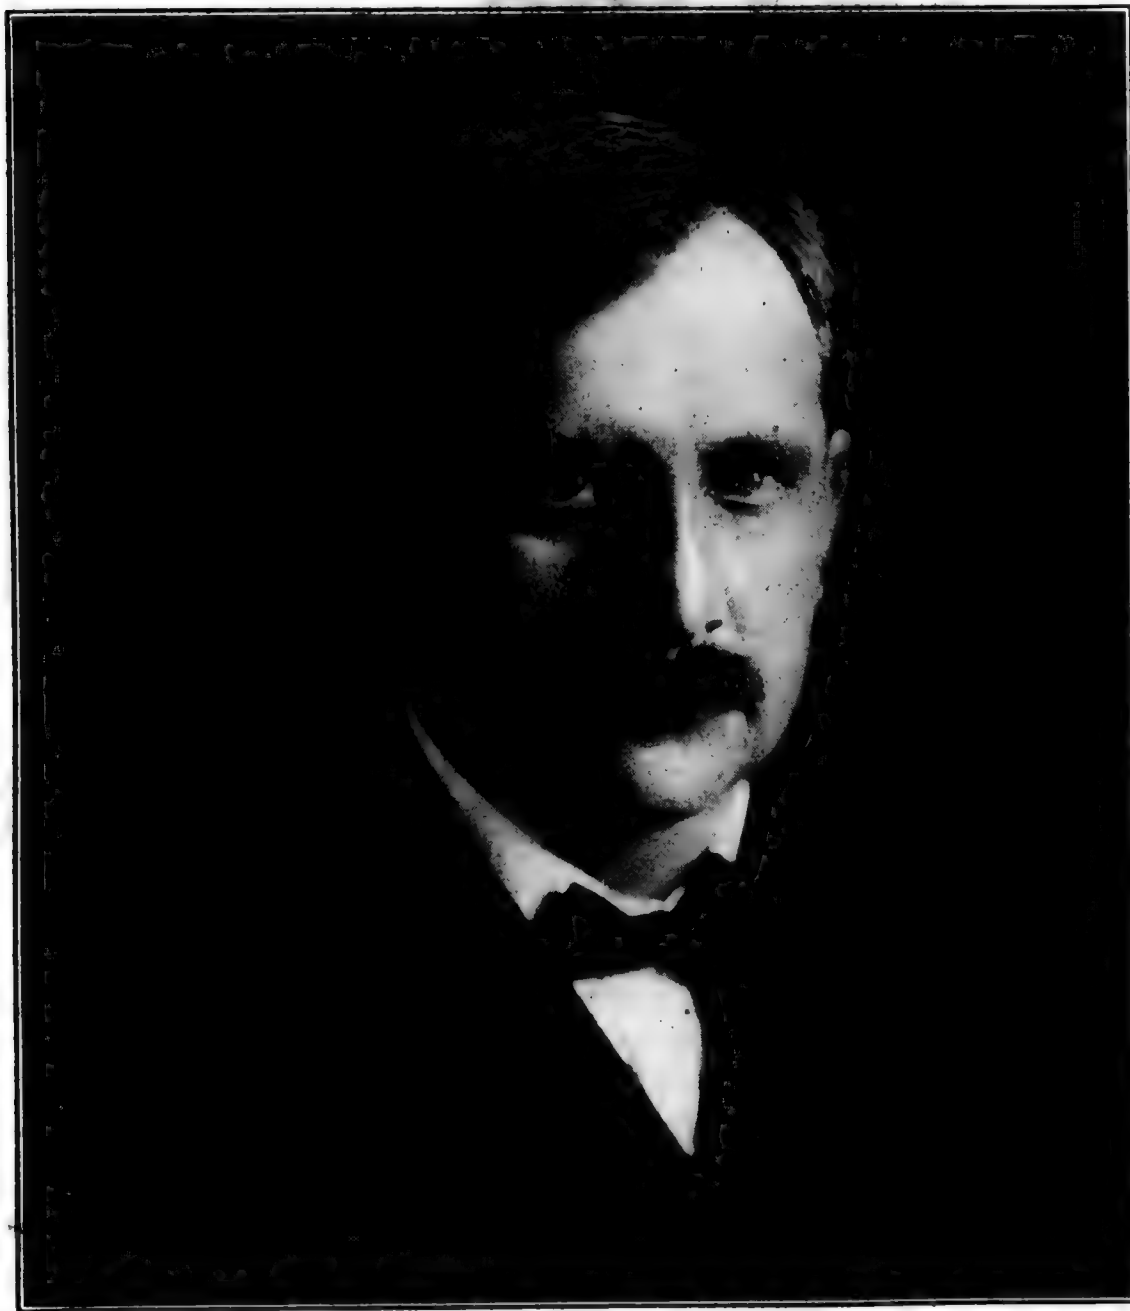

Discussion on Profits.

The committee was not disappointed in the discussion provoked. First of all, it was emphasized that these figures are not for the public, but to show retail florists where their money goes and how they must figure to make a profit in keeping with their work, their risks and the service they give.

Mr. Kerr asked where express charges are included in the committee's estimates, stating that with him, in Texas, express charges have been found to average 31 per cent of the invoice value of the stock. The committee had included express as part of the cost of stock.

J. S. Wilson had in his pocket some of the figures on the cost of operating 50,000 feet of glass and a retail store doing a business of about $60,000. He found the percentage of cost to sales was:

Payroll	35.00%
Auto delivery (Fords)	4.50%
Express and cartage50%
Telephone and telegraph50%
Printing and stationery50%
Postage50%
Repairs on greenhouses	2.00%
Ice35%
Light35%
Coal	4.00%
Water25%
Lodge dues35%
Advertising	2.50%
Donations18%
General expense	5.00%
Bad accounts65%

Albert Pochelon.
(Secretary F. T. D.)

The sales were made up of 55 per cent cut flowers, 30 per cent plants, 12 per cent bulbs, seeds, nursery stock, soil, etc., and 3 per cent florists' supplies. The profits were only 10 per cent of the sales, but the proprietor had drawn a good living wage charged to pay roll.

Mr. Wilson's item of 4 per cent for coal attracted the attention of many who have greenhouses. F. C. W. Brown said the J. M. Gasser fuel bill has been about 4 per cent of the gross sales, but both gentlemen said it will double this year. They were speaking of retail sales, which would put the growers' percentage figure, on the same basis, at 10 per cent to 12 per cent of the receipts at wholesale prices. Mr. Brown said that the experience of the J. M. Gasser Co., operating three distinct businesses, greenhouse, wholesale commission store and retail store, with carefully kept books for each, shows the growing end, all stock sold at wholesale, to be much the most profitable. The retail store pays 10 per cent on the sales in an average year, but the wholesale house, operating on 15 per cent commission, would not break even if it were not for the items of merchandise handled, like ferns and supplies, on which better than 15 per cent is to be had.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Pochelon had no written report. He had some notes, but said that if it sounded like the result of a nightmare he had made the notes between the hours of 10 p. m. and 2 a. m. the night before. He showed that in 1911 the dues received by the association were only $203, while this year they exceed $6,100. The association now has in good standing:

Members	Paying dues	Amounting to
1.....	$30 per year	$ 30.00
153.....	20 per year	3,060.00
76.....	15 per year	1,140.00
87.....	10 per year	870.00
92.....	8 per year	736.00
69.....	5 per year	345.00
478		$6,181.00

It is understood that dues of the members vary in proportion to the size of the city and the number of F. T. D. members there. The one paying $30 is Samuel Feast & Sons, the only member in Baltimore.

Mr. Pochelon then spoke extemporaneously of the many points that have come up in the year's work. He explained his recent inquiry blank to members, saying that he had no antagonism to any other society or the work it is doing, but hoped to create discussion and add to the interest taken in the affairs of the F. T. D. He said that the splendid progress so far made has been the work of a volunteer army, but that he purposes to make it an army of conscripts by demanding the assistance of every member to swell the membership and extend the usefulness of the association.

Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer W. L. Rock presented a report of the financial affairs of the association from August 1, 1916, to September 30, 1917. It showed:

The association now has in its working balance the sum of $5,755.90 and holds in its guarantee fund $7,155.09, the greater part of the money being out at interest, $1,000 in a Liberty bond. The total funds are $12,910.99.

Trade-Mark.

The committee appointed at the New York meeting in August to consider the matter of a trade-mark for the use of members reported that there is urgent need for a design which can be employed on windows, parcels, stationery, wagons, signs and in advertisements of members, and recommended that a prize of $100 be offered for the accepted design, with $100 expense money to advertise the competition, the designs sent in to be submitted to the members at the next annual meeting. So practical did the idea appear that the committee, which consists of F. C. W. Brown, G. E. M. Stumpp and E. A. Fethers, was instructed to go ahead, but to offer $200 as the prize and to try to have the designs ready for selection at the meeting to be held at St. Louis at the time of the National Flower Show next April.

Publicity.

Publicity occupied a large share of the time, being a special order of business for one of the sessions of the second day, but a report by H. P. Knoble precipitated a long discussion at the first session. The committee reported that members and others had subscribed about $2,300 to a publicity fund. The committee was about to spend the greater part of the money on a special article in a syndicate of big newspapers featuring sending flowers to soldiers, but were deterred by the action of the S. A. F. in entering the publicity field. It was thought best by the committee that action be postponed until after this meeting.

R. C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., asked the F. T. D., the United States Florists, the Rotary Florists and all others with funds for general publicity to put their money in with that of the S. A. F. This led to a general expression of views participated in by George Asmus, Max Schling, Albert Pochelon, are trying out the Ford car in conjunction with our Whites for the smaller loads and we find that this can be operated on a basis of 11.5 cents per mile.

In other words, if the cut flowers, greens, etc., used on the decoration figure $100, the retail price should be $300. Accessories, palms, etc., should be figured on a basis of from 15 per cent to 20 per cent of their original cost for the loan value and this sum should be added to the retail price of the other items to obtain the proper quotation.

"You will note we recommend in the above that the plants and cut flowers be figured on a basis of three for one, made-up work on the maximum basis of three for one, preferably less, and yet you will see that our actual records show that the cost of stock is 37 per cent of the gross sales. The difference is made up of destroyed and wasted plants and flowers.

"Mr. Anderson suggested that if 20 per cent be added to the cost of everything as it reaches the store it would be a safeguard to overcome this situation and we believe the suggestion is well made.

"Analyzing the merchandise cost, represented by 37 per cent, and our recommendation to make this 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ per cent at the maximum, or still more desirable, only 30 per cent at least in all made-up work, you will notice the appreciable difference in the actual figures, 7 per cent, against our prospective aims of 30 per cent. In round figures, 7 per cent would be one-fifth of 37 per cent, or the 20 per cent referred to by Mr. Anderson in making his suggestion. So you see this is a vital point and, since it works out with figures, we believe it to be so worthy that it should command universal adoption.

"It seems this is the only place wherein it is possible to shade in order to try to increase the profit. We do not believe that 10 per cent is a just net profit on the gross volume of sales for the enormous chances that one has to take in a business of this character and also when you consider the unusual hours.

"We should like to have a thorough discussion on this subject, so that it will be possible for all of us to go back to our business and revise our conduct of it to increase our profits to a basis where they justly belong."

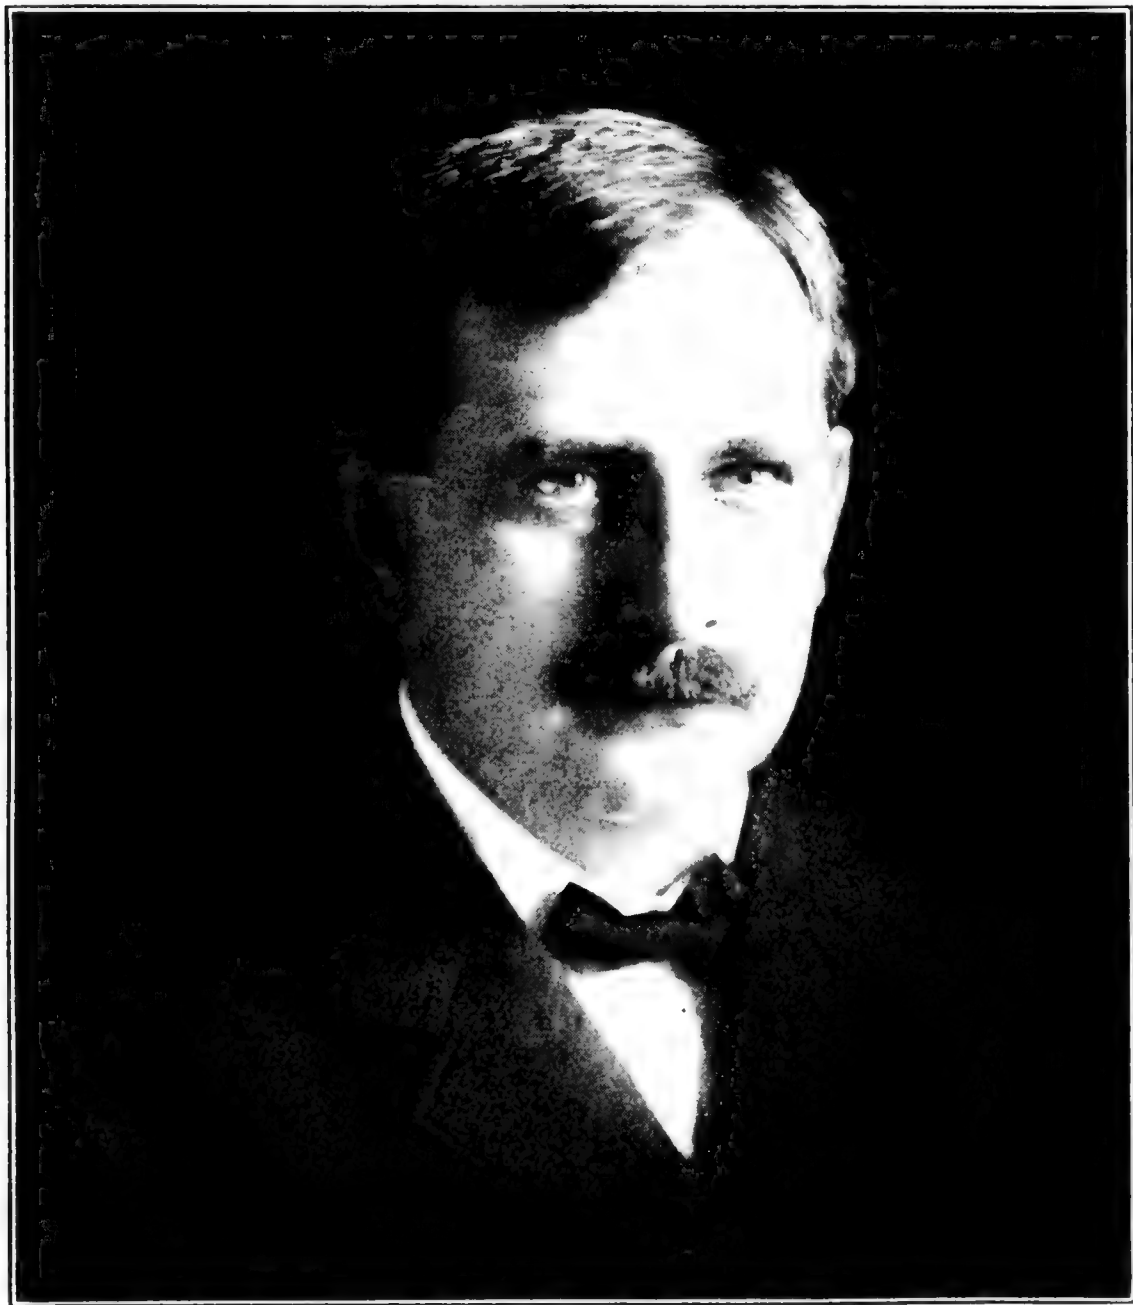

Discussion on Profits.

The committee was not disappointed in the discussion provoked. First of all, it was emphasized that these figures are not for the public, but to show retail florists where their money goes and how they must figure to make a profit in keeping with their work, their risks and the service they give.

Mr. Kerr asked where express charges are included in the committee's estimates, stating that with him, in Texas, express charges have been found to average 31 per cent of the invoice value of the stock. The committee had included express as part of the cost of stock.

J. S. Wilson had in his pocket some of the figures on the cost of operating 50,000 feet of glass and a retail store doing a business of about $60,000. He found the percentage of cost to sales was:

Payroll	35.00%
Auto delivery (Fords)	4.50%
Express and cartage50%
Telephone and telegraph50%
Printing and stationery50%
Postage50%
Repairs on greenhouses	2.00%
Ice35%
Light35%
Coal	4.00%
Water25%
Lodge dues35%
Advertising	2.50%
Donations18%
General expense	5.00%
Bad accounts65%

Albert Pochelon.
(Secretary F. T. D.)

The sales were made up of 55 per cent cut flowers, 30 per cent plants, 12 per cent bulbs, seeds, nursery stock, soil, etc., and 3 per cent florists' supplies. The profits were only 10 per cent of the sales, but the proprietor had drawn a good living wage charged to pay roll.

Mr. Wilson's item of 4 per cent for coal attracted the attention of many who have greenhouses. F. C. W. Brown said the J. M. Gasser fuel bill has been about 4 per cent of the gross sales, but both gentlemen said it will double this year. They were speaking of retail sales, which would put the growers' percentage figure, on the same basis, at 10 per cent to 12 per cent of the receipts at wholesale prices. Mr. Brown said that the experience of the J. M. Gasser Co., operating three distinct businesses, greenhouse, wholesale commission store and retail store, with carefully kept books for each, shows the growing end, all stock sold at wholesale, to be much the most profitable. The retail store pays 10 per cent on the sales in an average year, but the wholesale house, operating on 15 per cent commission, would not break even if it were not for the items of merchandise handled, like ferns and supplies, on which better than 15 per cent is to be had.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Pochelon had no written report. He had some notes, but said that if it sounded like the result of a nightmare he had made the notes between the hours of 10 p. m. and 2 a. m. the night before. He showed that in 1911 the dues received by the association were only $203, while this year they exceed $6,100. The association now has in good standing:

Members	Paying dues	Amounting to
1.....	$30 per year	$ 30.00
153.....	20 per year	3,060.00
76.....	15 per year	1,140.00
87.....	10 per year	870.00
92.....	8 per year	736.00
69.....	5 per year	345.00
478		$6,181.00

It is understood that dues of the members vary in proportion to the size of the city and the number of F. T. D. members there. The one paying $30 is Samuel Feast & Sons, the only member in Baltimore.

Mr. Pochelon then spoke extemporaneously of the many points that have come up in the year's work. He explained his recent inquiry blank to members, saying that he had no antagonism to any other society or the work it is doing, but hoped to create discussion and add to the interest taken in the affairs of the F. T. D. He said that the splendid progress so far made has been the work of a volunteer army, but that he purposes to make it an army of conscripts by demanding the assistance of every member to swell the membership and extend the usefulness of the association.

Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer W. L. Rock presented a report of the financial affairs of the association from August 1, 1916, to September 30, 1917. It showed:

RECEIPTS.
Membership fees	$ 890.00
Annual dues	6,226.00

The association now has in its working balance the sum of $5,755.90 and holds in its guarantee fund $7,155.09, the greater part of the money being out at interest, $1,000 in a Liberty bond. The total funds are $12,910.99.

Trade-Mark.

The committee appointed at the New York meeting in August to consider the matter of a trade-mark for the use of members reported that there is urgent need for a design which can be employed on windows, parcels, stationery, wagons, signs and in advertisements of members, and recommended that a prize of $100 be offered for the accepted design, with $100 expense money to advertise the competition, the designs sent in to be submitted to the members at the next annual meeting. So practical did the idea appear that the committee, which consists of F. C. W. Brown, G. E. M. Stumpp and E. A. Fethers, was instructed to go ahead, but to offer $200 as the prize and to try to have the designs ready for selection at the meeting to be held at St. Louis at the time of the National Flower Show next April.

Publicity.

Publicity occupied a large share of the time, being a special order of business for one of the sessions of the second day, but a report by H. P. Knoble precipitated a long discussion at the first session. The committee reported that members and others had subscribed about $2,300 to a publicity fund. The committee was about to spend the greater part of the money on a special article in a syndicate of big newspapers featuring sending flowers to soldiers, but were deterred by the action of the S. A. F. in entering the publicity field. It was thought best by the committee that action be postponed until after this meeting.

R. C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., asked the F. T. D., the United States Florists, the Rotary Florists and all others with funds for general publicity to put their money in with that of the S. A. F. This led to a general expression of views participated in by George Asmus, Max Schling, Albert Pochelon, Fred Lautenschlager, H. D. Schiller, Irwin Bertermann, S. A. Anderson and J. C. Harper, from which it appeared that the interests that anticipated the S. A. F. in the work were both to abandon their endeavor even now that something larger is in view. Philip Breitmeyer ended the discussion for the time by saying that he already had given $100 to the S. A. F. fund and would increase it to $600. Mr. Kerr asked if this was per annum and was informed that it is so intended.

When the publicity matter was taken up at the second day's session Secretary Pochelon moved that the association return to the S. A. F. publicity fund the $1,000 originally subscribed to the F. T. D. fund by the parent body and put with it $1,500 from the F. T. D. general fund. The motion carried with much enthusiasm. It was announced that the United States Florists had decided to abandon their general publicity work and throw their funds and influence with the S. A. F. publicity.

President Kerr called for individual subscriptions and the following were announced, some of them being increases on previous subscriptions:

Henry Penn, of Boston, told how an unadvertised business of $30,000 to $40,000 a year had been built up to $300,000 a year on an advertising expenditure of eight per cent of the sales. He explained that department stores spend only two or two and one-half per cent on advertising, and said the lower cost is because several in each city are working for the same purpose and the advertising helps. He predicted that the same thing will occur when several florists get to advertising in the same city.

There was a long discussion of the relationship of the F. T. D. with the S. A. F. The F. T. D. is the only affiliated society which requires its members also to be members of the parent organization, and the necessity for joining both is thought to deter some from coming into the F. T. D. As a step toward these solutions, the president was instructed to appoint a committee of three to work out a plan whereby members of the F. T. D. automatically will be members of the S. A. F.

Seligman's Window Contest.

Some months ago Sam Seligman offered a prize of $25 for the best window decoration in Detroit this week advertising the telegraph delivery of the flower business. It proved to have been an inspiration, as twelve windows were decorated for the competition. The Fettes Floral Co. and J. Breitmeyer's Sons each decorated windows. Among other contestants were the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, the Central Floral Co., the Bemb Floral Co., the Scribner Floral Co., J. F. Sullivan, W. B. Brown, Charles Plumb and Walter Taepke. The judges were Henry Penn, W. J. Smyth and W. J. Palmer. They awarded the prize to the window at Breitmeyer's store. Mr. Seligman paid in cash and Mr. Breitmeyer handed the bright new bills over to the publicity committee. Mr. Seligman renewed his offer for next year, and Charles H. Grakelow offered a silver cup for the same purpose.

Election of Officers.

President Gude was elected with a hurrah. Vice-president Asmus withdrew in favor of Philip Breitmeyer, who was elected by acclamation. The secretary and treasurer are elected by the board of directors, but the retention of Secretary Pochelon and Treasurer Rock seems a foregone conclusion.

H. Dilleuth, H. P. Knoble, Edward Seeery and W. J. Smyth were elected directors in place of Harry Papworth, George Stumpp and O. J. Holm, whose terms have expired, and L. D. Thomson, who resigned because of illness.

There were invitations to meet next year at Chicago, Buffalo and Cleveland, Cleveland being chosen.

Auction for Publicity.

After two days of hard work, relaxation came with the closing session in an auction, at which Philip Breitmeyer wielded the gavel with all the grace of a professional. A large painting in colors had been presented to the association by the Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Chicago, to be auctioned for the benefit of the S. A. F. publicity fund. The painting was the work of an artist in the supply department, worked out on an idea of T. E. Waters. A messenger boy in uniform carrying a large bouquet is shown dropping off an express train at the seashore, about to board a steamer which is approaching, typifying the F. T. D. idea.

The bidding ran on amid much hilarity until W. J. Palmer reached $125, whereupon the auctioneer knocked it down to himself at $150. Mr. Palmer then announced that he would donate his bid to the publicity fund, with $25 additional for a week's use of the painting in his window. Mr. Breitmeyer thereupon announced that any F. T. D. florist can have the use of the picture for a week by paying $25 to the S. A. F. publicity fund. There were several applications.

During an earlier session Secretary Pochelon had asserted that one of the members was trying to get his "goat," and the next day that member had placed a woolly toy goat on the secretary's desk. Auctioneer Breitmeyer announced that he would sell the secretary's goat for the benefit of the publicity fund, and that it might afford an opportunity to someone who had failed before. The bidding was lively and hilarious. H. P. Knoble finally got the secretary's goat at $50 and said it was well worth the money.

Philip Breitmeyer.

Express Service.

A telegram from Robert Craig, chairman, and Fred Cowperthwaite, secretary, representing a body of Philadelphia florists seeking to protect trade interests in the matter of express service, asked the cooperation of the F. T. D. The secretary was instructed to reply that the association will do everything possible under the circumstances, but the discussion brought out the general belief that the trade is face to face with a crisis. Instances were cited in which boxes of flowers have been several days or a week in reaching destinations only a few hours' run from the point of shipment. W. F. Gude said he feels that the trade is powerless for the simple reason that both the express companies and the Interstate Commerce Commission are powerless to relieve the congestion which has developed in the last thirty days. S. A. Anderson said the Buffalo florists propose to put a man at each of the principal depots in Buffalo to lend a hand on every box of flowers or plants he sees, hoping thereby to prevent such shipments being buried in the accumulation of freight at terminals and transfer points. Mr. Gude said this no doubt will help greatly except where whole carloads are sidetracked. He explained that the express company officials are willing to give flowers third preference: Government needs come first and food shipments second.

Telegrams of Encouragement.

The interest taken in the affairs of the F. T. D. was well illustrated by the number of telegrams received from members who found themselves unable to attend. The senders felt they were missing something they were loth to lose and wanted those more fortunate to appreciate that fact. Such messages came from Carl Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. R. E. Darbee, San Francisco; Samuel Murray, Kansas City; A. F. Borden, Los Angeles, Cal.; Edward Green, San Antonio, Tex.; J. J. Hess, Omaha; F. J. Meinhardt, St. Louis, and August Lange, Chicago.

There also was a telegram from the Detroit manager of the Western Union expressing his appreciation of the way the visit of the F. T. D. has stimulated the local interest in the use of the telegraph in delivering flowers.

Miscellaneous Matters.

The opening session was called to order by E. A. Fetters, president of the Detroit Florists' Club. Mayor Wax was able to be present and say a few words, after which President Gude read his address, printed in full in another column.

Robert Newcomb, of Chicago, spoke for the trade's travelers, asserting that every man on the road takes pleasure in boosting the F. T. D. to non-members, in the interest of the general welfare of the florists' business.

There was a general discussion on how to wire an order. It was made clear that the order sent should be for the same and full sum of the patron's purchase, the receiver to bill for the full sum less twenty per cent if paid within the time set by the by-laws. This led to discussion of the varying prices of flowers and L. R. Bohannon said he believes it to be the better policy for retailers to hold their prices fairly steady in spite of day to day fluctuations in the wholesale market. S. A. Anderson said thirty Buffalo retailers now hold weekly meetings, not to raise prices, but to talk over what are reasonable prices to be held to steadily for the week.

W. L. Rock.

Max Schling brought up the matter of the best date for the annual meeting. The decision rests with the board of directors, but Mr. Schling thought October too late. There was considerable discussion but no general agreement.

O. J. Friedman moved and it was carried amid flag waving and singing that a telegram pledging support be sent to President Wilson, and that on Thanksgiving day this be followed by a big basket of flowers.

Patrick O'Mara made a rousing speech on the individual responsibilities and irresponsibilities in business.

On motion of George Stumpp, H. P. Knoble, George Asmus and S. A. Anderson were appointed a committee to propose a system of bookkeeping which will assist florists in finding the facts about the costs, profits and necessary prices in their business.

Local Hospitalities.

One of the best features of the meeting was the way it had been arranged to keep the members present. The Board of Commerce, in whose club house the sessions were held, has excellent dining room service and a hearty luncheon was served each day, on behalf of the Detroit florists, so that scarcely anyone left the building from morning until final adjournment for the day. The opening chanced to be on Detroit's first meatless day, but the size of the portion of excellent fish made compliance with the government's request no deprivation whatever. The tables were decorated with a number of large and highly colored specimen crotons grown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. J. When Philip Breitmeyer saw them he hunted up J. J. Karins, representing Dreer, and bought the lot on display.

While the convention opened October 2, the real work was begun at a meeting of the board of directors October 1, following which Philip Breitmeyer gave a dinner to fifteen at the Athletic Club.

Exhibits.

For the Hill interests, of Richmond, Ind., Earl Mann staged two beautiful vases of roses. Columbia, the deep pink seedling of Sawyer and Ophelia, was in splendid form and the Double Ophelia also received much favorable comment. Mr. Mann was asked to tell something of these new sorts and it was stated that E. G. Hill, the raiser, was convalescing nicely after an operation at the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago, whereupon G. E. M. Stumpp moved that the association telegraph him a basket of flowers, the motion being carried with a cheer.

J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, staged three vases of roses, said to be the first seedlings raised in Canada. The red, Mrs. Henry Winnett, is to be disseminated this season by A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn. It has splendid color. Two deep pink sorts have not yet been named, but appear to be worthy of that distinction.

Gus Taepke, of Detroit, decorated the president's table with a handsome basket of roses and gladioli.

Several traveling salesmen had sample displays at one or another of the hotels.

Allied Societies.

The United States Florists, an organization of a half dozen large retailers with one building company coöperating for the purpose of national advertising to increase the use of flowers, L. W. C.

THOSE PRESENT

THE attendance from outside Detroit exceeded 100, and both coasts were represented, there being one man present from Los Angeles, Cal., and several from cities on the Atlantic seaboard, with half a dozen Canadians. The local committee tagged each man with his name and address and at the opening session each person present was asked to rise and announce himself after the fashion made familiar by Rotary Clubs. The names and addresses of those outside Detroit, for all the Detroit florists were there, were as follows:

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[This is the annual address of the president, delivered by W. F. Gude at the annual convention of the F. T. D. at Detroit, Mich., October 2.]

One short year ago next week our association took on a new lease of life when we held what I would term the first real meeting of this association in the city of Chicago. It is gratifying to state that in the last year our association has made splendid strides. However, being naturally of a progressive disposition, the progress made has not been as rapid as we might hope for. This, however, is not due to any lack of enthusiasm or efficiency in the secretary's office or on the part of the other officers and directors, but rather to an apparent feeling among our members of "let the other fellow do it." However, I entertain no doubt that, with more of such meetings as this and the one we had a year ago, we can and will engender the feeling in every individual member that by serving the association generally the individual will benefit himself. On account of the strenuous war times we are contending with today, as the months go on we must expect to have still harder problems confronting us; so for these reasons it would seem there is more need than ever for real earnest heart-to-heart talks and active coöperation. With all the knotty problems that we have confronting us today incident to the war conditions, we must use them as an incentive to spur us on to greater work for the F. T. D., and with a strong pull, a long pull and a pull all together, the results will be nothing short of marvelous.

At our annual meeting held in New York August 21, last, the day previous to the meeting of the S. A. F. convention, much good was accomplished in a get-together way, and many thoughts and ideas were brought out that should produce some substantial results at this meeting. Although the meeting was not as largely attended as we had hoped for, yet what was lacking in numbers was made up in enthusiasm, and well reflected the work and ideas started at the Chicago session and the splendid results attained during the last twelve months. I sincerely hope that at our next annual meeting we may all have cause to rejoice at the wonderful progress we shall have made.

Publicity.

To my mind, a publicity campaign should be entered into wholeheartedly, speaking from a national standpoint, by amalgamation and closer coöperation in the expenditures of money for general advertising. At present, we find that some firms are contributing to five or six general advertising campaigns. I believe this money could be better spent if it all went through one channel. In these days of high cost of everything connected with our business, economy being the watchword, we should have before us a maximum of results and a minimum of expenditures, and as the retail florist is the final barometer of all—wholesaler, grower, greenhouse builder, and, in short, every man who produces anything for the florists' business, not excepting the trade papers and advertising experts—it would seem that all interests should coöperate by centering on the retail florists for the maximum publicity, because when there is no outlet for the stock produced by the grower, it will immediately affect all other lines of the allied industry, which, in any way, may be catering to the public through the retail florists' establishments. So the one big problem is letting the public know in the most effective and forceful manner possible that we have flowers and art to sell. If we do this the growth of our business will be little short of marvelous.

The wonderful possibilities and opportunities that are passing by our doors daily would be seized by some other live trade concerns and used for an advertising lever if they had but the opportunity. I refer, particularly, to special show days, F. T. D. days, Thanksgiving day, McKinley's birthday, Washington's birthday, Lincoln's birthday, St. Valentine's day, Palm Sunday, Mothers' day, Fathers' day, Memorial day, etc. So we might go on and have one or two special days a month; publicity would bring them about. Surely, the liberal use of flowers at present on such holidays as Christmas, Easter and Decoration day, was not brought about by the florists, but is due to the public demand for flowers. Now, why not let the retail florists take the initiative, for what greater incentive would we need than the small efforts put forth in exploiting Mothers' day and the wonderful results we have already attained? While speaking of publicity, let me say that there is no better publicity than satisfied customers and the mouth-to-ear publicity, even though it may be a minister preaching from the pulpit. His sermon will have either a favorable, passive or unfavorable impression on his congregation.

Sentiment of Flowers.

This brings to my mind the beautiful sentiment that flowers convey and so beautifully expressed by a brother from California of the B. P. O. Elks at the annual convention held last July in Tremont Street Temple, Boston, Mass., when, in the presence of nearly 2,000 delegates, representing nearly 1,000,000 members, a resolution was offered setting aside a day in May to pay homage to our mothers, advocating a white flower in memory of mother and a colored flower in honor of mother. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous rising vote. Gentlemen, this means more than a mere resolution. Fellow members, this means more than dollars and cents. It means that every retail florist will be called into action to contribute his sweet share of sentiment by furnishing flowers for these beautiful ceremonies. And when these hundreds of thousands of people meet annually in nearly 2,000 different cities to pay tribute to their mothers, it surely will be gratifying to feel that our profession will be called into action, as much so as the ministers of the Gospel, because after all flowers are gifts of God and the closest connecting link between the finite and the infinite. Let us, then, at this session, thoroughly discuss every phase of our profession and go home feeling that we have done something for the benefit of mankind, as well as for our business. Let us adopt a sign or emblem for every F. T. D. member to place in his window, on his boxes, on his letters, labels and packages. What a wonderful effect this would have on the public! We know what an F. T. D. florist means, but there are at least 99,000,000 people who do not. Why not assist in educating them in every way possible, letting them know that the sending of flowers is now an easy matter, and that there is a florist in every town or city who can be trusted to execute their orders? Such an emblem or motto as we might adopt should be copyrighted, so that a penalty under the law might be imposed upon anyone not entitled to use this sign. Along this line, I cannot too strongly urge a strict adherence to our by-laws in the matter of collection and payment of obligations.

Membership and Service.

Our membership has increased largely in the last twelve months, but if we had four times as many members we could do far better and more effective work. I ask you all to coöperate in securing more members.

The shipping of flowers by express at present and for months to come is, no doubt, the most serious matter to confront us at this time, and, therefore, the prompt execution of orders by telegraph or telephone is all the more important, because, under certain conditions as they now exist, it is not wise to ship flowers by express, no matter how short the distance. In justice to the express companies and the Interstate Commerce Commission, I want to say this is no criticism or reflection on their willingness to serve us. It is simply a condition beyond human control at this time. This is another reason why you should boost the F. T. D.

Our financial condition seems to be satisfactory, our bills have been paid promptly and we have money on hand, full report of which will be made by our treasurer and our secretary.

I wish at this time to again congratulate this organization on having Albert Pochelon for its secretary, a man who knows nothing of the word "failure" and is every ready to give the best for the interests of the F. T. D. I want to say that for the last twenty-five years I have worked with many secretaries, but never with one who was more prompt, more efficient or more ever ready to do his best for the cause.

To the other officers and members of the organization who have assisted in the last year, in any way, in boosting the F. T. D., I tender my sincere thanks.

WINTER-FLOWERING PLANTS.

We are anxious to know of some blooming plants we could grow to take the place of bulbous stock, in case the bulbs should fail to arrive this fall. Can you suggest some satisfactory plants, besides cyclamens, primroses and cinerarias?

Would salpiglossis be a good house plant, and, if so, what variety would you suggest and when should the seeds be planted? About how long can one figure from the time the seeds are planted until the plants are salable? Is the butterfly plant satisfactory?

R. & S. F. S.—Mont.

Salpiglossis, while good for bench culture, does not make a good pot plant, as it is too tall growing. Good, mixed seeds will be found all right, and you will have good success if you can sow them early in January, for a spring crop. It is not a reliable winter bloomer. Schizanthus Wisetonensis is a grand flowering plant for a cool greenhouse. Sow seeds now for blooms in March. This is sometimes called the butterfly plant and poor man's orchid.

White marguerites started from cuttings now will make nice spring flowering plants. The yellow sorts make less shapely plants. Mignonette is not often grown in pots, but does finely. Sow the best forcing variety in small pots and pot on as needed. Browallia viscosa makes a beautiful pot plant for winter. Buddleia asiatica, or winter lilac, is also good; so are Begonias Gloire de Chatelaine, Lorraine, Glory of Cincinnati and Mrs. Peterson. Calceolarias are good in April or May. The French hydrangeas can be flowered from February onward; so can genistas; ericas, such as melanthera; stevias, poinsettias for Christmas and a number of other plants.

Bulbs of lilies, freesias, Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths, not being of Dutch origin, are of more certain delivery and, if not yet planted, should be started now, except Lilium longiflorum, which will come in a few weeks later.

pink sorts have not yet been named, but appear to be worthy of that distinction.

Gus Taepke, of Detroit, decorated the president's table with a handsome basket of roses and gladioli.

Several traveling salesmen had sample displays at one or another of the hotels.

Allied Societies.

The United States Florists, an organization of a half dozen large retailers with one building company coöperating for the purpose of national advertising to increase the use of flowers, L. W. C.

Tuthill, secretary, held a meeting at the Statler hotel to work out plans for further activities.

The Rotary florists had a special meeting during the convention and October 3 were guests of the local Rotarians at their weekly luncheon.

Personal Notes.

W. P. Kyle drove his Mereer from Chicago to Detroit in fourteen hours of road time. With him he had Mrs. Kyle and L. R. Bohannon and wife.

F. A. Friedley, H. P. Knoble and some of the other Clevelanders made the trip by automobile.

THOSE PRESENT

THE attendance from outside Detroit exceeded 100, and both coasts were represented, there being one man present from Los Angeles, Cal., and several from cities on the Atlantic seaboard, with half a dozen Canadians. The local committee tagged each man with his name and address and at the opening session each person present was asked to rise and announce himself after the fashion made familiar by Rotary Clubs. The names and addresses of those outside Detroit, for all the Detroit florists were there, were as follows:

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[This is the annual address of the president, delivered by W. F. Gude at the annual convention of the F. T. D. at Detroit, Mich., October 2.]

One short year ago next week our association took on a new lease of life when we held what I would term the first real meeting of this association in the city of Chicago. It is gratifying to state that in the last year our association has made splendid strides. However, being naturally of a progressive disposition, the progress made has not been as rapid as we might hope for. This, however, is not due to any lack of enthusiasm or efficiency in the secretary's office or on the part of the other officers and directors, but rather to an apparent feeling among our members of "let the other fellow do it." However, I entertain no doubt that, with more of such meetings as this and the one we had a year ago, we can and will engender the feeling in every individual member that by serving the association generally the individual will benefit himself. On account of the strenuous war times we are contending with to-day, as the months go on we must expect to have still harder problems confronting us; so for these reasons it would seem there is more need than ever for real earnest heart-to-heart talks and active coöperation. With all the knotty problems that we have confronting us today incident to the war conditions, we must use them as an incentive to spur us on to greater work for the F. T. D., and with a strong pull, a long pull and a pull all together, the results will be nothing short of marvelous.

At our annual meeting held in New York August 21, last, the day previous to the meeting of the S. A. F. convention, much good was accomplished in a get-together way, and many thoughts and ideas were brought out that should produce some substantial results at this meeting. Although the meeting was not as largely attended as we had hoped for, yet what was lacking in numbers was made up in enthusiasm, and well reflected the work and ideas started at the Chicago session and the splendid results attained during the last twelve months. I sincerely hope that at our next annual meeting we may all have cause to rejoice at the wonderful progress we shall have made.

Publicity.

To my mind, a publicity campaign should be entered into wholeheartedly, speaking from a national standpoint, by amalgamation and closer coöperation in the expenditures of money for general advertising. At present, we find that some firms are contributing to five or six general advertising campaigns. I believe this money could be better spent if it all went through one channel. In these days of high cost of everything connected with our business, economy being the watchword, we should have before us a maximum of results and a minimum of expenditures, and as the retail florist is the final barometer of all—wholesaler, grower, greenhouse builder, and, in short, every man who produces anything for the florists' business, not excepting the trade papers and advertising experts—it would seem that all interests should coöperate by centering on the retail florists for the maximum publicity, because when there is no outlet for the stock produced by the grower, it will immediately affect all other lines of the allied industry, which, in any way, may be catering to the public through the retail florists' establishments. So the one big problem is letting the public know in the most effective and forceful manner possible that we have flowers and art to sell. If we do this the growth of our business will be little short of marvelous.

The wonderful possibilities and opportunities that are passing by our doors daily would be seized by some other live trade concerns and used for an advertising lever if they had but the opportunity. I refer, particularly, to special show days, F. T. D. days, Thanksgiving day, McKinley's birthday, Washington's birthday, Lincoln's birthday, St. Valentine's day, Palm Sunday, Mothers' day, Fathers' day, Memorial day, etc. So we might go on and have one or two special days a month; publicity would bring them about. Surely, the liberal use of flowers at present on such holidays as Christmas, Easter and Decoration day, was not brought about by the florists, but is due to the public demand for flowers. Now, why not let the retail florists take the initiative, for what greater incentive would we need than the small efforts put forth in exploiting Mothers' day and the wonderful results we have already attained? While speaking of publicity, let me say that there is no better publicity than satisfied customers and the mouth-to-ear publicity, even though it may be a minister preaching from the pulpit. His sermon will have either a favorable, passive or unfavorable impression on his congregation.

Sentiment of Flowers.

This brings to my mind the beautiful sentiment that flowers convey and so beautifully expressed by a brother from California of the B. P. O. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous rising vote. Gentlemen, this means more than a mere resolution. Fellow members, this means more than dollars and cents. It means that every retail florist will be called into action to contribute his sweet share of sentiment by furnishing flowers for these beautiful ceremonies. And when these hundreds of thousands of people meet annually in nearly 2,000 different cities to pay tribute to their mothers, it surely will be gratifying to feel that our profession will be called into action, as much so as the ministers of the Gospel, because after all flowers are gifts of God and the closest connecting link between the finite and the infinite. Let us, then, at this session, thoroughly discuss every phase of our profession and go home feeling that we have done something for the benefit of mankind, as well as for our business. Let us adopt a sign or emblem for every F. T. D. member to place in his window, on his boxes, on his letters, labels and packages. What a wonderful effect this would have on the public! We know what an F. T. D. florist means, but there are at least 99,000,000 people who do not. SMALL, DISEASED PLANTS.

I am sending you under separate cover some diseased carnation plants. I have a house of these that are more or less affected. Would you advise trying to nurse this stock through, or would it be better to replant with new stock? What is the best method of fighting this trouble?

D. H.—S. C.

In my opinion, it would not pay you to nurse along these carnation plants. Even if they were not diseased, they are so small that you could not expect them to yield even half a crop of blooms. By this time, plants that were benched from pots should show at least ten or twelve young breaks, while those from the field must show that many or more, if they are to give a satisfactory yield during the early part of the season. I would advise you to pull up these plants, refill your benches with good, fresh soil and replant with good, field-grown plants. They will give you several times their cost, over and above what you could get from those you have now. Do not make the mistake of retaining the soil that is in the benches now. The chances are that this soil is not in good condition, or your plants would be making a better showing.

A. F. J. B.

REMEDY FOR THRIPS.

My carnations are developing splendidly, but there are a number of thrips and bugs on them that I would like to get rid of at once. I am enclosing a clipping from The Review giving directions on how to exterminate thrips, but as the text does not seem complete I would like to have you print instructions in greater detail.

W. E. P.—Okla.

Arsenic, when properly applied, is one of the most efficacious insect remedies we know of, but if not handled carefully it is capable of doing as much damage as any one thing you can get hold of. The article in question, which appeared in The Review a couple of years ago, was written to warn growers against carelessness in using a formula we had recommended for the extermination of red spider. The formula had been given to us by a friend. We tried it out carefully and found it most satisfactory, but dangerous if not mixed according to directions. Another friend reported to us that an employee had mixed a batch and applied it to a 200-foot house of carnations with disastrous results. On inquiry he found that the employee had followed directions to the letter, except that after having the mixture ready to use he boiled it and thereby heightened the burning property of the arsenic.

The formula is as follows: Mix one pound of arsenic with five pounds of white sugar. Then add enough water to make a thick syrup. Use one drug ounce of this to one gallon of water and spray it on the plants with a fine spray.

Remedies of this nature are all right in aggravated cases where ordinary remedies fail, but ordinarily we prefer to use preventive measures. For several years we have used salt to keep off red spider, with the best of success. We spray the plants at least once each week and find this sufficient to keep them away. For thrips we spray the plants regularly with one of the nicotine extracts and find it most satisfactory. We find, almost invariably, that when a grower complains of thrips, the spraying or fumigation is done in a haphazard sort of way.

There are a number of methods of applying these remedies, each one good only when applied properly and regularly. We spray the plants once each week for thrips, as regularly as the spraying day comes around. The man who does the spraying has nothing else to do that day until the spraying is done. We have found that is the only way to keep thrips away from the carnations. Red spider is not so persistent as thrips, but it pays to keep the place unhealthy for them, rather than to adopt heroic measures to get rid of them after they get a hold.

A. F. J. B.

SUPPORTING THE PLANTS.

Information will be appreciated regarding how to use wire lengthwise and cord crosswise to support carnations. What gauge of wire is used? Is it best to use a heavier wire for the outer rows? How far from the ground is the first support placed? Is this method of support considered generally the best for carnations?

Perhaps more carnations are supported by the wire and string method than any other, or possibly all others put together. The most modern method is a combination of the wire and string method and the wire ring support. One of the numerous styles of wire rings is used for the lower support. These are put into place as soon as the planting is finished, if the plants need supporting, or as soon after as the main weeding and scratching have been finished. We prefer to leave them off as long as the plants will stand up properly, as it is easier to work the soil without the obstruction of the supports. When the shoots begin to lengthen and additional supports are needed, we stretch the wires lengthwise of the bench, one between each row and one on the outside on each side of the bench.

We use the same gauge of wire throughout, preferably 15 or 16-gauge. We prefer the soft steel, galvanized wire. Then we cut strings of a proper length to reach across the bench, allowing enough length to provide for winding once around each wire and tying on each side of the bench. Each one of the two men working at the job will take half of these strings. Each will start a string from his side of the bench, wrapping the string around each wire until he has reached the middle, when they will exchange strings and proceed across to the edge wire, where it is tied. Two handy men or boys will tie the strings on one tier of a 200-foot bench in one hour. Two tiers, in addition to the lower wire ring, are usually all that is needed, but sometimes we find it necessary to apply a third tier of the wire and string. If you have not the wire rings, you can use the wire and string method altogether from the bottom up. Be sure you stretch the wire tightly.

DAHLIA SHOW AWARDS

DISPLAYS OF HIGH QUALITY.

Attendance Large.

The third annual meeting and exhibition of the American Dahlia Society, held in conjunction with the eighty-sixth annual fair of the American Institute, an account of which appeared in last week's issue of The Review, came to a close at the Engineering building, New York city, September 27. The two exhibitions were considered the finest in the history of either society, both in the quantity and quality of the dahlias shown, and the attendance during the three days of the exhibition was fully up to that of former years. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., estimated that more than 10,000 flowers were shown.

The exhibitions were under the management of W. B. Rickards and Secretary Eggleston, of the American Institute. During the exhibition music was furnished by an orchestra, which added much to the show. The combined exhibitions were so successful this year that it already seems certain that the same arrangement will be made next year.

The judges of the exhibits were Peter Duff, William Turner, J. G. McNicoll, Prof. F. Hall, J. C. Clarke and George H. Hall, who made the following awards in classes wherein commercial growers were allowed to compete:

Display covering 100 square feet—W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., first.

Display covering fifty square feet—N. Harold Cotton & Son, Wappingers Falls, N. Y., second.

Six vases collerette dahlias, distinct varieties—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Bowl or vase decoration—P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; W. C. Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y., second.

Basket cactus dahlias—P. W. Popp, first. Vase ball-shaped double dahlias—P. W. Popp, second.

Decorative exhibit—John F. Anderson, Bernardsville, N. J., first.

General View of the Prize-winning Flowers at the New York Show of the American Dahlia Society.

Box of dahlias—Leonard & Weber, Trenton, N. J., first.

Vase single or duplex dahlias—P. W. Popp, first; Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., second. Twelve cactus dahlias—P. W. Popp, first; W. C. Noonan, second.

Vase new seedlings—J. Kirby, Huntington, N. Y., first.

Smallest dahlia in show—Alfred E. Doty, New Haven, Conn.

Among the special exhibits were fine displays of seedling dahlias by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; seedlings and new named varieties by W. G. Tyler, Portland, Ore., and the seedlings Fordhook Beauty and Fordhook White, by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.

American Institute Show.

The list of awards at the dahlia show of the American Institute, in conjunction with which the American Dahlia Society held its annual exhibition, is as follows:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Collection fifty varieties—W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass., first; J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., second.

Collection twenty-five varieties—W. D. Hathaway, first; J. H. Slocombe, second.

Collection ten varieties—J. H. Slocombe, first; D. V. Howell, Peconic, N. Y., second.

One hundred single dahlias—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; Mills & Co., second.

One hundred cactus dahlias—W. D. Hathaway, first; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., second.

One hundred pompon dahlias—N. H. Cotton & Son, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

GARDENERS AND AMATEURS.

Fifty varieties, four types—John Harding, gardener to J. F. Moreau, Greens Farms, Conn., first; James Kirby, gardener to William J. Mathieson, Huntington, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five varieties, three types—W. C. Noonan, gardener to Mrs. C. F. Cartledge, Locust Valley, N. Y., first; James Kirby, second.

Twelve varieties—P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; W. C. Noonan, second.

Fifty single dahlias—W. C. Noonan, first; P. W. Popp, second.

Fifty cactus dahlias—W. C. Noonan, first; P. W. Popp, second.

Fifty Pompon dahlias—Oscar Carlson, gardener to Mrs. A. B. Jennings, Fairfield, Conn., first. Mr. Carlson also was first for best six varieties of show and fancy, decorative, pompon and single dahlias.

OPEN TO ALL.

Twenty-five white—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first.

Twenty-five pink—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first.

BARS NEW ENGLAND GREENS.

J. G. Sanders, in charge of inspection matters for the state of Pennsylvania and one of the most apprehensive of all our insect fighters, has issued a notice of quarantine against Christmas trees and greens from certain parts of New England. The notice says in part:

An extremely dangerous and destructive pest known as the gypsy moth, originally imported from Europe, has become established throughout considerable portions of New England, and is causing much damage. In spite of an expenditure of more than $14,000,000 of state and government monies for control and eradication work, this pest has continued to spread to new areas. The introduction and establishment of this pest in Pennsylvania is possible by means of egg masses on various evergreen trees cut in the infested districts of New England and transported for Christmas decoration.

Since this dangerous pest is not known to exist in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and believing it important to protect the horticultural interests from invasion, this department promulgates the following quarantine against certain plant shipments from portions of New England.

By virtue of authority conferred by an act of legislation approved June 29, 1917, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture hereby prohibits the shipment, transportation, acceptance, receipt or sale or other disposal in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of any coniferous (evergreen) trees, such as spruce, arbor vitae (white cedar), fir, hemlock, or pine, known and described as "Christmas trees," and parts thereof, and also decorative plants, such as holly and laurel, known and described as "Christmas greens or greenery," which were cut or originated in the gypsy moth quarantine area as bounded, maintained and described by the Federal Horticultural Board.

It is further ordered (1) that any plant materials described above received in this state from the above quarantined area, shall be destroyed as a public nuisance. (2) In case of doubt in regard to the origin of any such prohibited plant material, the burden of proof shall be upon the owner or shipper.

Lexington, Ky.—G. M. Reburn, of Chicago, was here last week and in calling on the trade found that nearly everyone said summer business has been better than in former years. There has been a good, steady run of sales and funeral work has been in heavier demand than heretofore. All the greenhouse sheds here are full of coal, in anticipation of trouble getting fuel in the winter.

CARNATIONS

SMALL, DISEASED PLANTS.

I am sending you under separate cover some diseased carnation plants. I have a house of these that are more or less affected. Would you advise trying to nurse this stock through, or would it be better to replant with new stock? What is the best method of fighting this trouble?
D. H.—S. C.

In my opinion, it would not pay you to nurse along these carnation plants. Even if they were not diseased, they are so small that you could not expect them to yield even half a crop of blooms. By this time, plants that were benched from pots should show at least ten or twelve young breaks, while those from the field must show that many or more, if they are to give a satisfactory yield during the early part of the season. I would advise you to pull up these plants, refill your benches with good, fresh soil and replant with good, field-grown plants. They will give you several times their cost, over and above what you could get from those you have now. Do not make the mistake of retaining the soil that is in the benches now. The chances are that this soil is not in good condition, or your plants would be making a better showing.

REMEDY FOR THRIPS.

My carnations are developing splendidly, but there are a number of thrips and bugs on them that I would like to get rid of at once. I am enclosing a clipping from The Review giving directions on how to exterminate thrips, but as the text does not seem complete I would like to have you print instructions in greater detail.
W. E. P. —Okla.

Arsenic, when properly applied, is one of the most efficacious insect remedies we know of, but if not handled carefully it is capable of doing as much damage as any one thing you can get hold of. The article in question, which appeared in The Review a couple of years ago, was written to warn growers against carelessness in using a formula we had recommended for the extermination of red spider. The formula had been given to us by a friend. We tried it out carefully and found it most satisfactory, but dangerous if not mixed according to directions. Another friend reported to us that an employee had mixed a batch and applied it to a 200-foot house of carnations with disastrous results. On inquiry he found that the employee had followed directions to the letter, except that after having the mixture ready to use he boiled it and thereby heightened the burning property of the arsenic.

The formula is as follows: Mix one pound of arsenic with five pounds of white sugar. Then add enough water to make a thick syrup. Use one drug ounce of this to one gallon of water and spray it on the plants with a fine spray.

Remedies of this nature are all right in aggravated cases where ordinary remedies fail, but ordinarily we prefer to use preventive measures. For several years we have used salt to keep off red spider, with the best of success. We spray the plants at least once each week and find this sufficient to keep them away. For thrips we spray the plants regularly with one of the nicotine extracts and find it most satisfactory. We find, almost invariably, that when a grower complains of thrips, the spraying or fumigation is done in a haphazard sort of way.

There are a number of methods of applying these remedies, each one good only when applied properly and regularly. We spray the plants once each week for thrips, as regularly as the spraying day comes around. The man who does the spraying has nothing else to do that day until the spraying is done. We have found that is the only way to keep thrips away from the carnations. Red spider is not so persistent as thrips, but it pays to keep the place unhealthy for them, rather than to adopt heroic measures to get rid of them after they get a hold.
A. F. J. B.

SUPPORTING THE PLANTS.

Information will be appreciated regarding how to use wire lengthwise and cord crosswise to support carnations. What gauge of wire is used? Is it best to use a heavier wire for the outer rows? How far from the ground is the first support placed? Is this method of support considered generally the best for carnations?

L. H. H.—O.

Perhaps more carnations are supported by the wire and string method than any other, or possibly all others put together. The most modern method is a combination of the wire and string method and the wire ring support. One of the numerous styles of wire rings is used for the lower support. These are put into place as soon as the planting is finished, if the plants need supporting, or as soon after as the main weeding and scratching have been finished. We prefer to leave them off as long as the plants will stand up properly, as it is easier to work the soil without the obstruction of the supports. When the shoots begin to lengthen and additional supports are needed, we stretch the wires lengthwise of the bench, one between each row and one on the outside on each side of the bench.

We use the same gauge of wire throughout, preferably 15 or 16-gauge. We prefer the soft steel, galvanized wire. Then we cut strings of a proper length to reach across the bench, allowing enough length to provide for winding once around each wire and tying on each side of the bench. Each one of the two men working at the job will take half of these strings. Each will start a string from his side of the bench, wrapping the string around each wire until he has reached the middle, when they will exchange strings and proceed across to the edge wire, where it is tied. Two handy men or boys will tie the strings on one tier of a 200-foot bench in one hour. Two tiers, in addition to the lower wire ring, are usually all that is needed, but sometimes we find it necessary to apply a third tier of the wire and string. If you have not the wire rings, you can use the wire and string method altogether from the bottom up. Be sure you stretch the wire tightly.

DAHLIA SHOW AWARDS

DISPLAYS OF HIGH QUALITY.

Attendance Large.

The third annual meeting and exhibition of the American Dahlia Society, held in conjunction with the eighty-sixth annual fair of the American Institute, an account of which appeared in last week's issue of The Review, came to a close at the Engineering building, New York city, September 27. The two exhibitions were considered the finest in the history of either society, both in the quantity and quality of the dahlias shown, and the attendance during the three days of the exhibition was fully up to that of former years. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., estimated that more than 10,000 flowers were shown.

The exhibitions were under the management of W. B. Rickards and Secretary Eggleston, of the American Institute. During the exhibition music was furnished by an orchestra, which added much to the show. The combined exhibitions were so successful this year that it already seems certain that the same arrangement will be made next year.

The judges of the exhibits were Peter Duff, William Turner, J. G. McNicoll, Prof. F. Hall, J. C. Clarke and George H. Hall, who made the following awards in classes wherein commercial growers were allowed to compete:

Display covering 100 square feet—W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., first.

Display covering fifty square feet—N. Harold Cotton & Son, Wappingers Falls, N. Y., second.

Six vases corollate dahlias, distinct varieties—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Bowl or vase decoration—P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; W. C. Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y., second.

Basket cactus dahlias—P. W. Popp, first.

Vase ball-shaped double dahlias—P. W. Popp, second.

Decorative exhibit—John F. Anderson, Bernardsville, N. J., first.

General View of the Prize-winning Flowers at the New York Show of the American Dahlia Society.

Box of dahlias—Leonard & Weber, Trenton, N. J., first.

Vase single or duplex dahlias—P. W. Popp, first; Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., second. Twelve cactus dahlias—P. W. Popp, first; W. C. Noonan, second.

Vase new seedlings—J. Kirby, Huntington, N. Y., first.

Smallest dahlia in show—Alfred E. Doty, New Haven, Conn.

Among the special exhibits were fine displays of seedling dahlias by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; seedlings and new named varieties by W. G. Tyler, Portland, Ore., and the seedlings Fordhook Beauty and Fordhook White, by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.

American Institute Show.

The list of awards at the dahlia show of the American Institute, in conjunction with which the American Dahlia Society held its annual exhibition, is as follows:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Collection fifty varieties—W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass., first; J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., second.

Collection twenty-five varieties—W. D. Hathaway, first; J. H. Slocombe, second.

Collection ten varieties—J. H. Slocombe, first; D. V. Howell, Peconic, N. Y., second.

One hundred single dahlias—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; Mills & Co., second.

One hundred cactus dahlias—W. D. Hathaway, first; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., second.

One hundred pompon dahlias—N. H. Cotton & Son, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

GARDENERS AND AMATEURS.

Fifty varieties, four types—John Harding, gardener to J. F. Moreau, Greens Farms, Conn., first; James Kirby, gardener to William J. Mathieson, Huntington, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five varieties, three types—W. C. Noonan, gardener to Mrs. C. F. Cartledge, Locust Valley, N. Y., first; James Kirby, second.

Twelve varieties—P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; W. C. Noonan, second.

Fifty single dahlias—W. C. Noonan, first; P. W. Popp, second.

Fifty cactus dahlias—W. C. Noonan, first; P. W. Popp, second.

Fifty pompon dahlias—Oscar Carlson, gardener to Mrs. A. B. Jennings, Fairfield, Conn., first. Mr. Carlson also was first for best six varieties of show and fancy, decorative, pompon and single dahlias.

OPEN TO ALL.

Twenty-five white—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first.

Twenty-five pink—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first.

Twenty-five any other color—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; Alfred E. Doty, New Haven, Conn., second.

Twenty-five yellow cactus—Leonard & Weber, Trenton, N. J., first.

Twenty-five cactus, any other color—Max Schneider, gardener to Peter Hauch, Jr., East Orange, N. J., first; N. Harold Cotton & Son, second.

Ten varieties peony flowered dahlias—C. Louis Alling, first; N. Harold Cotton & Son, second.

Ten varieties cactus dahlias—C. Louis Alling, first; N. Harold Cotton & Son, second.

Eight varieties pompon dahlias—N. Harold Cotton & Son, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Eight varieties single dahlias—Mrs. Otis P. Chapman, Jr., Westerly, R. I., first; N. Harold Cotton & Son, second.

Vase six varieties peony flowered dahlias—P. W. Popp, first; N. Harold Cotton & Son, second.

Vase six varieties cactus dahlias—Alfred E. Doty, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

S. A. F. PUBLICITY FUND

HOW THE MONEY ROLLS IN!

W. F. Therkildson ambitiously planned
To make flowers popular o'er all the land.
The plan looked uncertain till live Joe Heacock Said, "I'll give five hundred"; then up went the stock.

Gee Whiz! How the money rolled in!

Some gave a hundred; some gave more;
They boosted the fund with a mighty roar.
When the excitement subsided, the delegates found

They'd raised twelve thousand at a single bound.
Gee Whiz! How the money rolled in!

It's still rolling in, sums large and small;
The florists are nobly answering the call.
Then great magazines, the big business powers,
Will herald the slogan, "Always send flowers."
Gee Whiz! How the money will roll in!

THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Birth of Idea in 1915.

At the convention of the S. A. F. in San Francisco, August, 1915, in my address, I called attention to the publicity question as follows:

"It is needless to point out the value of publicity for disseminating proper knowledge and educating the public in the more general use of horticultural products. It is necessary for the society to organize a publicity bureau, whose work would be along the lines of a campaign, directed primarily for the annual increase of the sale of flowers, plants and plant products through new and varied channels, and also to take means to prevent any society, corporation or individual from decrying the use of these products for special occasions. We often learn of repeated attempts made to discourage the use of our products. Such cases should be taken up by the publicity bureau and every means possible taken to offset the effects of such adverse influences.

"I am much in favor of a standing committee of five members, whose duty it shall be to cooperate with the retailers, wholesalers and producers, so that our business shall be brought before the public in a much more favorable and effective light than it has been in the past. We should have recourse to the leading daily papers throughout the country, which I believe will gladly publish from time to time articles on commercial floriculture. This will have a wonderful effect, for it will bring before the American people the merits of our business and the enjoyment derived from the use of our products.

"The hour has come when we should give this question our best thought and action. I think greater benefits can be secured from aggressive work of this nature than any we can engage in. I feel that the results would justify a reasonable expenditure annually for the maintenance of such a committee."

A Few Dollars for More Dollars.

At the meeting of the board of directors held in Philadelphia, March, 1916, the by-laws were amended to create a committee of five on publicity. This committee was made permanent by the act of the convention held at Houston, Tex. Not until this year has any practical work been done.

Under the guidance of the chairman,

W. F. Therkildson, the work done at the New York convention has taken on a practical and effective form, something we have been trying to do for thirty years. The members present at the New York meeting subscribed about $15,000, showing a splendid spirit of cooperation. All those who make a business of floriculture ought to do his part by contributing to this fund. The committee needs about $50,000, of which the above-named sum has already been raised.

We should all unite and give our support to an enterprise of this kind; the beneficial results of such action taken at this time can hardly be estimated.

The list is now open. Let us hope that every florist who can afford it will give some amount to keep up the good work. Indirectly he will get it back tenfold.

Patrick Welch.

A BIG BUSINESS BOOST.

Totty Talks Turkey.

Regarding the $50,000 that the florists of the country are raising for nationwide publicity in the use and sale of flowers, I think if every florist stopped to realize the benefit of concerted publicity, the comparatively small amount asked for would be subscribed in a week. Right now is the time to start such an advertising program, just when the fall season is opening up and the mighty effect where many minds are concentrated on some particular object will be at once apparent. This is not a situation where one can say, "Let the other fellow do it," and the other fellow can say, "Let George do it," etc. Every man with a spark of business ability should be able to see his own particular interest in this campaign. This applies with more particular force to the retailers than to the growers, since the retailer will be the man who will immediately reap the benefit from this program. While I am not belittling for one moment the work of the grower and what he should do, he will in most cases willingly do his share, also.

Too many retailers think that all they have to do is sit in their stores and wait for the public to come to them. I have heard retailers argue that the growers should take care of the publicity game, exactly as the wholesale producers of matches and soap or other like products do. They forget that the man who advertises soap or matches does not have the loss that the growers do, because soap or matches sell just as well next month or next year. But growers are handling a perishable product, and should not be asked to carry the whole burden of advertising for the sale of the stock.

A Wonderful Opportunity.

I think this is a wonderful chance for every retailer, not alone in large cities but in every community. If he will get the literature put out by the publicity committee and turn it over to his own local paper, supplementing it with a fair-sized ad calling the attention of his local people to the product he is handling, he will soon find his sales largely increased. He should let the people know he is a member of the publicity committee in its nation-wide campaign. In this way he will find a new dignity attaching to his store and to his ideas of business, and this should have a wonderful effect on his cash register. I emphasize the retailer's position in this matter because he is the medium between the wholesaler and the ultimate consumer. Without his active aid, much of the effectiveness of the advertising will be lost, whereas if every retailer could be enlisted to put even a card in his window announcing the fact that he is a part of this publicity program, it would add to the continuity and reiteration of advertising, which, as every advertising man knows, is the basis of success.

Every contributor to this fund can rest assured that every dollar contributed will be used in a good and proper manner. He also will have the use of the advertising experience of successful men, should he care to ask for it at any time. A recent note from the publicity committee states that cuts or plates can be procured at a figure that would be impossible except in this wholesale way. These can be procured direct from the committee. Window cards and posters will be furnished at a price barely covering the cost of printing. These will be written by experts who know the advertising game thoroughly. In fact, the benefits of publicity through the committee are unlimited.

The Growers Will Profit.

The growers, also, should not stand aside and say: "This is the retailer's business, since he is selling to the customer, and it is only boosting his end of the game." If the retailer sells more, he has to get more flowers, the grower will have to produce more and so the benefit is carried out to the end of the chapter.

This is a splendid chance to show what can be done by concerted effort along these lines. "In union there is strength," and I predict when this program of publicity is well under way, the appropriation for its continuation will be increased year after year. It is absolutely the biggest thing in sight, supplementing as it does the work of the National Flower Shows, which have been educating the people in the love of flowers, and in this way have increased the sales considerably.

A motion is under consideration in the New York Florists' Club, to be taken up at its meeting October 8, to contribute $1,000 to this advertising fund. The motion undoubtedly will go through and will most likely be followed by other florists' clubs throughout the country. The national organization, the S. A. F., will also contribute generously for this purpose, but this does not have the direct personal interest that would come if 1,000 florists throughout the country pledged themselves to give from $10 to $100 each.

While this general advertising program was promulgated by the S. A. F., every florist and grower, whether he belongs to the S. A. F. or not (as a matter of fact every florist should be a member of this society), should feel it a personal duty on his part to contribute to this fund.

Every florist will benefit, but naturally the man who contributes to the fund and displays the posters and literature gotten out by the official headquarters will benefit more, since people seeing the advertisements in the magazines and seeing the posters displayed in florists' windows will be more forcibly reminded that they want flowers and will, of course, patronize the store where the "reminder" appears.

Get busy, Brother Florist, and show the national publicity committee that you are with them in this enterprise, which is bound to react beneficially on every branch of the trade.

Charles H. Totty.

PRESIDENT KERR AID FUND.

Robert C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., while on his way from Houston, Tex., to the meeting of the National Flower Show committee in St. Louis September 29, and to the F. T. D. convention in Detroit, stopped off at Dallas, Tex., and visited several florists in the interest of the S. A. F. publicity fund. Mr. Kerr called on five florists in Dallas and each one contributed. The subscriptions totaled $135. The contributors and amounts are as follows:

Dallas Floral Co.....	$25.00
Drumm Seed & Floral Co.....	50.00
J. E. McAdam.....	25.00
Texas Nursery Co.....	25.00
H. O. Hanna.....	10.00

"This only demonstrates," said Mr. Kerr, "the great interest the florists are taking in this movement, and I think it will be an easy matter to get at least seventy-five per cent of the florists as subscribers to this fund if we can only reach them. It is up to the interested workers to get busy."

WHICH "WILLING" ARE YOU?

These days it requires team work to get results—the airmen in France now are operating in teams. So it is with the publicity campaign, which was properly launched at the recent convention, when about one-fifth of the $50,000 required was raised in a few minutes. Were you there? Did you do your bit? If not, why not send now a liberal donation to Secretary John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City, who is receiving funds in behalf of the S. A. F. specially appointed publicity committees?

This campaign was started for your especial benefit. It will largely increase the sale of your flowers and plants. It is intended to impress the public with the fact that flowers are necessities, not luxuries, and to increase the war-time demand for these necessities. The energetic, self-sacrificing men on these committees are freely giving their time and brains to the good work, and you should support them by standing your share of the expense. Don't be a slacker or say, "Let George do it." You will receive your share of the increased business or protection and should willingly do your share in helping finance the plan.

"What a willing pair of horses you have," said a farmer to his neighbor. "Yes," replied the neighbor, "one is willing to work and the other is willing to let him." Don't be that kind of horse. Do your team share of pulling. If each of the 21,000 florists in the United States contributes his fair share of the expense to this well-organized publicity campaign, the florists'

"SUBJECT TO DELAY ACCOUNT CONGESTION"

THE express companies have served notice on the trade that shipments of cut flowers and plants will be accepted only at the owner's risk of delay. The receipts given shippers either are stamped or soon will be stamped to that effect. The companies even request the use of other means of transportation wherever possible and intimate that increasing congestion of traffic may compel other "restraints." The notice is as follows:

ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY SOUTHERN EXPRESS COMPANY

To patrons of express companies:

The volume of traffic now being tendered to the express companies is substantially larger than the corresponding season a year ago, while the express car equipment has been materially lessened through the necessity of using baggage and express cars in troop movement and the handling of other government traffic. The express terminals in the larger cities in the east have their limitations and many of these terminals are now handling their maximum business.

In order to utilize terminals and cars to their utmost capacity, it is requested that express patrons assist the companies by preparing their express shipments as early in the day as possible, thereby avoiding congestion in the final pick-up.

It is also requested that freight service and motor trucks be used for the shorter haul traffic in and around the congested districts and that only such shipments for nearby points as actually demand express service be offered to the express companies, so that traffic requiring expedited service to and from the more distant points may be cared for.

It is only by the closest co-operation between express shippers and the carriers and mutual consideration of the difficulties confronting each other, that we can minimize the restraints which may have to be enforced upon the customary use of the usual channels of transportation.

The trouble thus far is in the larger cities. Those who order stock from such points can protect themselves to a considerable extent by ordering so that shipment can be made early in the day—shippers will protect their customers by seeing to it that shipments are turned over to the carriers as far as possible ahead of train time. While losses due to delay caused by congestion will not be entertained, the carriers will do everything possible to take care of perishable goods.

business will receive the impetus it should have but has never before known.

It is greatly to the credit of the officers of the S. A. F. that our organization has put the publicity plan into active operation while other organizations have been powwowing and discussing as to how it could be done. All credit, too, to President Kerr and the initial subscribers who launched the plan; also to the committees who are merging their individual interests in those of the general welfare. If you have not yet put up your share, send it at once to Secretary Young. This publicity campaign was inaugurated for you; don't you allow it to lapse.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Greensburg, Ind.—Creditors of the Bertsch Floral Co., which made an assignment last February, will receive "little, if anything," according to Edgar E. Hite, an attorney of Greensburg, who was appointed trustee of the company's property. Mr. Hite says that after the preferred creditors are paid the assets of the company will amount to about $200, a sum declared to be only sufficient to pay the costs of settling the company's affairs. The liabilities amount to between $6,000 and $8,000. The greenhouses, stock and other property of the company had been mortgaged.

Newport, R. I.—John C. Hass has made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, to William G. Sweeney. No statement has been made as to the assets or liabilities, but the assignee is at work upon the schedules.

It is understood that Mr. Hass has gone to Detroit, Mich., to engage in another line of business.

DAFFODILS FOR FORCING.

I have some daffodils growing in the field and I want to bring them in and force them. In appearance they are nearly like Von Sion or the old Dutch daffodils and I should like to know what variety they are. The flowers are double and golden yellow in color. Shall I lift the bulbs, dry them and plant them in the fall as other bulbs for forcing are handled, or should they be lifted in the fall, potted without drying and left in the pots until the time to force them? I notice that all bulbs do not bloom. How old should a bulb be to insure blooming and how can I pick out the ones that will bloom?
S. H. F.—Pa.

I have not experimented much with home-grown bulbs of narcissi. I am aware that in some localities they are reported as doing well, but while European bulbs of good quality have been procurable at such low prices as have prevailed, it has not paid to bother with old bulbs from our own fields and gardens. Probably your daffodil is the double Von Sion, or Narcissus Telamoniensis plenus. Lift the bulbs at once, selecting those of the largest size. Store them in flats until October, when they can be started in flats. The smaller bulbs you can plant outside again. These narcissi are propagated from offsets. Do not expect too much from your bulbs; their flowering qualities may not prove to be all that you expect.

PREPARE TO FIGHT FOR U. S.

Many Florists in Training.

The mobilization of the new national army at the various cantonments continues to take many florists from their peaceful occupations to transform them quickly into trained fighting men. The Review each week prints the names of those who have gone. Others will go soon. Information about them will be appreciated by both The Review and the friends of the men.

Preparing to Fly.

James C. Warner, assistant to his father, J. W. Warner, as manager of the Miami Floral Co., Miami, Fla., enlisted in the aviation department of the U. S. army signal corps two months ago and went to Fort Screven, Ga., where he was given the preliminary training in the art of flying. Recently his company was transferred to "somewhere in Texas," where the finishing touches will be put on this young army aviator. Mr. Warner is the oldest son of J. W. Warner and had been associated with the management of the Miami Floral Co. for several years.

Beckwith, of Binghamton, at Camp Dix.

T. W. Beckwith was one of the contingent that left Binghamton, N. Y., recently for Camp Dix, the national army camp at Wrightstown, N. J. Mr. Beckwith is vice-president of the Binghamton Florists' Association.

New Yorker with Canadians.

One of the many New Yorkers who heeded the call of the Canadian drive for recruits in the United States recently was A. H. Pike, of the Wadley & Smythe force. Mr. Pike enlisted and has gone to Europe. He was made a sergeant. Before he was with Wadley & Smythe, Mr. Pike was with the Bryn Mawr Flower Shop, Philadelphia. Mrs. Pike has joined the Wadley & Smythe force during the husband's absence.

Lee Betz, of New Orleans, Goes.

"We are proud to advise that Lee Betz, who was in our employ for a long period, has just severed his connection with us to join the army. Mr. Betz is a fine physical specimen and is anxious to go to the front. He is now stationed at Fort Pike, Ark." Thus does Harry Papworth of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, La., write to The Review.

Clody Is Ambulance Driver.

It is a far cry from delivering flowers in Chicago to delivering wounded soldiers to hospitals "somewhere" in France, but that is the shift in the ambulatory career of L. E. Clody, son of Edward Clody, the Chicago retailer. Young Clody was driving his father's delivery car when an ambulance company was being formed at Northwestern University, and, being possessed of a spirit for the adventurous, and a desire to do his "bit," he enlisted as a driver. That was months ago, and now young Clody is at the base hospital at Chillicothe, O., after a period of training at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Dayton Florists to War.

Dayton, O., has contributed several members of the trade to the various fighting forces of the United States.

Student Aviator James C. Warner.

G. Hirsch, of the Dayton Floral Co., will join the field artillery, and C. Diedrick, of the same company, will become a member of the naval reserve. Tony Lewis, chauffeur for the Heiss Co., left September 19 for Camp Sherman. Herbert Bartholomew, son of George W. Bartholomew, is at Fort Sheridan, Ill., with the hospital corps. J. Hendrick, a brother of Mrs. L. B. Johnson, has joined the Twelfth Aero Squadron at the Wright flying field, Fairfield, near Dayton.

Ohioans Called.

Thomas Zetlitz, of Lima, O., a member of the family of that name which is prominent in the florists' trade, has joined the colors. Mr. Zetlitz now is at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O., undergoing the training preliminary to being sent to Europe. Two other Ohioans who have answered the call are the two sons of Mr. Magee, part owner of the Scottwood Greenhouses, Toledo.

Two Go from Los Angeles.

Howard Turner, son of H. W. Turner, Los Angeles, Cal., has been drawn into service and now is at the training camp at American Lake, Washington. J. Whitehead, foreman at the Beverly Hills Nurseries, Los Angeles, was also among those drafted.

Lancaster, Pa., Sends One.

P. K. Murphy, with B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa., has left for the training camp at Augusta, Ga. The Lancaster County Florists' Club at a recent meeting expressed its appreciation of Mr. Murphy's patriotic action in going to war.

Denver Man Called.

Among those drafted from Denver, Colo., and ordered to report for duty October 3 was W. W. Wilmore, Jr., well known among the florists of that city. Mr. Wilmore left for Fort Riley, Kan., where he will undergo training preparatory to sailing for Europe.

Walter Mott's Son Called.

Walter C. Mott, son of Walter Mott, representative of Hammond's Paint and Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., has been drafted into the new national army, and soon leaves his home at Schenectady, N. Y., for Camp Nivens, near Ayer, Mass. Probably no one man is better known to the trade than the elder Mr. Mott, whose acquaintance is as wide as the country, while his writings in The Review are eagerly read.

Retailer a Staff Officer.

I. A. Simmons, retail florist on West Sixty-third street, Chicago, long connected with the Illinois National Guard, is in active service as a captain on the staff of General Dixon, adjutant general of the state of Illinois. Captain Simmons has his headquarters at Springfield, but his duties require frequent trips to Houston, Tex., and other camps where Illinois troops are training for the great adventure. During Captain Simmons' absence his store is being carried on by his daughter.

CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW.

F. R. Williams, chairman of the trade display committee of the Cleveland flower show, reports that the following firms have reserved space in the trade display section:

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.
A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.
Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.
Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.
Stumpp & Walter Co., New York.
Carl Hagenburger, Cleveland.
The Friedley Co., Cleveland.
The Naumann Co., Cleveland.

The final premium list has been mailed to 2,000 members of the American Rose Society, American Carnation Society and Chrysanthemum Society of America. Growers who may not be included in this list and are desirous of securing copies of it, are requested to send names and addresses to M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader-News Bldg., Cleveland, O. There is a total of more than $2,800 in cash prizes, cups and medals.

Lubbock, Tex.—J. A. Brown, formerly with the Baker Bros. Co., of Fort Worth, Tex., has started a florists' business here.

Vegetable Forcing

HORSE-RADISH FLEA-BEETLE.

An insect that now menaces the growing of horse-radish, a $400,000 crop in the United States, is also threatening other more important members of the cabbage and mustard family. This insect, introduced from Europe, has been named the horse-radish flea-beetle by F. H. Chittenden, an entomologist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who, with Neal F. Howard, has described the pest and discussed its habits and control in Bulletin 535 of the Department of Agriculture. If efforts are made to suppress it now, say the specialists, future damage, should the insect adapt itself to other crops, may be prevented. The beetle does not yet occur generally, but it has been found in parts of the country from New York and New Jersey to Quebec, Canada, and westward to Nebraska.

The horse-radish flea-beetle is oval in outline, about one-eighth of an inch long, and has light yellow or cream-colored wing-covers bordered with black. A black band running the length of the back of the adults also enables this beetle to be distinguished from other species in this country. The larvae mine the petioles or midribs of leaves, while the adults, which hop, feed on the leaves, causing the characteristic flea-beetle injury—withering and dying—or gouge deep pits in the midribs.

No systematic control program has been adopted as yet. Bordeaux mixture, a powerful repellent against flea-beetles, applied on the first appearance of the insect will prevent much injury, and if arsenate of lead is used later it should hold the insect in check.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Hartford Test Garden.

The committee composed of John F. Huss, W. R. Pierson and Alex. Cumming, Jr., visited the Hartford test garden, July 7, 1917. Few new varieties had been entered in the two previous years, owing, doubtless, to the unsettled existing conditions. J. F. Huss, whose duty it is to secure new entries, is constantly in touch with foreign introducers and reports that, while it is almost impossible to secure entries at present, he is distinctly encouraged by the general attitude towards the test garden movement and expects that better results will come with better conditions.

The following preliminary report covers the entries:

Seedling No. 512.—Not in condition to warrant final judgment, but the most promising variety among the new entries. Habit, color and growth excellent. Worthy of commendation.

Seedling No. 77.—Not in condition to warrant final judgment; color and trusses good; habit evidently climbing, but not well enough defined.

Mrs. George Gordon.—Not in condition to warrant final judgment, but promising. Color, rosy pink, flushed silver pink. Growth, robust and healthy. Habit, good.

Mrs. Bertrand J. Walker.—Not in condition to warrant final judgment. Color, cerise-pink. Growth, vigorous and healthy. Habit, good.

Among those previously judged it was interesting to note that the varieties which received high scores were in fine condition, fully confirming the judgment of the committee.

Lady Pirrie—Reddish salmon in color, although past its best; looked vigorous and healthy, and evidently made a profuse showing a week earlier.

Robin Hood.—Rosy scarlet. Noted last season as one of the few roses which improve in color as the season advances. Shows the sturdy characteristics of a hybrid perpetual. It was in fine condition, the bed being one of the best in the garden.

Panama, Crimson Champion and Killarney Queen were also prominent among the kinds in good condition. The latter is evidently the best of the Killarney type for garden purposes.

Arnold Janssen.—Although not entered in competition, a bed of the new Arnold Janssen impressed the judges so favorably that it was considered worthy of recording as a decided acquisition among hybrid tea roses. In color it is a deep carmine, attractive, and appears to have all of the points essential to a good garden rose.

A few of the earlier entries show signs of deterioration. Mrs. Hugh Dickson, which was of considerable promise last season, is weak in constitution and did not winter well.

Varieties of Note.

In the rose garden proper, the roses were at their best. Hybrid perpetuals are depended on for the chief display, but the hybrid teas must eventually displace them. A bed of Radiance, at its best, was a feature of the entire garden, Gruss an Teplitz being a close second. Other hybrid teas, good enough for more extensive culture, were: Koningin Carolina, Captain Christy, Kaiserin A. Victoria, Augustine Guinoisseau, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Caroline Testout, White La France.

Hybrid perpetuals noted as worthy of extensive culture are:

Frau Karl Druschki.—The finest white in the garden.

A bed of Olio, in proximity to Margaret Dickson, appears the better of the two, as the latter produces too much blind wood.

Prince Camille de Rohan, Baron Bonstetten and Jean Liabaud were the best of the deep crimson.

Captain Hayward, Alfred Colomb, Oscar Cordel, Paul's Early Blush, Oakmont, Robert Duncan, Magna Charta, Madame G. Luizet, Marchioness of Lorne, Mrs. B. G. Sharman-Crawford, Victor Verdier and Charles Bonnet, thornless, the latter a Bourbon hybrid, were, in the opinion of the judges, the best of the varieties composing a large collection.

1918 Exhibition.

The Hartford rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., is a popular resort of the first-class for residents and visitors, and the men who first devised this garden for public exhibition brought to more general notice the beauty of the rose as a decorative shrub than was commonly realized. Next June, 1918, the plan is to have an exhibition when the rose will be in its fullest glory, which will be national in its scope. The American Rose Society is pledged to be there in full force.

SPRAY FOR STEVIAS.

I am sending a sample taken from stevias infested by an insect. I would like to know what the pest is and how to fight it.

E. G. G.—Kan.

The specimen was badly shriveled on account of its long journey and I was unable to see just what damage had been done to the foliage. I would suggest that you use a nicotine spray which will kill leaf miners and which contains sufficient poison to kill any insects devouring the leaves from the outside.

C. W.

What's in a name? Well, Sam Bloom and J. A. Budlong conduct "flowerishing" establishments at Chicago.

A great sigh of relief punctuated the good news last week that a Rotterdam steamer had docked at New York September 25 with 26,000 cases of sure-enough Dutch bulbs on board. Another large batch of bulbs is reported to be on the way over. The bulbs are late, but better late than never, say many.

There are knock-down boats and knock-down furniture, so why not have a knock-down exhibition building for the 1918 National Flower Show at St. Louis? At least that was the suggestion of H. P. Knoble, the Cleveland, to the S. A. F. show committeemen, who stopped off at Cleveland last week while en route to the St. Louis meeting. The show committee is said to be having difficulty in providing housing for the national exhibition, so Mr. Knoble pointed out that a spacious exhibition building owned by the Cleveland Chamber of Industry could be dismantled and shipped to St. Louis for erection there. The plan is said to be practical, but dependent upon building regulations at St. Louis. The visitors entertained by H. P. Knoble, George Bates and F. C. W. Brown were: Patrick Welch, George Asmus, J. J. Hess, C. H. Totty, Thomas Roland, Adolph Farenwald and John Young.

That hard luck comes in bunches, is the opinion of J. G. Gamble, of Bowers-ton, O., whose dwelling, greenhouse and store room were badly gutted by fire early on the morning of September 29, the members of the family escaping from the burning home in their night clothes. In an effort to save something, Mr. Gamble had the additional misfortune to sprain his ankle.

A bit of shrewdness with a dash of good luck has brought easy sleep o' nights to John Grande, Sr., of Indianapolis. Last year Mr. Grande had a contract with a coal dealer for coal at $1.65 per ton at the mine. Foreseeing the greater scarcity and higher prices of coal, Mr. Grande slowly purchased more of that article at the contract price than he needed and soon had his bins full enough for the forthcoming winter.

That study in physics known as the transference of energy or power was neatly exemplified at St. Louis this week, but all to the sorrow of the C. Young & Sons Co. It chanced that a wagon got in front of a street car, and the street car imparted so much of its momentum to the wagon that said vehicle cleared the street and crashed into the delivery automobile of the Young & Sons Co., which was standing at the curb. It set back Young's about $500 for repairs.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The tide turned in the cut flower market last week and the sales September 29 proved that the season had begun. Fortunately for the retailers, the frosts have not yet seriously injured outdoor flowers, and great quantities of these were used to fill the gap caused by limited receipts of roses and carnations. The aster season practically is over. A few fine flowers still arrive and are quickly absorbed. Another week will undoubtedly see the last of the asters. The same may be said of gladioli, which are about finished after a most successful season. Dahlias, untouched by the frosts, are arriving in quantities.

The chrysanthemum season is on in earnest. The finest Golden Glows the market has seen in some time arrived last week, and fancy prices were paid for the best of them. There also were limited arrivals of Smith's Advance, October Frost and Chrysolora mums. Carnations are short in arrivals and in stems. A few have sold at $1.50 per hundred, but $1 has been the general quotation. Lilies are down to $5 per hundred for the selects, and $2 and $3 per hundred for the rubrums and lower grades of longiflorums. Valley holds steady at $6 per hundred for the best and there is little of it at that price.

Orchid shipments have been increasing and prices are correspondingly weaker. None brought more than 50 cents each in the market September 29. Violets are here, and singles are in demand. Fifty cents per hundred was the top price. There is an abundance of hydrangeas, cosmos, tritomas, tuberose and zinnias. Roses were in good demand September 29. The best American Beauties were quoted at $30 and $35 per hundred. Other varieties also were higher in price and there was no oversupply.

Various Notes

The dahlias displayed at the shows of the American Dahlia Society and the American Institute last week, adorned the show windows of several of the stores this week. George L. Stillman's exhibit of more than 100 distinct varieties was shown at Alex. McConnell's.

The New York Florists' Club will meet at its rooms in the Grand Opera House building Monday evening, October 8. There will be a display of early chrysanthemums, while publicity will be the principal topic of discussion.

Several New York retailers and supply men attended the F. T. D. meeting in Detroit, October 2 and 3.

Dr. W. C. Deming gave an interesting lecture on "Growing Nut Trees" at Bronx park September 29. Dr. Stout will lecture at the same place on "Autumn Coloration" October 6.

The arrival of Dutch bulbs caused R. J. Irwin to postpone his hunting trip to Canada for a week so that he could give his personal attention to shipping the orders.

There was a special meeting of the New York Wholesale Florists' Association September 26. In the absence of President Dailedouze and Secretary Rigby, Vice-president Badgley presided and made a strong address in favor of a continuance of the Sunday closing rule. Only one of the fifty members of the organization so far has opposed the idea. It was determined to continue the experiment until November at least.

Walter Siebrecht left September 30 for California. A large shipment of orchid plants preceded him to Pasadena, where a greenhouse has already been secured. Mr. Siebrecht will be associated with his brother, Henry Siebrecht, Jr., in the orchid growing enterprise.

Joseph Fenrich has leased the first floor next his store and says he is to have shipments from Frank M. Mahon, Charles H. Totty and the Duckham-Pierson Co.

The next meeting of the American Dahlia Society will be held at the Grand hotel, New York, November 8.

Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society, gave two stereopticon lectures last week, one at Flushing, L. I., and the other at Lawrence, L. I. His patriotic appeal to the ladies present aroused great enthusiasm.

Miss Florence Cohen, bookkeeper for Lecakes, has returned from a vacation in Sullivan county, N. Y.

Percy Rigby and family have returned from a two weeks' vacation in the Adirondack mountains.

James Hart, of Madison, N. J., who had just recovered from a fall in which he sustained a broken rib, was struck by an automobile last week. One rib was broken and Mr. Hart is believed to have suffered internal injuries. He was taken to his home at Madison. Mr. Hart is one of the oldest retailers in New York and, because of his age, the injuries are serious.

William P. Ford is again in a hospital, it having been found necessary to perform a second operation on his knee. He expects to be back at his desk in ten days.

The Cadieux Co. had a beautiful dahlia table decoration at a dinner given for a number of hotel men last week. This company expects to open a branch store on Madison avenue early in November.

W. H. Greene, a grower of Tallahassee, Fla., was a visitor last week.

Jack Trepel, of Brooklyn, had the misfortune to have his automobile stolen September 29.

C. C. Trepel's new conservatory on the roof of Bloomingdale's has been completed. The store also has been enlarged and now has double its former capacity. Mr. Trepel has added another automobile to his delivery equipment.

William Kessler entertained his office force and a number of growers on an outing last week.

William Olm, now with the Cadieux Co., is a son of Matthias Olm, who was in the florists' business at Astoria, L. I., for twenty-five years and at Newark, N. J., for nearly as long a time. Mr. Olm, Jr., formerly was with the Bogart Co., and later with Woodrow & Marketos.

A. H. Pike, recently with Wadley & Smythe, and before that with the Bryn Mawr Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., enlisted with the Canadian troops and has gone to Europe. He has the rank of sergeant. Mrs. Pike has taken a position at the Wadley & Smythe store on Fifth avenue.

W. A. Manda has extended an invitation to the members of the New York Florists' Club to visit his conservatories at South Orange, N. J., with the club committee, which will make an inspection of the seedling dahlias there.

The Florists' Employees' Association will meet the first of each month during the fall and winter seasons.

Several Long Island growers spent September 23 on the sound, motor boating and fishing. A considerable catch was reported.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. received a shipment from Danbury, Conn., September 20 that had left that place September 5. This is an extraordinary instance of the delay in express shipments, which has caused the florists much trouble recently.

Jack Trepel will open his second store in Brooklyn this month. It will be located on Fifty-third street.

J. Austin Shaw.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Rice Bros., of Minneapolis, are looking for larger quarters to accommodate their expanding supply department. A. C. Rice has purchased a summer home within motoring distance and welcomes trade visitors on week-end visits.

The old convention garden, planted and maintained under the supervision of Theodore Wirth, park superintendent of Minneapolis, is one of the beauty spots of the city.

The Kirkwood Floral Co., of Des Moines, is making an attractive showing of early chrysanthemums, Golden Glow, October Frost and Smith's Advance. The season is opening fully up to expectations.

Autumnal window displays are well made by the Crozier Flower Shop, J. E. Lapes and I. N. Kramer & Son, of Cedar Rapids, Ia. As the three are located in one block, there is a friendly rivalry, each trying to excel, and the public appreciates their efforts.

Humboldt park, at Buffalo, has its usual stock of high-grade chrysanthemums, grown by C. H. Keitsch, in addition to many novelties introduced since his advent. William Fitzwilliam expects to excel the exhibition of last year, provided the necessary permit is granted by the "powers that be." "The public is expectant and must not be disappointed," observed our friend, who recalls with gusto his early experiences in the botanic gardens of Dublin and Harvard.

Andrew Bather, of Clinton, Ia., speaks highly of business. It has been good right along, with funeral work at times finding the supply of flowers rather limited.

The John R. Bather Co., of Clinton, is cutting fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums. Carnations have rather short stems, but the demand is larger than the supply.

OBITUARY

William Harvey.

A well known and much respected New England gardener and florist passed away September 24 when William Harvey succumbed to the shock of an operation at the Glover hospital, at Needham, Mass. The deceased, who hailed from the land of the heather and thistle, was born at Macduff, in 1845. He worked on a number of large private estates there before coming to America in 1870. Arriving in Boston, he was chosen to take charge of the H. P. Kidder estate at Milton. Later he was at Cedar Grove cemetery and for seventeen years had charge of the estate of T. W. Strong, at Glen Cove, N. Y. Of late years he was engaged in the growing of evergreens and other hardy plants at Needham Heights, Mass.

Mr. Harvey was a faithful member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston for many years, and was a regular attendant at the meetings, picnics and field days. Funeral services were held at the Methodist Episcopal church, Needham Heights, September 27, and were largely attended. Among the numerous floral tributes was one from his fellow club members. Mr. Harvey is survived by his wife and one son, Charles J. Harvey, florist at the Worcester state hospital. W. N. C.

Mrs. Elizabeth Heint.

Mrs. Elizabeth Heint, wife of the late Joseph Heint, of Jacksonville, Ill., died last month, at the age of 79. The decedent was born in Canton, O., in 1838. At the home of a sister in Joliet, Ill., she was married to Joseph Heint, lived for four years at Terre Haute, Ind., and then moved with her husband to Jacksonville, Ill., in 1870, where the business of Joseph Heint & Sons was founded and developed into the success it is today.

Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Heint, Frank J., Harry, Adele C., Edward D., Orlando B., William, Ernest B. and Albert M., all growing to manhood and womanhood and living, except the youngest, who passed away in 1907.

Funeral services were held Sunday, September 23, with interment in Diamond grove cemetery.

EXPOSITION FLOWER SHOW.

The fact that the eastern states exposition at Springfield, Mass., has recognized the importance of the florists' trade and has allotted a section of the Horticultural building to trade exhibits, is expected to stimulate the flower and allied trades to make a good showing at the exhibition October 12 to 20. The future of this show depends upon its success this season.

When florists realize the significance and tremendous importance of this step by the exposition management, it is to be expected that they will use every effort to make the show a success.

The Society of American Florists has taken an important step in the right direction in its initiation of a nationwide advertising campaign. This new step by the exposition management is also one in the right direction. It means that flowers will be brought befor the public as never before in Springfield. It is a boost to the trade but, as in all big movements, much will depend on the florists of the country in making it a success.

No premiums can be offered this year because of lack of funds, but space will be free to all florists. The show last year drew 297,000 visitors. Many more are expected this year. In conjunction with the flower show there will be large fruit and vegetable exhibits.

Each florist is advised to immediately apply for the necessary amount of space. All communications, applications for space, etc., should be addressed to C. E. Wildon, 244 Main street, Room 209, Springfield, Mass.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The arrival of October has imparted an impetus to business in all its branches. The closing week of September proved a banner one. Stock not only cleaned up, but in many instances was insufficient to meet the demand. This applies particularly to white roses, the supply of which is most inadequate at present. Easter lilies, also, are numbered among the scarce items, the call for them being augmented by the decline of the aster and gladiolus. Dahlias of excellent quality and in fine variety now play an important part in the market, and indications point to continued heavy cuts, unless arrested by frost. Carnations are arriving in greater quantities, and although the stems are a little short the flowers are good and quickly sold. Valley is offered in limited quantity, and there is little likelihood of its being abundant in the near future. A few cattleyas are arriving, as are some fine oncidiums and cypripediums.

Roses are of good quality and color, but owing to delay in express shipments they are frequently open on arrival. The assortment was never better, including American Beauty, Mrs. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley, Ward, Richmond, Lady Alice Stanley, Kaiserin, Maryland and the Killarneys. Such miniature sorts as Brunner, Elger, Rosalie and Bon Silene are arriving regularly and are proving popular for small baskets and bouquets.

Reports from several retailers point to a normal volume of business for the month of September. A renewed activity is evidenced in all stores and there is much optimism as to the near future.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club was held October 1 in the rooms at the Hollenden, with President Carl Hagenburger in the chair. There were about fifty members present, practically everyone taking part in the discussion, which, considering that many leading lights were absent at the F. T. D. meeting in Detroit, marks this as a most auspicious inauguration for the new administration. Members of the standing committees, appointed by the president, are as follows: Executive, Charles Graham, chairman; H. B. Rapley, Charles Bastian, Herman Hart, Albert Barnow. Entertainment, W. E. Cook, chairman; J. U. Fox, Rudolph Thurman. Good-fellowship, Frank Friedley, chairman; Fred Witthuhn, V. C. Fish and Mr. Bryden.

A plan for consolidating the Women's Florists' Club with the men's club was discussed pro and con, and on being put as a motion was tabled.

Frank Ritzenthaler outlined plans for entertaining the visiting florists at the November show. An amendment to the by-laws providing for nine elective trustees, to govern in conjunction with the executive committee, was laid upon the table after a lengthy discussion.

Adam Graham, Herman Hart, H. B. Rapley, M. A. Vinson, W. E. Cook, Charles Schmidt and Charles J. Graham gave lengthy and animated talks upon matters pertaining to the good of the club. Following the adjournment several members took the D. & C. boat for Detroit.

Various Notes.

Cleveland florists were pleased September 28 by the presence of such distinguished members of the trade as Patrick Welch, George Asmus, J. J. Hess, Charles H. Totty, Thomas Roland, Adolph Farenwald and John Young. These gentlemen, members of the National Flower Show committee, were here upon business connected with the housing of the next national show at St. Louis, a problem which is proving a trying one. At the suggestion of H. P. Knoble, a spacious exhibition building, owned by the Chamber of Industry, of which Mr. Knoble is an active member, was inspected by the committee, with a view to purchasing and shipping it dismantled to St. Louis, a plan both practical and feasible, but necessarily dependent upon building regulations in that city. Piloted by H. P. Knoble, George Bate and F. C. W. Brown, the visitors were shown the various places of interest about the city, and after refreshments departed in the early evening for St. Louis.

Frank Friedley, George Bate, H. P. Knoble, Charles Russell and John and Norman Kirschner planned to go to the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit by automobile, the trip depending upon weather conditions. F. C. W. Brown went by train and Carl Hagenburger and many others planned to go by boat.

Frank Adgate, of Adgate & Son, Warren, O., came to the Sixth City September 30 to attend the double-header between Washington and the Indians.

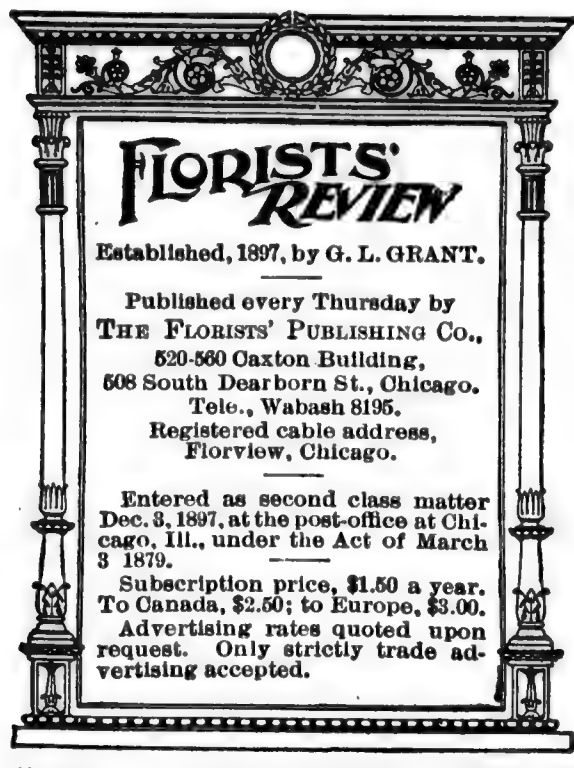

James Salmon, of J. Salmon & Son, Akron, O., autoed to Cleveland September 28, returning the following day.

A. C. Kendel, of Kendel's seed store, reports that his shipments of French bulbs are in and are of excellent quality, but wishes that the same could be said of the Dutch stock.

H. P. Merrick, of the Lord & Burnham Co., has returned to his duties after an acute attack of shingles, which malady, he says, he will never again look upon as a joke. J. McL.

Winthrop, Me.—C. A. Perley, whose specialty is pansies, has a large business in vegetable plants and is growing a considerable acreage of vegetables for market. He has them on new land.

East Bridgewater, Mass.—J. K. Alexander started the fair season well by capturing a number of blue ribbons at Marshfield, Mass. He won first for largest display of dahlias, for gladioli and for phlox, besides receiving a special diploma for dahlias.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901. Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Officers for 1918: President, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; vice-president, Jules Bourdet, St. Louis; secretary and treasurer as before.

Thirty-fourth annual convention and Fifth National Flower Show, St. Louis, Mo., April 6 to 15, 1918.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE trend of trade indicates that the rich are feeling poor, the poor rich.

GOVERNMENT reports of the nation's wealth show that each man, woman and child is $6 richer in 1917 than in 1916, which makes the outlook good for business.

THE advertising columns of The Review are like an immense horticultural emporium, so that the careful buyer never places an order until the offers in The Review have been consulted.

YES, toot your own horn, or it probably won't be tooted, but don't toot it so loudly you will drive people away with the noise. Overstatement is one of the weaknesses of much inexpert advertising.

THERE will be no need for florists to divert their glass to vegetable crops this season at least. It will be possible to sell at good prices all the cut flowers and pot plants that can be produced with the decreasing supply of labor.

GOVERNMENT officials have taken over for army purposes every bale of raffia McHutchison & Co., New York, had. It is to be used in camouflage work, for the protection of our soldiers in France. The French authorities had already taken over the shipments in transit for the same purpose. It is probable that there will be no raffia for trade purposes, for the present at least. However, McHutchison & Co. are negotiating for the lease or purchase of a vessel to bring the shipments awaiting steamer space.

SEND your latest catalogue to The Review. All trade catalogues are filed for reference and frequently are consulted by the trade; also, the catalogue often serves to settle a question of what is meant in a hastily written ad.

THE cost of plant food has risen along with other things. Blood and bone is selling for about $50 per ton and there are orders for all that can be supplied. Sheep manure, however, is in good supply and is being used by an increasing number of florists.

THE wages paid greenhouse workers never were so high as today, but they probably will go higher as the war is prolonged. It is to be hoped the trade will become so accustomed to paying higher wages that after the war the effort will be to develop a better grade of labor rather than to get back to the old conditions.

THE final premium list for the Cleveland show, November 8 to 11, has been issued. Copies may be had by addressing the executive office, 402 Leader-News building, Cleveland. The show will be held at Grays' Armory, instead of in a hotel as originally planned, and it will be the only large fall show this year, coöperated in by the Chrysanthemum, Rose and Carnation Societies.

TROUBLE.

One of the large Holland houses maintaining branches at Ollioules and at New York has stirred up many of the large buyers of French bulbs by the methods employed this season. In a number of cases, if not in all, orders were booked in advance at a stated price. The orders of a certain group of buyers were booked by the traveler at specified prices of 30 francs and 40 francs for Paper Whites. A little later the salesman wrote his customers that he was able to reduce these prices to 26 francs and 32 francs and asked the customers to so correct the copies of the orders left with them. A little later the buyers were advised that the prices would be revised a second time, to 32 francs and 40 francs. The goods came forward invoiced at these rates. Some of the buyers are reported to have sought legal advice as to their rights in the matter.

TREAT THE FLAG RIGHT.

True, it is not exactly lese-majeste to hang Old Glory with the blue field in the wrong corner, but it is bad form, decidedly bad form in these days of huzza for the colors. And as it seems certain that the retailer will be concerned with the flag for some time to come, not only in the fabric, but also in the matter of representing the flag in flowers, a few pointers on the proper way of showing one's colors will be opportune.

In the first place, when the flag is hung horizontally, the blue field should be in the upper corner to the left of the person facing it. When hung vertically, the blue field should be to the right of the person facing it.

In crossing the flag with that of another nation, the American colors should be to the right. It never must be placed below a person sitting. When the flag is placed on a casket, the blue field should be at the head. When portrayed, the staff should be at the left of the picture, the fabric floating to the right.

The flag should not be worn as the whole or part of a costume. When worn as a badge, it should be small and pinned on the left breast or lapel. On Memorial day the flag should be displayed at half mast until noon, then hoisted to the top of the staff. The flag must never touch the ground at raising or lowering.

A JOT FROM JERSEY.

Classified ads seldom fail to pay—if one does it may be taken as pretty conclusive evidence that there is no demand for that kind of stock at the moment. It makes no difference where the advertiser is located, the results are the same. Like this:

Our stock is exhausted and we are being flooded with orders.—Geo. P. Buck & Son, Collingswood, N. J., September 15, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

PLEASE NOTE.

Each week a number of letters containing advertising instructions reach The Review while the paper is on the press—just a few hours earlier and they would have had attention a week sooner than is possible.

It is the aim to give prompt service, but to secure it advertisers should note: "It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Stock in all lines has shortened decidedly, and with a brisk demand from both the city and out-of-town buyer coming in, trading at the wholesale cut flower market is tight indeed. Stock, none too plentiful the beginning of last week, began to shorten still further September 27, until it became difficult to meet the persistent call coming in. With the first day of this month, however, the situation was still more strongly accentuated and it was found impossible to fill all orders in full. Prices on all items show a tendency to advance.

Roses in all grades are short, with a strong demand which easily clears up all stock arriving at satisfactory prices. Some excellent quality Russells are to be seen and they bring good prices. Milady and Hoosier Beauty meet the bulk of the demand for red, as Richmond is none too plentiful. American Beauties are still scarce and in good demand.

Carnations are about two weeks late this season and no large quantity of stock is arriving as yet. Of that which does arrive, much is short-stemmed, although the blooms are good. Real first quality stock is bringing good prices.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive in increasing numbers. Golden Glow, Chrysolora and Golden Queen meet the demand for yellow, while in the white Crystal Gem, October Frost and Smith's Advance are arriving in limited quantities. The quality is good, in some cases being even exceptionally fine. There is not enough stock to fill the demand. As with carnations, chrysanthemums are several weeks late in arriving this year.

A few gladioli still come in, in fact,

OPHELIA, BRILLIANT MILADY and WARD

THESE are the Roses we have in largest supply. You will recognize them as the ones that sell best in your store. But we also can furnish the other sorts in the list, including Russells and Beauties, good stock in all lengths.

EASTER LILIES

These Giganteums are cut in the right stage to ship to our customers out of town. They will reach you without bruising and will keep for several days. You should have some of them always on hand. The price is $12.00 per hundred, fine stock.

VALLEY

There is no shortage of Valley here. You always can get it on telegraph order, but we recommend that you arrange for a shipment regularly twice or three times a week.

the number is quite large for this season of the year. Asters are nearing their end and only a small quantity of good stock now arrives. There are just about enough Easter lilies to meet the demand.

Wholesalers Hold Meeting.

The Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a special meeting around the dinner table at the Hotel Sherman October 1, to discuss the notices served on the members by the express companies. Each wholesaler has received a copy of the circular reprinted on another page of this issue and also has been notified verbally that the express companies will not be responsible for delays caused by the congestion of freight. As early as September 29 some of the drivers were stamping receipts with a notice to the above effect, and it was stated that soon every man who receipts for shipments will be provided with such a stamp and instructed to use it every time he signs his name. On such short notice it was impossible to get together a large attendance, but the wholesalers present could see no other course than to pass the disclaimer on to the trade, at the same time urging that out-of-town customers carry a little more stock than heretofore, so that it will be possible for them to order early in the day and thus permit the delivery of shipments to the express companies in time for early trains. Heretofore four-fifths of all the shipments from this market have been sent out at the close of the business day.

It was also decided to continue closing at 5 o'clock. The express companies make no pick-ups after that hour.

Polish Florists' Club.

Polish-speaking florists and gardeners have organized a club, about fifty of them having joined. The next meeting will be held Saturday evening, October 6, at Kosciusko park, Diversey and Avers avenues. Thomas Skorupa, superintendent of the Northwest Park district, is one of the leaders in the club movement. Mr. Skorupa says that the organization has planned a busy season. Programs for several meetings are being arranged, and the members are enthusiastic and confident that their number will be doubled before next spring.

Mr. Skorupa believes that owing to the peculiar war conditions and international relations, an organization of this kind is timely. He invites every Polish-speaking florist and gardener in the city to join the club. The expense

A. T. Pyfer & Co. Will Move.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have consummated a 5-year lease for the ground floor store located at 164 North Wabash avenue. Their new premises will afford them a floor space of 20x100 feet. They expect to move into the new quarters as soon as the desired alterations have been completed, which it is expected will be about November 1. "Our steadily increasing business, which has shown marked strides within the last year, is the reason for the move," explained Mr. Pyfer.

Various Notes.

There has been some advance in the price of wirework, but Joseph Ziska & Sons say it has not been anything like the percentage of advance in the cost of wire. But the few cents additional cost of a wire frame has no effect whatever on the sale, they say. Indeed, Ziska & Sons say more wire frames are being used than ever before in the history of the trade. They explain this by pointing to the fact that the class of people who choose pillows and other made-up pieces to send to funerals are more prosperous than ever before and that the florists catering to this class of trade are doing extremely well.

The Market

Business in general has been rather below standard. Several funerals, however, one of which was quite large, have helped materially to increase the output and keep the florists busy for a few days. Stock, on the whole, has been scarce and difficulty was experienced in taking care of some orders satisfactorily.

Roses are scarce, despite the liberal supply, which is good for this time of the year. All orders were not filled as specified, and it became necessary to turn down some. The quality of the stock is exceptionally good, and, while prices are fair, buyers of this stock are getting more than their money's worth. The crop of Russell roses is extra fine, the blooms moving as fast as they ap-being taken care of as yet. Asters are on the wane and in rather poor shape. The demand remains strong on account of the lack of carnations. All salable stock is cleaning up nicely.

Lilies are scarce and valley remains about as usual. Orchids are not arriving and the demand, which is brisk, is not taken care of to any extent.

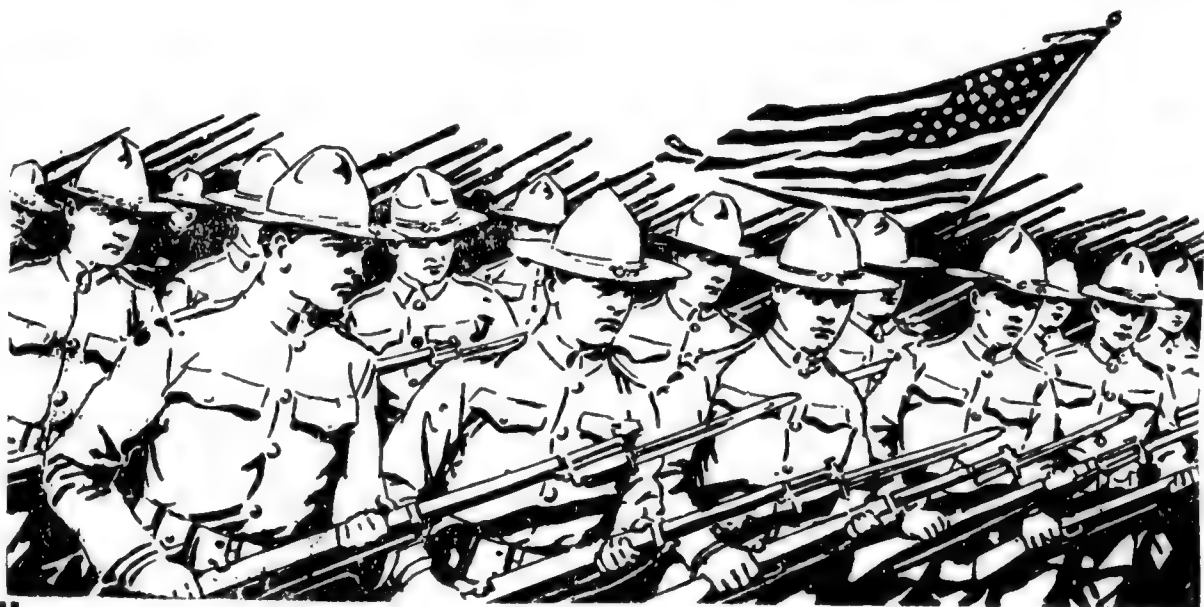

The chrysanthemums that arrive are in good form for so early in the season, and move nicely. The stock is increasing in supply daily and it is only a matter of a few weeks when it will cut a big figure in the market.

Various Notes.

The funeral of W. A. Luedke, Friday, September 28, was one of the largest held here for some time. There were designs and sprays without number, and one of the most prominent wreaths was furnished by J. M. Fox & Son, at a price of $100.

F. Sylvester, with J. M. Fox & Son, was presented with a bouncing baby girl September 14, and now is, of course, the biggest man in town.

Miss Gertrude Sommers, Meta Kasten and Gertrude Nickels, all associated with J. M. Fox & Son, are responsible for an informal dancing party held at Keipper's park, Brown Deer, Wis., September 29. The harvest dance, as it was called, was a howling success and was attended largely by florists. There were about sixty-five or seventy present. The hall was decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins, Japanese lanterns and balloons, as well as other decorative paraphernalia apropos of the occasion. The dancers wore farmer cos-business. These tokens of good will were in the form of baskets and bouquets of flowers and were delivered on the day in large numbers. It seems to me that, outside of the fact that an occasion of this sort benefits the trade at large to a great extent, there is no better way of showing interest in an event of this sort than to offer a floral token of good will and appreciation of past favors.

The Market.

The supply of stock continues short. Dahlias are the flowers most in evidence and are of good quality. Roses are slowly gaining in quantity and improving in quality, but they are by no means plentiful. Carnations are helping out. Quite a number are being cut, but because of the general shortage of all other stock they are utilized immediately. The prices range from $1 to $2.50 per hundred. Outdoor stock has gradually deteriorated and decreased in supply until practically none is salable. A few gladioli are available, however. Cosmos has not been so conspicuous this year as in previous years. A meager supply of good snapdragons clears readily. Calendulas also are worthy of mention. The first violets of the season have put in their appearance.

Various Notes.

The Roepke Floral Co. is erecting a new store.

Eugene Dailedouze, of Brooklyn, N. Y., recently visited the E. G. Hill establishment at Richmond. From there, accompanied by Joseph Hill, he visited Indianapolis and was the guest of A. F. J. Baur.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has been cutting good Golden Glow chrysanthemums. John Bertermann, Irwin Bertermann and Clarence Thomas expected to attend the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit.

The former Reinkin range has been rented by Mrs. Gray and will be planted to vegetables.

Leo Rickenbach has been offering some good late gladioli.

The Market.

October finds improved market conditions. Flowers are becoming better and the demand for them is quickening. Summer flowers are nearly over; some are still to be had, but they are less and less desirable day by day. Dahlias are in their prime. The difference between the fancy, mostly the cactus varieties, and the ordinary pompon or ball-shaped varieties, is decidedly marked. The fancy dahlias are in brisk demand at excellent prices, while the ordinary dahlias sell slowly at low prices. The principal ordinary dahlias are Liboni, Sylvia, Arabella and so on. Sometimes they are sold in large quantities, always at low prices, and nearly always they are leftovers. The supply of dahlias, though favored by unusually fine weather, is smaller than a year ago, owing to the shortage of labor. Some growers planted less; some are unable to cut all their flowers. The dahlia conditions in the wholesale market have never been better locally. The demand for good stock is excellent.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to be seen in small numbers in all the wholesale houses and most of the retail stores—Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, October Frost and Unaka. The first-named is decidedly the best so far. Carnations are extremely late this season; still, there is an increasing supply, some of fair quality. Good single violets have made their appearance. Cattleyas and valley are in better supply, but you would not think so, because the demand, even at the extraordinarily high prices, keeps ahead. Wild asters are a desirable addition to the assortment.

Roses, with dahlias, formed the mainstay of the market. The varieties that were novelties a couple of years ago are standards today. Killarney is not seen much yet; only its double white sister. Beauty is important; so is Maryland. The newer sorts, Ophelia, Sunburst, Shawyer, Hadley, Prima Donna and, most important of all, Mrs. Charles Russell, are abundant. Tuberoses and tritomas are in evidence. Easter lilies continue short of the demand. Greens are beginning to sell.

The Club Election.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club was held in Room C, Parkway building, Tuesday evening, October 2.

The following officers were elected: President, Adolph Farenwald; vice-president, David Colflesh; treasurer, George Craig; secretary, Fred Cowperthwaite.

Secretary John Young of the S. A. F. has appointed a strong committee of seven to raise donations in Pennsylvania for the publicity campaign.

The Express Meeting.

The spirit of the meeting was voiced by Mr. Richter when he said: "Gentlemen, if these conditions continue at the holidays they will put us out of business."

A telegram was sent to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, in convention at Detroit, telling it: "The Philadelphia florists in meeting today are taking up the matter of delayed express shipments and have appointed a committee to meet with the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce on Thursday. The committee would ask the F. T. D. to help expressage." This committee consisted of Robert Craig, Arthur A. Niessen, Samuel S. Pennock, Paul F. Richter and Herbert G. Tull. It was to prepare a statement of the case, giving a few instances of the most serious losses from delay in transportation. This statement was to be presented at a meeting of the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday, October 4. This report, when approved, will be taken by the committee to Washington, and there laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is only fair to the express companies to state that they are making heroic efforts to meet their difficulties. The Adams Express Co. is opening a new office in West Philadelphia, and it has appointed additional supervisors at its main office. All three companies are changing their methods in an effort to facilitate deliveries.

War Measures.

The system that each one of us adopted for carrying on his or her business last year, no matter how successful, will require a change this season, if success is desired. Our country is at war. How does it affect our business? That is the question for each one to decide. The point that is most clearly evidenced today is that last season's plan of ordering when we needed the stock can be improved upon in many cases. Florists' supplies and plants can frequently be purchased in advance, with advantage. By doing this, disappointment and loss of business will be avoided, or, at least, reduced to a great extent.

Take, for instance, the case of Christmas supplies. They can be ordered now for shipment during the next few weeks. By doing so they will be on hand when wanted. By delaying, anxiety and disappointment are almost certain. The splendid facilities of the large wholesale houses and of the express companies have made it possible in the past to order goods at the last

The annual exhibition of dahlias, hardy perennials, vegetables and fruits at the store of the H. F. Michell Co., September 25 to 27, was undoubtedly the most successful ever held. In number and excellence of exhibits expectations were greatly exceeded. Not only were the dahlias of the highest order, but never before have so many of the leading novelties been shown at any dahlia show in this city. Many of the principal growers from New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Pennsylvania were there to discuss the new seedlings. As to the many exhibits of vegetables, all grown from Michell's seeds, nearly every variety was shown. Fine specimens of the "Pe-Tsay," or new Chinese, cabbage lettuce were the center of attractions. Immense heads weighing six pounds, raised from seed planted July 20, show what can be done with it as a second crop. The many uses to which it can be put as a "high-toned vegetable" is bound to make it popular with the public as well as with the market gardener. Exhibits of hardy perennials, gladioli, annuals and fruits were of high order and gold and silver medals as well as several hundred dollars in cash prizes were awarded.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

Schramm Bros., Toledo, O., are getting ready for a big fall business. "What the future will bring forth is quite a gamble these days," says George Schramm.

Thomas Zetlitz, Lima, O., has been called to the colors and is in training at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O.

Scottwood Greenhouses, Toledo, are showing some wonderful mums. A fine stock of crotons and palms also was in evidence. Mr. Magee's two sons are in the army. W. T. U.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

Business for the week has been good, there being a greater demand for cut flowers as the gardens around the city are being stripped of blooms. There are fine chrysanthemums in the market, large blooms, with good, strong stems. Roses also are good, but lilies are scarce. Some cosmos still is seen, as well as gaillardias. There are some sweet peas and a few gladioli to be had. Flowering plants are scarce; there are a few cyclamens and primroses.

Various Notes.

The Whitted Floral Co. showed its fine grade of stock in an original window display.

The new greenhouses under construction by Messrs. Rosenberg & Lindberg are progressing nicely and soon will be ready for stock.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The market was well supplied with stock of all kinds last week. Business is good, but not large enough to move all of the receipts. There are many complaints of delays in express shipments. Roses are in good supply and excellent, and fair quantities of carnations are available. Easter and rubrum lilies are plentiful. Dahlias are in good supply and meet with a strong demand. Asters are plentiful, but are either so poor or so small that they do not sell well. Gladioli are more plentiful now, but have a slow demand. Other offerings are chrysanthemums, cosmos and calendulas. Decorative material, wild smilax particularly, is experiencing a large sale.

Various Notes.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society will meet at the home of Frank Volz Monday afternoon, October 8.

C. E. Critchell furnished the wild smilax for the decorations at the auto show. George Fern had the decoration.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving large quantities of excellent Harrisii lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Adrian have returned to their home after spending the summer at their cottage at Les Ghe-naux.

The Market.

Outdoor flowers, which have been unusually good of late, now are rapidly waning, and their passing gives a decided fillip to the cut flower market. Asters of good quality still arrive, but their numbers are rapidly dwindling. Several growers are bringing in fine greenhouse-grown asters. Gladioli are nearing the end and the spikes seen are smaller. Roses are of improving quality and abundant. American Beauty sells slowly, but Ophelia, Ward and Killarney Queen move extra well. Ward, owing to its good color, at present is proving decidedly more popular than Sunburst. Some nice Hadley are arriving; also Shawyer, Stanley and Miller. Prices on fancy hybrid teas vary from $8 to $12 per hundred. Carnations are cleaning up well at advanced prices, the general run selling at $2 to $3 per hundred. Some single violets sell at 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred.

Fewer longiflorum lilies are available and their prices have advanced. There are still good supplies of L. speciosum. Lily of the valley is scarce and select stock brings $12, with second grades at $8 to $10. Some good early snapdragons are coming in. Cosmos are abundant and good, and small lots of dahlias, calendulas, gypsophilas, etc., are seen. Most of the mums seen are Golden Glow, with small lots of Advance and Early Snow. Small lots of white and pink bouvardias, sweet peas and cattleyas are available. The latter realize fancy prices.

Various Notes.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has issued a schedule for the January, March and May exhibitions of 1918. The premiums are on as liberal a scale as usual, particularly for the spring show, March 13 to 17. In connection with the convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, January 30 and 31, special prizes of $50 and $25 are offered for an artistic decoration of carnations. For a mantel decoration $30 and $15 are offered; for a table decoration, $20 and

Thomas Roland is cutting a splendid lot of Ward, Killarney Queen, Hadley, Ophelia and Stanley roses at Revere.
He has nearly finished his crop of Golden Glow mums, at Nahant. These have realized excellent prices. Some well bloomed ericas are already coming in from Nahant.

William H. Ward, of Montvale, is cutting a superior crop of indoor asters on 24-inch to 30-inch stems. He is growing more sweet peas and fewer carnations this season.

William H. Elliott is the only local grower of the charming single roses,
Irish Fireflame, Irish Glory and Irish Beauty, at his Madbury, N. H., establishment. There is a charm to these single roses lacking in the double ones.
He is still cutting good blooms of Kai-serin, Hadley and Stanley.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. has a splendid collection of choice vegetables tastefully arranged in one of its large show windows. These vegetable displays, properly staged and labeled, attract large crowds of passers-by and are attractive, as well as educational.

Everything points to a splendid vegetable show under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Horticultural hall October 9. Competition is open to anyone and several special prizes have been received during the last few days. At the evening meeting short talks on vegetables will be given by James Donald, A. K. Rogers, Frederick Cave, W. N. Craig and James Mathen. Flowers, as well as vegetables, will be shown numerously.

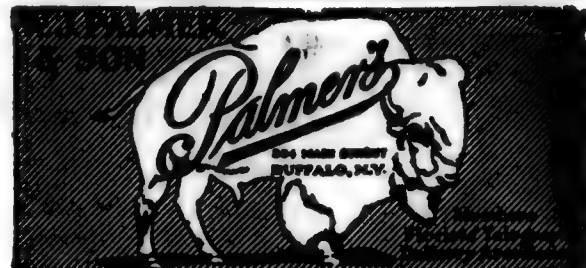

At the establishment of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. large consignments of Dutch bulbs arrived last week and the staff is busy putting up large orders. Some of the local bulb specialists received part of their bulb orders this week and as a result are feeling somewhat more cheerful.

In the obituary column will be found a short sketch of the late William Harvey, of Needham Heights, well and favorably known to many in the trade.

H. R. Comley always has some new, rare or unique flowers in his window on Park street. September 29 he effectively used a collection of vegetables from his own garden, and the passers-by were pleased with it.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, grew some forty tons of Hubbard squashes this season in addition to his regular line of flowers and plants. He surely is "some" farmer!

The management of the big eastern states exposition at Springfield, Mass., to be held October 12 to 20, this year, is reserving a special section in the horticultural building for trade exhibits. No prizes are being offered for flowers, but the chance for wide publicity, such

Among the earliest shippers of single violets this season are Anderson Bros., of Woburn, and William Philbrick, of the same town.

W. H. Carr, of the Flower Exchange, beams broadly these days, due to the arrival of an 8¾-pound son and heir at his home September 23.

James Wheeler has taken down and will reërect at his Natick establishment a 200-foot greenhouse from the estate of Mrs. C. G. Weld, at Brookline. It probably will be devoted to yellow marguerites.

Patrick Welch and Thomas Roland left for St. Louis September 27 to attend a meeting of the National Flower Show committee.

The once noted collection of orchids formed by the late F. L. Ames, of North Easton, which at one time was the finest in the United States, has been sold to A. C. Burrage, of Beverly Farms, only calanthes and miltonias being retained. W. N. C.

The Market.

Cooler weather last week greatly improved the quality of the stock reaching the market, but the demand has not yet become steady. The wholesalers say a good, hard frost that would kill outdoor flowers would be a boon to business. Florists' windows, however, are beginning to show that the flower-selling season is here, there being many displays of roses, carnations and early chrysanthemums.

Asters and gladioli were not so plentiful last week. Dahlias arrived in quantities, but only choice flowers found favor with the buyers. Others sold in lots at low prices. There are a great many roses coming in, the best sellers being Russells, Wards, Hadleys and Killarneys. These bring only fair prices, however. Carnations show a decided improvement. All the Enchantress varieties, Wards, Beacons and Washingtons are coming in now.

The sale of Easter lilies is steadier, prices having an upward tendency. Valley is in large demand for wedding work, but is scarce. There is a more active demand for early chrysanthemums.
The only varieties in the market at present are Golden Glow and Smith's Advance. Extra fine cosmos have a good demand. The market is well stocked with greens.

National Flower Show Committee.

The National Flower Show committee held a series of meetings in St. Louis September 29 to October 1, making arrangements for the National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis next spring. The party, which was composed of Chairman George Asmus, of Chicago; Secretary John Young, of New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, of Omaha;
President R. C. Kerr, of the S. A. F., of Houston, Tex.; President-elect

ness men, city officials and newspaper men. After dinner the party was taken to the Moolah Temple, where the S. A. F. convention will be held, and to inspect the lot adjoining, where a temporary building will house the show. Returning to the hotel, the committee began another session, which lasted until late in the night. Sunday morning the chairmen of the various committees to have charge of the show were named. The afternoon was devoted to a meeting at the Planters' hotel, at which the St. Louis florists were told what was expected of them to make the show a success.

After two sessions Monday, October 1, the committee left St. Louis, most of the members going to Detroit for the F. T. D. convention.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club will be held the afternoon of October 11 at Joseph Hauser's place, Webster Groves, Mo. There will be automobiles waiting in the wholesale district at 12:30 p. m. to convey the club members to the meeting place. President Bourdet says there will be important business before the meeting and urges a large attendance.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week. Mr. Karins says there is a scarcity of decorative plants, with the demand greater than ever.

tended the fair at Sedalia, Mo., last week. The trip was made by automobile. The party visited Kansas City, Mo., and several other towns before returning.

August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., reports a large demand for bulbs. The company's supply of valley pips is all sold. Local growers have purchased large quantities of winter-flowering Spencer sweet pea seeds of this company.

Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros.' House of Flowers, reports several advance orders for wedding decorations during October. Business has been improving, there being several large orders last week for funeral work.

Edward Westmann spent two days in Chicago last week, buying stock for a wedding decoration at Alton, Ill. Nothing but extra fancy stock was used, the order amounting to $1,000.

August Koch, of the Garfield park conservatory, Chicago, has been a visitor during the last few weeks. Mr. Koch formerly was connected with the Missouri Botanical Garden.

Edward Kalisch, of the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., has two houses of azaleas in extra fine condition to come along for the holiday trade.

J. S. Carter, head of the Nicotine Manufacturing Co., says this has been one of the company's biggest seasons. Last week was especially busy, the shipping department having sent out large orders to eastern and western growers.

A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, reports that his roses are in fine condition. He grows Ward, Ophelia and Russell roses, principally.

Edward Eisner, manager of the Grimm & Gorly store, has moved his family from Chicago to St. Louis.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week.

A street car hit a wagon, which in turn crashed into a delivery auto of the C. Young & Sons Co. September 30, while it was standing in front of the store. The auto was badly damaged, the amount being estimated at $500. No one was injured.

Albert Senger, the Lexington avenue florist, has his houses stocked with some fine blooming and decorative plants.

Howard W. Neuman, formerly of San Francisco, and well known to the trade there, has joined the Grand Leader floral department.

Joseph Haemmerl is now located at 4963 Natural Bridge road. His new range is well stocked with ferns and decorative and blooming plants. Ivan Ericson, head of the Blossom Shop, 4110 Manchester avenue, reports a number of wedding orders for the next month. They call for some elaborate decorations. Business has been increasing recently, says Mr. Ericson.

H. C. Irish, head of the school gardens, last week supervised the staging of the displays at the various schools. At the Blow school September 28 there were 200 entries for the prizes in the various classes. August Hummert judged the vegetables and Jules Bourdet the plants and flowers. J. J. B.

The Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held September 24. The essay committee, appointed at the last meeting, reported progress and promised that every meeting during the coming season would be interesting. If the meeting held last week is a sample of what this committee has in store, the florists of the city have something to look forward to. Too much credit cannot be given the committee for the manner in which it got down to work and arranged for the meeting, and if such meetings are kept up there will be no trouble about the attendance.

The main feature of the evening was a lecture by Prof. C. S. Richardson, of the Maryland State Agricultural College. His subject was "Scientific Organization in Business," and his belief was that every industry that amounted to anything was well organized, except agriculture, of which the florists' business formed a prominent part. In the course of his lecture he brought out the point that the only hope of florists and farmers was in coöperation and organization; that in this way only would they be able to have some say in the price they should receive for their products. He spoke of what the citrus fruit growers of California had accomplished for their business through organization, and dwelt on the fact that this could be accomplished in a small way just as successfully as in larger business. He said that if the agricultural interests of this country—and this includes the florists—were one-half as well organized as the oil interests, they would not know their power. Prof. Richardson recommended that the club use pictures in its meetings, for, in his estimation, there is nothing so instructive as a good set of pictures on any subject.

A letter from the New York Horticultural Society relative to a fund to be raised to replant the orchards of France was read. This fund is to be distributed by the Red Cross Society. The letter was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of W. J. Johnston, Fred Burger and William Christie, who will report at the next meeting some plan by which the club could help in this worthy object.

The question of local publicity was taken up and referred to the following committee: R. A. Vincent, Jr., W. J. Johnston and J. J. Perry. This committee will report at the next meeting, when the subject will be the regular order of business.

The secretary, on motion of Fred Burger, was authorized to send a letter of sympathy to the family of Walter W. Erdman.

took advantage of the dull spell last week to take a vacation. He made a tour of the eastern shore of Maryland in his automobile. On account of the death of several prominent men, however, business was not at all dull during his absence.

At the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. store, they report that business is splendid and that they have no trouble in moving their supply daily. When I called, everyone was busy unpacking a large importation of ruscus from Japan. This house is carrying a good line of supplies this winter.

At the Leo Niessen Co. place, although it was about 4 in the afternoon when I called, Mr. McKissick and four clerks were still busy. They report a splendid week's business, every one of their customers having a big week on funeral work. One funeral in particular that gave the retailers all they could handle was that of W. F. Stone, for this was more than a local affair. Mr. Stone was the leader of the local Republican party. There were many telegraphic orders for this funeral, and Small's of Washington, sent an auto truck of designs from that city. Another funeral at which many flowers were used was that of Major Gibbs. John Cook and Mary Johnston were especially busy for this.

These funerals, added to the regular business, put good stock at a premium, and kept the wholesale people, as well as the growers, on the jump. Business is starting up this season earlier and better than I have ever seen it, and I have never before seen such a spirit of optimism as that which prevails in every branch of the business. Tate.

Oak Harbor, O.—An "extended mention" in the form of a full-column write-up was accorded R. M. Harrison recently by the local press. Mr. Harrison's range, his flowers and service were boosted heavenward in a most advertisingly manner. It's a good thing to invite the news reporter around now and then.

Binghamton, N. Y.—The first fall flower show of Binghamton will be held during the week of November 5 under the auspices of the Binghamton Florists' Association. A committee consisting of William F. Schmeiske as chairman, Fred Krause, representing the growers, and A. A. Thomas, representing the retailers, has been appointed to make arrangements for the show.

Good Advice

Ship your flowers to us and you will never be disappointed with your returns.

We keep in close touch with the best buyers and are in a position to dispose of the better grades at top-notch prices.

You can depend on getting your returns promptly, too, when we handle your shipments.

Special opportunity for a couple of good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A. H. SMITH, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, has returned from a brief business trip to Louisville, Ky.

It has been reported that one of the large operators in onion sets has recently purchased a number of cars of the best sets at Louisville, Ky.

DAVID MCLEES is manager of the seed department of the Hayes-Thomas Grain Co., Little Rock, Ark. He is steadily adding to his line of stock and the scope of his operations.

LILIUM giganteum shipments will be late in arriving from Japan this season, owing to the fact that all available steamers and space are being used for carrying war supplies.

THERE is a decided shortage developing on peas and it is said that some houses will probably not deliver more than thirty to fifty per cent of what their contracts call for.

CABBAGE seed is reported in short supply and high in price. Of the early varieties, Charleston and Jersey Wakefield are especially short, while of the later varieties Danish Ball Head types are scarce.

THERE will be increased use of crops for by-products this season. For instance, the Colvillei types of gladioli are especially adapted for early forcing. They can be successfully grown in carnation temperature; in fact, among carnation plants.

THE farmers of the United States have answered the plea of the government with a record crop production. Next spring will see a renewed and greater effort in this direction. It looks as though 1918 would be another big year for the seed trade.

W. W. TRACY, SR., possibly best known of the seedsmen who have joined the staff of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is the author of a pamphlet, "Saving Vegetable Seeds for the Home and Market Garden," which is being distributed by the Bureau of Plant Industry.

BEANS will unquestionably be in short crop. The frost, which struck the Michigan bean sections several times, but in an uneven manner, has killed off a good percentage of stock that was planted, and hence maturing, late, while some damage also was done to the earlier plantings.

SEEDSMEN are gradually breaking away from the practice of so printing the disclaimer on letterheads that it will appear between the written salutation and signature. The law has been interpreted to make the disclaimer inoperative if the addressee is required to read elsewhere than in the body of the letter to find it.

THE Guernsey bulb trade this year is said to have been exceedingly brisk and prices have been distinctly good. One Guernsey bulb merchant had an order from a Lancashire firm for 1,500,000 bulbs of one variety alone. There are, however, not the same quantity of bulbs in the island as usual, the stocks having been brought low last year. Nearly the whole of the trade was with England, which has prohibited the importation of bulbs from both Holland and France.

THE WAALDYK ARRIVES

Holland Bulbs Come.

After many delays and much uncertainty as to the date of sailing, the Holland-America line steamer Waaldyk, laden with a cargo of 26,000 cases of Dutch bulbs, arrived safely in New York harbor September 25. However, the American consignees of the cargo were unable to secure at once their shares of the shipment, owing to the fact that the British authorities at Halifax removed the mail the steamer carried, in which were the bills of lading.

Maltus & Ware, New York brokers and forwarding agents, to whom were consigned more than 10,000 cases of the Waaldyk's cargo, at once communicated with Secretary of State Lansing, asking him to use his influence with the British authorities at Halifax to secure a release of the consignees' mail. In support of the request, it was declared that the bulbs are perishable and that more than 3,000 importers would be discommoded by the delay, if they did not suffer actual loss.

Second Ship Due Soon

The Waaldyk will be followed within a short time by the steamer Schiedyk, carrying a cargo composed principally of bulbs. While no date for the sailing of the latter steamer was given, cable advices from The Hague to the New York office of a Holland bulb exporter asserted that the ship "will sail." Later it was reported among New York forwarding agents that the vessel had left Rotterdam September 21. The trip of the Waaldyk consumed about twenty days. The Schiedyk should make a little better time and will be due in New York about October 8 to 10. The two vessels bring nearly as many bulbs as were imported last year.

While the bulbs are one or two weeks later than usual, it is declared that the quality is better for the delay. The bulbs had a chance to dry out in Holland, and were not packed for shipment until a few days before the Waaldyk sailed. Allowing for one week in which

SEED SEASON ON THE COAST.

"I am sorry to say that the year has not been a good one for seed crops," F. G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., recently wrote to a friend. "We had a cold spring, during which we lost our first plants of radish, owing to the frost, and our later planting was not blessed with any spring showers, so that the growth was considerably below normal. Then, along in June, we had some of the hottest weather I have experienced since coming out here. This promptly stopped all growth of radish, so that prospects for a decent crop were stopped. In addition to hurting the radish crop, the hot weather burned the onion heads when in flower, so that what looked like a good crop was cut at least in halves and in some cases seventy per cent of the heads were burned.

"The carrot crop suffered also from the cold spring. We were late in getting our roots in the ground and then the lack of showers prevented the usual growth.

"Our sweet pea crops, which in these days are not so important, have again been ruined by the attacks of the aphid. Altogether it is not a cheering state of affairs, and to brighten up a bit we go and look at our lettuce crop once in a while, which promises well.

"Conditions for raising seed in California are now bad, owing to the great

Snapdragon Seed

It is a proved fact that, for profit and easy doing, there is no greenhouse plant that will equal good Snapdragon. They require very little attention and seed sown now will yield continuous blooms from February until July, giving a bumper crop at Memorial, the great special flower day.

Start some seedlings today and be ready to fill all empty space after mums are done. It is far better and cheaper to grow your own plants.

Seeds of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 8 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Yellow, White, Garnet, Light Pink, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 85c per pkt.; 8 for $1.00. A special Pink Mixture, $1.00.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

San Jose, Cal.—W. B. Clarke, manager of the local branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of Eureka, has gone east on a business trip.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

While the florists' business continues good, it does not keep pace with the nursery and landscape work, which is unusually active. Large estates are being laid out and call for much of the nurserymen's wares, and the florists will get their share later. Some of the florists' stock sold is locally grown, but much is shipped in from Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Arthur Gleave has made several improvements in his store, including the addition of an attractive ribbon case. Fine stock is shown, and plenty of it.

At the Mission Oak Nursery A. Beverley always has something of interest, and his place is always in fine order. He carries a general line of plants and grows flowers for cutting. His Woden dahlias are exquisite, and the winter rows of sweet peas promise well.

Mrs. H. G. Helmer has a good showing of stock, the gladioli and dahlias grown in the nursery helping out in this.

The City and Kentia nurseries have just shipped a carload of palms to the east. The kentias here are fine specimens and selling well.

Theodore Payne, O. W. Howard, F. Shearer and O. M. Morris, all of Los Angeles, were visitors this week.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While business has not improved so markedly this week, there has been no recession of activity and everyone has had a fair share. Funeral work has fallen off a little, but other orders have more than made up for this. The demand for good roses exceeds the supply, as few blooms are being shipped in from the north. Good long-stemmed reds and deep pinks and short whites are among the shortest items. Chrysanthemums are fine now and, though plentiful, clean up well. Dahlias are making a splendid showing and some late zinnias are good. Asters still come in, but their glory is departing.

Helichrysums, amaranths, yellow mar-

"The season just closed has been a most successful one, and we are more than pleased with the results of the advertising we carried in The Review." — Los Robles Nursery, Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 17, 1917.

guerites and blue cornflowers are among the small flowers offered. Sweet peas are practically out of the market. Violets are becoming a feature, but they should improve. Cecile Brunner roses are good and plentiful. Orchids are still scarce; so are valley and gardenias. The difficulty of obtaining cheap labor in the north makes green moss and the decorative greens scarcer than usual at this time. Local-grown plumosus and adiantum are more plentiful and of fair quality.

The increased heat this week was expected to make long-distance shipments of violets unsafe.

Various Notes.

H. W. Turner has been suffering from severe cold and fever, but owing to the press of business at the Broadway Florist he has stuck gamely, as has been his record for many years. Mr. Turner hopes to take a short vacation in the mountains shortly, which, no doubt, will tone him up for the season's business. His youngest daughter, Dorothy, has given him some cause for worry of late. She has spinal trouble. His eldest son, Howard, has been called to the colors and left recently for camp in Washington state.

Emil Reichling, until recently superintendent for Peter Reinberg, at Chicago, has arrived in this city with his wife, his automobile and his household goods, so it looks as though he was going to stay a while.

The new dahlia grounds of the Superior Nursery Co., on Figueroa street, are now a blaze of color, and the closer the plants are looked into the finer the display is. The proprietor, C. Gutting, drove the writer, Emil Reichling and J. Dieterich out to the range and all were surprised at the fine arrangement and the splendid varieties grown. The plants are arranged in small square plots, the walks between allowing easy examination. The range is a great credit to all concerned and serves as an example to other firms.

J. D. Meriwether, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, is in town this week. According to Mr. Meriwether, the Roeding & Wood branch in this city will not be reopened this season.

Harry Hayashi, of Elmhurst, the inventor of the "Rapid Rapper," which is made and handled by the Rapid Wrapper Co., of Chicago, is visiting the city this week.

Nick Gondolfo, of the Santa Cruz Evergreen Co., has returned from his northern trip. He has secured large lots of greens for the season's business, but says that the scarcity of labor is a considerable hindrance to picking.

SAN FRANCISCO.The Market.

The aster flood has given way to chrysanthemums, but the large supply of mums is most welcome in view of the shortage of other flowers, caused by several days of hot weather. While there are many white chrysanthemums and some pink ones, the majority of the offerings are yellow. Of these the three varieties most in evidence are Monrovia, Crocus and Chrysolora. All show splendid quality, but Monrovia, which was one of the first large mums to appear, soon will begin to wane. The other two are about half through their season. October Frost is about over and no other large white variety has arrived as yet to take its place, but Queen is looked for within a few days to fill the breach. Small Canary mums, both white and pink, are plentiful. They are proving most satisfactory for shipping purposes, being quoted at 50 cents per dozen. The supply of pompons is increasing daily; the stock sells well.

The rose market is a disappointment. As the blooms were becoming good, after being below standard for several weeks, the hot weather played havoc with the buds, so that there are practically no first-class roses to be had this week. American Beauties are a negligible quantity and other varieties are not much better. Radiance and Shawyer seem to be as good as any. The limited supply of carnations is readily absorbed at winter prices, despite the poor quality of the blooms. Violets are beginning to arrive in large quantities, and prices are expected to drop. The orchid situation is a little easier, but there is still room for improvement. The supply of valley meets the requirements, with no surplus. Cut cyclamens work in nicely. Zinnias refuse to be crowded out entirely, although their season is well over.

Various Notes.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee is shipping many chrysanthemums and expects this to be the best season in the history of her business. She also is sending out large shipments of Mexican ivy and asparagus. At the same time, the business at her Hyde street establishment is all that can be desired. Mrs. Darbee makes a specialty of violets and expects to have a splendid crop this year. She has twenty-six acres devoted to violets, from which she will start cutting in about a week. H. W. Gootch, brother of Mrs. Darbee, is back in the city after a pleasant and profitable eastern trip, during which he attended the S. A. F. convention.

E. Pries has accepted a position with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., to fill the vacancy caused by the departure of Frank Thatcher for Chicago. Mr. Pries is no stranger to the local trade, having been identified with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. for a year prior to the last year, which he has spent traveling. In the course of his extended trip he visited the Hawaiian islands and China.

Fred W. Tredup, representing the A. L. Randall Co., arrived a few days ago, and from here will proceed to southern California. He is accompanied by Mrs. Tredup. Judging from Mr. Tredup's observations, the florists throughout the west and middle west are looking forward to a splendid business this fall and winter.

G. C. Roeding, president of the Fancher Creek Nurseries Co., Fresno, Cal., has been visiting in San Francisco.

Miss Bertha Cohn, of the Bellevue Florists, says she and her partner, Miss Rothschild, have been busy with funeral work, hotel decorations and counter trade. They notice a marked improvement in transient sales.

J. Onishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., is well pleased with the brisk demand for chrysanthemums, both for local use and shipping purposes.

Joseph Lagomarsino, one of the leading violet growers supplying this market, is bringing in large consignments, principally of Princess. He will soon start cutting Marie Louise.

It is understood that the Western Evergreen Co., at 380 Bush street, and the firm of Pedrini & Filipelli, which was engaged in a similar business at 453 Bush street, have consolidated.

B. M. Joseph closed his doors from 2:30 to 4 o'clock September 28 in honor of the drafted men leaving for training camps. Charles McAullife, of Joseph's, was among the departing ones. He is the fifth in his family to serve his country, four brothers having enlisted prior to his being drafted.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., has no complaints to make about business, as the demand for flowers is all that can be desired.

The California Floral Co. has been having success with basket arrangements of flowers for home decorations.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Market conditions remain practically unchanged. A hard, killing frost would do more good for the market right now than any other one thing. Such a frost usually comes about September 20, so it is far overdue by this time.

Carnations continue to improve, better stems and better blooms being the rule with most growers. The supply, however, is still somewhat limited. Roses, particularly in the short grades, are excessively abundant and hard to move at any price. Funeral work has not been plentiful of late, so many blooms are regularly finding their way to the dump.

Various Notes.

Boilers were placed in the new greenhouses of the H. L. Olsson Co. last week. It will be another ten days or two weeks before the houses will be ready to welcome cold weather. Considerable difficulty was encountered in excavating the boiler pit, this delaying the completion by fully two weeks.

Pasquale Garguilo has been keeping the market well supplied with cut greens and expects to have a full crop of roses this month. While his place is not a large one, he produces some of the best roses in the market, and gener-

The Market.

September business showed a slight increase over that of last year. Last week's sales were about normal, there being no events to heighten the demand for flowers. The hardy asters have taken a prominent place, and roses are excellent and are meeting with a strong sale. The local mums are much better and some Chrysolora and Crocus mums arrive from California. The dahlia crop is at its best.

Various Notes.

The growers are busy taking cuttings and placing tender plants under cover. French and Japanese bulbs are arriving and the greenhouse men are much relieved over the prospect of giant-teams for Easter.

PALMS PALMS

When the Portland Seed Co. issues its fall catalogue it will contain a section devoted to florists' supplies.

A. W. Gootch, of San Francisco, passed through Portland on his return from New York, where he exhibited asters for Mrs. R. E. Darbee, of San Francisco, at the S. A. F. convention.

The Holden Floral Co. has replaced its benches, built two new greenhouses and installed the piping. Mr. Holden is growing about 20,000 carnations. Three houses are devoted to mums and one house to Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty roses. He has some excellent pot plants that will be ready for the Christmas trade. This year a pink poinsettia and the Mrs. Peterson begonia will be offered to the trade. Mr. Holden has been doing an excellent business, and has ordered an additional motor truck to take care of deliveries.

The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. has its Formosa and giganteum lily bulbs planted. W. G. W.

OREGON STATE FAIR.

Good Showing, Could Be Better.

The state fair at Salem, Ore., brought out a creditable display of florists' stock, but there were not so many entries as had been expected. The exhibits were under the management of Henry Clemens, of Newberg, and as the appointment was made only a week preceding the fair, much credit is due him. The building was well filled with professional and amateur exhibits.

The awards in the various classes were as follows:

Pot plants, covering 100 square feet—Routledge Seed & Floral Co., Portland, first; Henry Clemens, second.

Ferns, covering twenty-five square feet—Routledge Seed & Floral Co., first; C. B. Clancey, Salem, second.

Six vases carnations, twenty-five flowers each—C. B. Clancey, first; William Dungey, Portland, second.

Four vases mums, six flowers each—C. B. Clancey, first; Henry Clemens, second. Display of dahlias—E. H. White, Portland, first; Gill Bros. Seed Co., Portland, second.

C. B. Clancey had an artistic display of cut flowers, potted plants and funeral designs. Mr. Clancey has taken over the retail store of Carl Reuf. Mr. Reuf will devote his time to growing stock.

Better Bait Next Year.

Henry Clemens had a booth on the second floor of the manufacturers' building, where he displayed sweet pea seeds. The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. had a 200-foot display on the same floor, showing dahlias, seeds, supplies and potted plants. Duke Routledge had charge of the display and reported it well worth the effort. His brothers, Ira and Ralph, were also at the fair during the week.

The fair grounds were extensively planted this year. A bed of delphiniums, bordered with celosias, was in perfect bloom. There were other beds of marigolds, Hill geraniums and roses. The Gill Bros. Seed Co. and Mrs. F. L. Purvine had a plot 150x200 feet planted to dahlias, which were in full bloom.

The fair management announced that next year there will be a larger prize list. Messrs. Clancey and Clemens are working on a plan to make the flower displays more worth the while of the florists.

Carl Reuf, the largest grower in Salem, grows his stock in nine houses just south of the fair grounds. He special-

The Market.

Stock continues scarce. Mums are being shipped in from San Francisco. Some of the shipments arrive in splendid condition, while others are anything but satisfactory. The lack of variety is trying to the salespeople, who have a hard time satisfying customers. Gladioli may be said to be the only good flowers at this writing. To be sure, there are some carnations, marigolds and the last of the asters, but these are second-grade items. A few cyclamens and flowering begonias are being pushed to relieve the monotony. Mignonette and forget-me-nots are to be had and meet with a good demand in filling in with other flowers in corsages and dainty baskets. This state of affairs is not likely to last long, however, as growers give promise of plenty of stock in the near future. Business remains good, considering the short supplies.

Various Notes.

A. Lingham, of Puyallup, continues to supply the Tacoma market with his choice gladiolus stock.

William Crammatte, of Aberdeen, divides his time between Tacoma and Aberdeen, looking after his interests at both places. B. G.

SHRUBS are said to be selling better than ever this autumn.

W. B. CLARKE, manager of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries' branch at San Jose, Cal., is making an eastern trip.

THE French hydrangeas are selling splendidly; everyone who has advertised them to the trade has found plenty of florists anxious to try them as a substitute for azaleas. Lilie Mouillere is the most popular, possibly because it also is the best known variety.

W. A. PETERSON, Chicago, considers Therese the best peony that has as yet made its appearance. He says every visitor to his nursery in peony season is attracted to the row of Therese; the eye catches it at a distance. Whatever the amateurs see in Therese, as size of flower and beautiful clear pink color, the trade visitor who knows peony stocks is apt to note most of all the length of the row.

EUROPEAN LILY STOCK.

Owing to there being no regular sailings from Holland, arrangements have been made by McHutchison & Co., New York, whereby the Holland nursery stock fall shipments will come on special steamers, to sail about the middle of October and November. It is likely that the same arrangements will be made for spring shipments, unless there be regular sailings then.

Manetti stocks are practically unobtainable in England and France, McHutchison & Co. report. There was only about a thirty per cent crop in England, and fifteen per cent in France, due to abnormally unfavorable spring weather conditions in Europe.

Pear and apple stocks in large sizes, the same company says, will be scarce in France. Small plantings were made, but cold, wet spring and summer weather made most of them run to small sizes. Women and old men are now do-

MR. COE'S CONFIDENCE.

Ernest F. Coe, president of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., thinks that the new dwarf type of Berberis Thunbergii his company is distributing this year is the best specialty the concern ever got hold of. The first plant was discovered in the nursery sixteen years ago, so that there has been abundant time for observation. Mr. Coe says the present stock consists of about 10,000 plants and he feels sure that it will be possible to book them all for distribution this season. He says that one landscape architect who recently visited the nursery wanted to place an order for 10,000 plants for this season's contract, but the order was declined be-

BOX-BARBERRY

DWARF TYPE OF BERBERIS THUNBERGII

New Edge and Dwarf Hedge Plant

ORIGINATED at our Nursery sixteen years ago among a batch of Japan Barberry seedlings. It attracted attention in the seedling bed and has been under careful watching since. The original plant is now about two and one-half feet wide, and globe-like in shape, its natural form.

It is pronounced a most valuable find by all who have seen either the original plant or the stock we have propagated from it, including experienced nurserymen, landscape architects and gardeners, experiment station men and amateurs.

The public will take to it immediately. It's just what is wanted. As a formal-garden edge plant it is ideal—this means thousands of it for many a single order. Equally desirable as a low and medium hedge plant, assuring a heavy demand. Trims into perfect formal specimens.

Propagates readily from either hard or soft wood cuttings. Will not come true from seed.

OFFERED TO THE TRADE FALL, 1917—NO RESTRICTIONS

Offered to the general public and will and will be freely advertised in Fall, 1918, and Spring, 1919. Get up a stock and be ready for the certain heavy demand.

Prices to the Trade, November delivery—strong 2-year field plants, no growth removed:

the belief that there is a tremendous demand for a dwarf hedge and edging plant and that there now is nothing that quite fills the bill. He predicts that it will be a number of years before the 10,000 plants now existing will be propagated up to the point of fully meeting the demand.

NEWARK, N. J.

This is the "between" season. Assters, gladioli and the few flowers that kept the florists supplied during the summer months are rapidly passing, and although the fall flowers are beginning to come in they are not abundant enough. This is not a serious handicap now, however, for it is still a little too early for a greatly increased demand. Chrysanthemums are improving in quality and are becoming more plentiful each week.

The Alpha Florists, who recently opened a store on Cedar street, near Broad street, report that their stand has proven a good one and that business is satisfactory.

Henry Hornecker, of East Orange, thinks that the outlook for business during the coming season is good.

R. B. M.

Sterling, Ill.—J. A. Swartley, proprietor of the Swartley & Sons range, was seriously injured recently when he fell from a 12-foot scaffold at East Moline. Mr. Swartley is 70 years of age, and at the time of the accident was not expected to live.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The demand for flowers last week was steady and good stock cleaned up every day. Carnations are still small, but are improving. Roses are better and find a ready sale. Rubrum and Easter lilies are in strong demand. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have made their appearance and sell fairly well. What few orchids come in are eagerly snapped up. The same is true of valley.

Various Notes.

Local growers have their stock in fine condition for the season and are optimistic over the outlook.

Robert Kurth, foreman of the plant range of the Park Floral Co., during the last eighteen years, has taken a position with the Greenwood Cemetery Association, Fort Worth, Tex. Mr. Kurth is making the change on account of the health of Mrs. Kurth, doctors having advised that she live in a lower altitude. Albert Geisert is taking Mr. Kurth's place with the Park Floral Co.

Alphonse Hoyer is seriously ill at St. Joseph's hospital.

D. S. Grimes & Son have their place in excellent condition. The glass has been taken out and cleaned, and the houses have been painted inside and out.

W. W. Wilmore, Jr., has been drafted into the national army. He left for Fort Riley, Kan., October 3.

The Park Floral Co. finished housing its pot mums and Jerusalem cherries last week. It has about 1,000 azalea plants that look promising. R. S.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for either October or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

5-inch pots, at $25.00 per 100;

6-inch pots, at 35.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendemoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermet. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. R. Jacquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of pale-rose flowers. Early and practically everblooming.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Last week there was a good demand for cut flowers, but stock was a trifle scarce. Dahlias found a lively market, selling at from 50 cents to $2 per dozen. Snapdragons and other outdoor flowers came in handy. Roses and lilies were better than they were a week ago. Gladioli and asters are deteriorating, but there are a few of good quality. A few carnations and chrysanthemums have arrived.

Various Notes.

C. F. Mahan & Co., have a fine lot of cyclamen plants, which are being grown for seed. Some of them are improved German varieties.

J. Hendrick, a brother of Mrs. L. D. Johnson, has joined the Twelfth Aero Squadron, now at the Wright flying field at Fairfield, O., near Dayton.

The Ideal Floral Co. has moved its store from 1204 West Third street to the Wright building, 1205 West Third street.

Gerald Haschke, of the College Park Greenhouses, has returned from an automobile trip through the West Virginia mountains.

Herbert Bartholomew, son of George W. Bartholomew, is with the hospital corps at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

W. W. Horlacher is cutting some fine single and cactus dahlias.

Tony Lewis, chauffeur for the Heiss Co., left September 19 for Camp Sherman, where he will train for the army.

We will Give Away 5000 Plants

XANTHOSOMA BATAVIENSIS

In order to introduce them to every greenhouse man in the U. S. Send 2c for each plant wanted, to cover postage and packing. Not less than 10 nor more than 25 to one address.

This offer is made to introduce one of the best novelties of recent introduction. Fine for greenhouse in winter and fine for outside in summer.

The Market.

The last week of September was an unusually busy one. Weddings created a good demand for flowers and funeral work was plentiful. September 30 many worked all day getting out the funeral work.

Chrysanthemums are becoming a factor in the market, October Frost and Golden Glow being the best offered. Roses are excellent and are improving in size and color. Carnations are arriving in fine form, and prices are better. Lilies are in fair demand for funeral work. Gladioli are still abundant, and they have taken well with the trade this year. Dahlias are more than plentiful, but are of excellent quality. Other outdoor flowers are cosmos, hydrangeas, Golden Glows, goldenrods and larkspurs. Asters are rapidly on the decline.

Various Notes.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had a busy week with funeral work. They are showing fine early mums and their cut of roses is exceptionally large.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell has been confined to her home during the last week by severe stomach trouble.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting large quantities of roses and rubrum and giganteum lilies. Their orchids are flowering in fine shape.

The Flick Floral Co. is showing fine pompon chrysanthemums, the first of the season. Funeral work has been brisk at this establishment during the week.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

Government regulation of the price of coal at the mines and the profit that the jobber may charge for his part in getting fuel from producer to consumer, was followed October 1 by an order fixing the profit of the retail coal dealer. The order, issued by Fuel Administrator Garfield, allows the retail dealer to sell coal to the consumer at a price representing an advance of not more than thirty per cent over the retail gross margin of profit in 1915. In no case, however, can the retailer's gross margin be more than his gross margin in July, 1915.

It is believed that this ruling will bring the cost of coal down to prices that were charged in the summer of 1915, which was before the prices began to go up. Retailers, however, are allowed a small additional charge to make up for the increased cost of doing business. If he charged $1 per ton over the wholesale price of coal in 1915, now he may charge $1.30 profit, or an increase of thirty per cent.

While the prices fixed by the government will undoubtedly be maintained during the winter, there seems to be a general belief among dealers that there still will be a shortage, because of inability to move coal from the mines to the consumers. Already freight traffic is congested and it is predicted that the congestion will become worse as the season advances.

Therefore, as The Review has pointed out before, it will be well for the small consumer—the man who buys as his needs demand—to get in as much fuel as he possibly can. He is now assured that the price will be no higher, but has not the assurance that he can buy coal when he needs it.

HEATING OF HOUSE 30X100.

I am thinking of erecting another house, as an addition to my present one, which is 30x100 feet and heated by hot water. My boiler grate is 30x37, and the boiler is rated at 3,000 feet for hot water and 1,800 feet for steam. Would the boiler be large enough to heat another house of the same size as the present one, by hot water or steam? If so, would it be best to connect the flows and returns to the present 4-inch pipes, or run them to the new house direct from the boiler? How much pipe and how would you arrange the piping in the new house for a temperature of 50 degrees when it is zero weather outside? I use a 3½-inch flow and a 3-inch flow, and twelve 2-inch returns in the present house.

My house runs east and west, with the boiler room at the west end. I would run the new house west from the west end of the old house, thus having the boiler room between the two houses.

The Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler

WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER, a quick steamer, and holds the steam; the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

New Haven, Ind., Oct. 13, 1916.

The two No. 46 KROESCHELL WATER TUBE STEAM BOILERS which you furnished for our new plant surely are giving us satisfactory service.

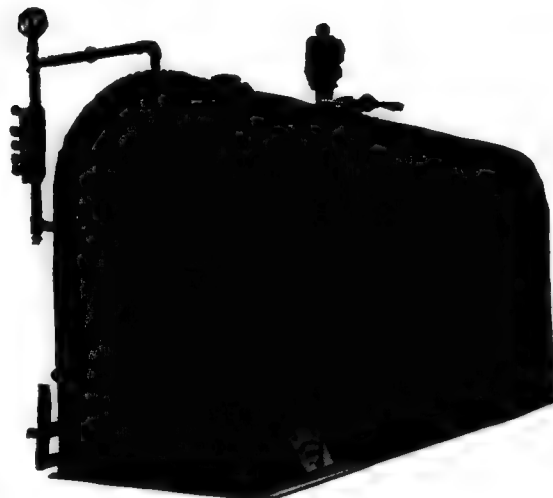

These boilers are internally fired, and ECONOMICAL fuel burners, being very fast steamers.

With baffle arrangement such as you have, it consumes all the heat cast from the combustion chamber instead of letting it out of stack.

WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 KROESCHELL WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever.

It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers.

If I should need another boiler, I would not think of buying any other kind.

Do you think I could use steam to better advantage than hot water?

M. W. B.—Kan.

Since it requires only about 1,000 square feet of hot water radiation to heat the present house to 50 degrees, the boiler now in use should be of ample size to heat another house of the same dimensions. We would prefer to connect the flow pipe to the new house directly with the boiler, and would use either one 4-inch flow or two 3-inch. The two 3-inch flows could be run to the west end of the house, upon the wall plates, or each of them could be used to supply two 2½-inch flows, one of which could be under the purlins.

We would consider twelve 2-inch returns ample for 50 degrees in zero weather, and would place three of them, either on the side walls or under the side benches, and the others under the middle benches.

While the cost of heating the houses with steam would be rather more than with hot water, both in fuel and care, the cost of piping for steam would be less than with hot water, since it would require only one 2½-inch overhead flow-pipe and nine or ten 1¼-inch returns.

GLASS, VENTILATION, HEAT.

I would appreciate your advice regarding glass for a house 21x91 feet, which has 6-foot posts and 12-foot sash-bars. I am trying to get away from the high cost of glass as much as possible, and I was thinking of using single-strength B grade glass, assorting the heaviest of it for the parts most exposed.

In the matter of ventilators, would you have them directly opposite each other or alternate them?

Using hot water, how many feet of glass will be heated to 55 degrees in zero weather by a square foot of grate area? A. E. P.—Ill.

While single-strength glass will answer well for the ends and sides of the house, we would prefer to use double strength if glass more than twelve or fourteen inches wide is to be put in. Narrow glass may be used for certain plants, such as palms, ferns and violets, but we would prefer glass sixteen to twenty inches wide for roses, carnations and most flowering plants.

It will make little difference whether the ventilators are opposite or alternate with each other.

The capacity of a boiler depends not only upon the area of the grate, but also upon the amount and arrangement of the heating surface. The house shown in the sketch is 21x91 feet, with 12-foot sashbars and with three feet of glass and three feet of concrete in the walls. To heat this house with hot water to 55 degrees in zero weather, we would use about 800 square feet of radiation. For this the boiler should have four to five feet of grate area. For a grate of this size one square foot of grate area will heat from 600 to 700 square feet of glass.

WHAT SHOULD A ROCKER GRATE DO?

Force open all the air spaces evenly. Remove ashes and cinders and not disturb the firebed. Keep the fire near the grates.

THE RESULTS ARE:

The fire burns evenly. All fuel is burned out of the cinders. Cinders are brittle and not hard. All cinders jar through the grates. Better combustion of gases, which means LESS COAL.

Our system cannot be improved upon. Installed in two hours by any fireman. No mechanic required.

Various Notes.

The retail stores had some excellent displays last week, many of them taking advantage of the arrival of fine dahlias. These they showed in baskets. Many of the stores report a quantity of funeral work last week.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club met at the Fort Pitt hotel, Tuesday evening, October 2. There were exhibits of dahlias by out-of-town growers. The subject of greatest importance at the meeting was the national campaign for publicity for flowers.

It was announced that the express companies would only accept perishable goods at "owners' risk and subject to delay" after October 1. Congestion of express shipments has caused considerable trouble to the local florists.

LOS ANGELES NOTES.

D. MacRorie, of MacRorie & McLaren, San Francisco, has been among our visitors this week.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, reports business starting out well for the season. He left here this week for a business trip to San Francisco.

Jacob Dieterich, who suffered from a bad case of blood poisoning, is around again fully recovered.

J. Reeves, of the Beverley Hills Nurseries, has been under the weather with throat trouble. J. Whitehead, foreman here, says he has been drawn for service. Business is fair for the season.

The sympathy of everyone in the trade is extended to Fred Rafferty, of Santa Ana, in the death of his wife, which occurred September 25 at the California hospital. Mrs. Rafferty had undergone an operation several days before and was thought to have passed the crisis of her illness. She had been in ill health for some time. The funeral was held at Santa Ana September 27.

While there is nothing of particular note, all the wholesale houses report increased shipping business. Unfortunately, another warm spell has arrived to soften the stock intended for shipping.

Under the auspices of the Los Angeles Dahlia Association, a dahlia show was held at the Hamburger building September 27 to 29. The great heat was undoubtedly against the show, but nevertheless a good number of flowers were staged and, by the addition of fresh flowers, the interest of the show was well maintained. Several members of the local trade exhibited and the amateur groups were excellent. The silver cup for the best flower in the show was awarded to a superb bloom of Kalit. The judges were Miss Morris, daughter of O. M. Morris, of Morris & Snow; C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery, and H. R. Richards.

D. MacRorie, J. Dieterich and F. Lichtenberg made a tour of the growers in and around the city of Pasadena and Sawtelle this week, visiting the fine range of W. Armacost & Co. at the latter town. H. R. Richards.

Water Valley, N. Y.—Aside from the forty acres in vegetables at the Rengedyke Farm, Eugene D. Hofeller has a good-sized house devoted to mums, roses, ferns and geraniums.

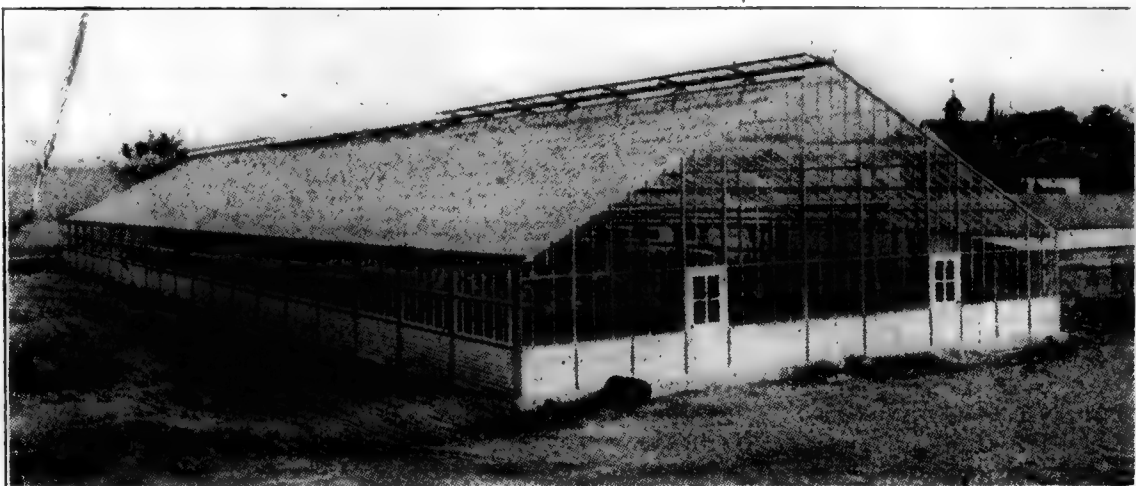

Madison, N. J.—Interesting details concerning the Duckham-Pierson range, just completed by Hitchings & Co., continue to develop. All the material was brought by auto truck from the company's factory of Elizabeth, N. J., three trucks being kept on the job continuously for more than three months. The sashbars used in the five houses, each house 61x500 feet, placed end to end would extend 106,190 feet, or about twenty miles. There are fifteen miles of heating pipes in the houses and the 4-foot benches placed end to end would stretch out to nearly five miles.

IMPORTANT!

Retail Florists who have no greenhouses, who therefore must depend upon "outside aid," correspond with Kennicott Bros. Co., Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

September was a good month with Albert O. Stein, especially in large decorations. Several important affairs are lined up for next month. The Dinkelspiel-Schwabacher wedding is to be one of the most elaborate decorations ever carried out by the Stein staff, and that is saying a great deal.

Trophies to be awarded at the dahlia show to be given at the St. Francis hotel under the auspices of the Dahlia Society of California, have been on display at various downtown flower stores. Arrangements have been completed for the show, which promises to be the best ever held, unless the hot weather damages the blooms more than is anticipated. Nearly 500 exhibitors have taken space.

In a special notice sent out to the railroads of California, Horticultural Commissioner G. H. Hecke calls attention to the provisions of revised horticultural statutes, requiring shippers of nursery stock from any county or locality in the state to supply the state commissioner with copies of all manifests. Upon arrival of such shipments at points of destination, the railroad agent is required to notify the county horticultural commissioner or nearest inspector of such arrival. In this way it is hoped to check the spread of disease among trees, shrubby plants and other such products, attributable to the failure of proper inspection.

The Bertrand-Johansen Seed Co. has incorporated in this city to conduct a general nursery and seed business. The capitalization is $50,000. The directors are August A. Bertrand and Joseph S. Bertrand, both of San Francisco, and John R. Johansen, of Sausalito, Cal.

S. H. G.

LANCASTER, PA.

Lancaster county florists are showing much interest in the proposed trip to the Vincent dahlia show, to be held at White Marsh, Md., in the near future.

At the Lancaster county fair last week, Adam Felsinger's dahlias were the talk of crowds. Mr. Felsinger had specimen flowers of seventy-five varieties, and was kept busy taking orders for the tubers, which will be delivered next spring. David Rose took a number of prizes. A. F. Strickler was a prize-winner with fine dahlias and other seasonable outdoor flowers. B. F. Barr & Co. had a fine outdoor display of conifers and nursery stock in an artistically arranged garden, in charge of H. G. Haverstick, the new manager of the nursery of B. F. Barr & Co.

Harry A. Schroyer will officiate as judge of the flower section of the county fair at York, Pa., next week.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club is proud that one of its active members is in training for the trip to Berlin, the man being P. K. Murphy, formerly with B. F. Barr & Co. Mr. Murphy is at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. He reports the military life is simply great.

L. S. Landis is cutting some fine Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums. Houses of Bonnaffon, Chrysolora and Unaka are coming along nicely.

F. J. Michell, of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

A HALF-INCH ADVERTISEMENT

here will keep your name and specialty before the whole trade, at a cost of only 45c per week on a yearly order.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

There was an oversupply of asters during the first part of the week and many of the florists purchased large quantities while bargains were to be had, but the heavy receipts continued and during the week there were more asters dumped than there had been since their season started. As many of the asters were of poor quality, there was little call for them except for funerals. Good Richmond roses are just about plentiful enough to go around and inferior Killarneys are more than plentiful. Good American Beauties are extremely scarce. Easter lilies are satisfactory and there are enough to meet the demand.

There was not much funeral work during the week, which accounts for the prevailing quantities of second-grade flowers.

September 22 the first frost of the season visited the low regions, and many of the soft-wooded plants turned their heels to the sun the next morning. Since that date there has been no frost to do any damage.

Various Notes.

Stroh's Quality Store is receiving good white mums from its greenhouses.

L. O. Smith, of Smith Bros., carnation growers at Gasport, N. Y., was in the city September 26. Mr. Smith says that the good growing weather of the summer months just about offset the tardy spring period, and that plants were fine at the time of housing.

William Legg was "bungled up" with rheumatism during the fore part of the week. Mr. Legg says that rheumatism is the gardener's inheritance, so he is not going to complain.

P. H. Poore is rebuilding a house which he is going to plant to sweet peas, which are now fine plants in 4-inch pots.

The Cemetery Association has prohibited the cutting of plants on its grounds. This is a good thing, as some of the florists of the city were wrongly suspected of taking cuttings from vases without the owners' permission. If any of the florists depended on this method of "getting" their stock of geraniums and other plants, they will have to "fork up" some of their coin for spring stock, perhaps for the first time.

S. A. Anderson has added goldfishes to the line of stock carried at the Elmwood store. Mr. Anderson had the decorations at the Elmwood Music hall for the banquet given to the grain dealers in convention here by the Corn Exchange September 25. Quantities of dahlias, calendulas, gladioli, asters and goldenrod were used. Forty vases of dahlias were used for the tables.

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The greenhousemen are showing considerable anxiety as to their supply of coal and the prices that they must pay to obtain it. It is a serious proposition, and several growers have announced that they may not operate all their glass the coming winter. There also is much anxiety as to the supply of bulbs. Many of the growers have not yet received theirs, and in several instances the prices have advanced so high as to be almost prohibitive.

The frosts have taken the outdoor asters and the bench stock is poor. Carnations are of good quality and in good quantity. The market is much relieved by the early mums, which are improving daily. Roses are in good supply and show constant improvement. They bring $2 to $8 per hundred.

Various Notes.

S. Peterson has dismantled his old houses in East Providence and is replacing them with new ones.

V. J. Berarducci has opened a branch store at 448 Branch avenue.

Albert Holscher is cutting fine white and yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carpenter, who conduct the stand in the Union station, have returned from a several months' visit to Alberta, Can.

The Mayfield Dahlia Farm was awarded first prize for a collection of dahlias at the fair of the Oaklawn Grange last week.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, at Quidnick, are making a special feature of Boston ferns.

Willis S. Pino has made a complete renovation of his store, including the installation of new fixtures.

John Gallagher, who has been with O'Connor's for several years, has enlisted in the army.

Robert Koppelman and I. Mirsky, of Boston, were visitors last week.

W. H. M.

Madison, Wis.—George Smith, proprietor of the Sherman Avenue Greenhouse, has been making something of a specialty of the coleus and has a considerable number of varieties, several of them apparently seedlings not known by name in the trade.

The Market.

The express congestion affected the arrival of stock last week, some shipments being several hours late. However, there was a good supply of both indoor and outdoor flowers. Roses are satisfactory and arrive in sufficient quantities to meet the demand. Whites, however, are scarce. Ophelia, Sunburst and Francis Scott Key are among the best sellers. A few good carnations arrive and sell readily. The crop of asters is about over, but larkspurs are still in the market. Fine zinnias sell well. The supply of Harrisii lilies is large, but the demand is small. Other lilies also reach the market. Snapdragons are on the short side. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums are more plentiful and sell freely. Michaelmas daisies, African marigolds and helianthus move easily. Some excellent cactus dahlias are arriving now.

Various Notes.

Bright fall weather last week pleased the growers, many of whom have fruit orchards in connection with their ranges. Indoor stock is making good progress, but will not show satisfactory returns until frost has killed outdoor stock, which is plentiful. Growers are greatly concerned about the bulb situation, few of the bulbs having arrived in this section.

Visitors to the trade last week included Ross Adgate, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and William S. Lake, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, is bringing in fine White Wonder and Delight carnations. Mr. Merritt had a good season with asters.

Charles W. Curtis is cutting excellent Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums.

Prof. Ralph C. Curtis, head landscape gardener at Cornell University, with a party of students, was in Rochester last week studying the city parks. A. A. Farnham, assistant director of horticulture at the University of Pennsylvania, was a visitor.

John Dunbar is to be the speaker at the next meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club.

Hugh Teute has been remodeling his propagating house. He has made good cuttings of early mums, and his cyclamens and primroses are in bloom.

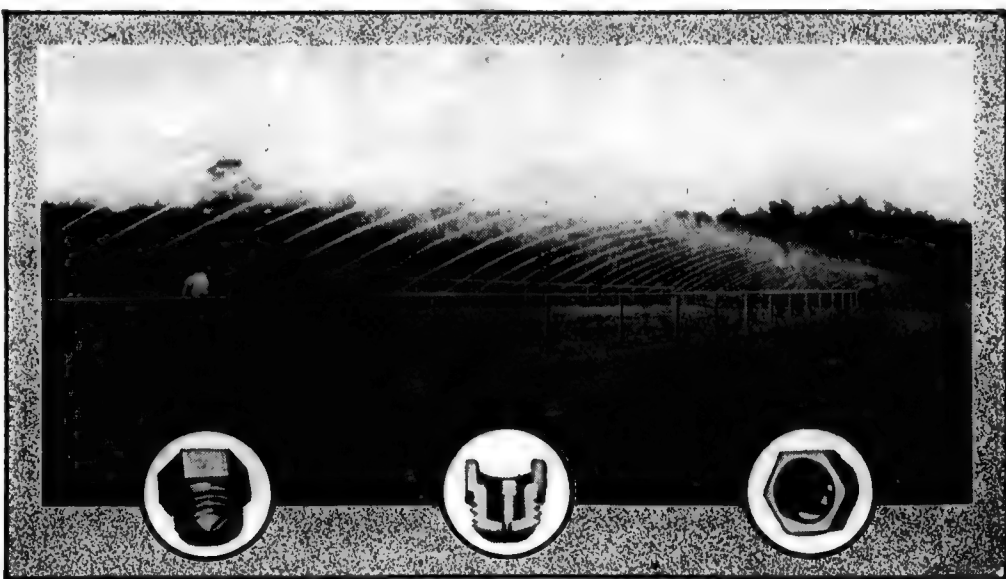

John Orgar is growing exceptionally good flesh-pink and dark red dahlias. They find a ready sale.

F. Schlegel & Sons report that business has been quiet. Their greenhouses are well stocked with ferns, primulas and fancy cyclamens.

There will be a chrysanthemum show at the Lamberton conservatory, Highland park, in October. The main house has been stocked with plants, which are beginning to show color.

The J. B. Keller Sons' window last week attracted considerable attention. There was a half circle of short rubrum lilies in the foreground, and the rear was artistically decorated with pedestals, stands and baskets. H. T. H.

Leoti, Kan.—Another woman to enter the business here is Clara Drury, for whom a greenhouse is being erected by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago.

Skinner System on seedlings at Bay State Nurseries. In the circles are three views of the Outdoor Nozzle.

Dry Year or Wet Year, the Skinner System Pays

EVEN in the years that "average up" as "wet" ones, there are generally several periods of dryness. Often one of these "dry periods" will come just when you need water the most—planting time or transplanting time, for instance.

The Skinner System insures your having water, correctly applied, for these dry weeks. Takes you through them without loss. A turn of the valve does the trick. Puts your growing on a safety-first basis.

The Skinner Irrigation Co.

223 Water St.

Troy, Ohio

John Schmidt, Glendale, L. I., N. Y., says: "In the dry spells when I want to transplant all I have to do is to spray the soil before, and the ground will be as fine as if it had rained."

A Special Greenhouse Nozzle makes the Skinner System equally adaptable for indoor use.

It's a money-saver and money-maker wherever you use it.

Send at once for full information.

CYPRESS BY TEST SUBSTITUTES BY TALK

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 49 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 49 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

That is no more than a fair precaution on your part—good ordinary business sense.

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that wood-pile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the 'peck') has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?

There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too.

A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work). Vol. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for Vol. 2, on "Pecky"—a money-saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT.

STATE FAIR FLORAL CO., SEDALIA, MO.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 thorough-bred varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties, in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had. I have received thousands of testimonials from amateurs and florists, of which this is a sample:

"The pansies last year could not be beat for color, size and long stems. I grow for cut flowers only (Boston Market), and consider your strain way ahead of anything I have tried or seen. Perry Green, Quincy, Mass."

"This is the 7th year I have used your pansy plants and each year I have found them satisfactory in size of flowers, colors and other respects." J. W. McCabe, Washington, D. C.

I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years and believe I have the largest and best stock of plants for the wholesale trade in America. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it; and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Plants from earliest sown seed, $4.50 per 1000; from August sown seed, $3.50 per 1000. Cash with orders.

L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

BURNING OF SCHIZANTHUS.

Can you offer any suggestion as to the probable cause of the burning of the new leaf tips and later of the flowering shoots of hybrid, large-flowered schizanthus?

My practice is to shift the plants from 3-inch pots to 4-inch pots, to 5-inch, to 6-inch, to 8-inch. The burning usually commences in the 6-inch. Nearly twenty per cent are so affected. When the flowering shoots commence to push up the tips burn, turning a dark green, and then die. New laterals come up and in some instances produce flowers, but the most affected plants are stunted and imperfect. Such plants are apparently as vigorous as the unaffected, up to that point.

This occurs before any feeding is done. All the plants are potted in the same light, fibrous loam, and have the same care. They are grown in a light, airy house, close to the glass. The temperature ranges from 80 degrees on bright, clear days to 60 degrees minimum at night. I have been unable to flower them at all in a temperature lower than 50 degrees at night. The perfect plants flower and make fine specimens in 8-inch pans in three to four months from sowing.

W. G. P.—Cal.

This burning of schizanthus occurs to some extent on plants grown in both the eastern and western states. It also appears on plants in Great Britain, being most noticeable there when a bright, sunny day succeeds a number of dark ones. Sometimes fumigation will start this trouble, the plants most affected being those driest at the roots, but I have come to the conclusion that the burning is not caused by soil conditions but sunshine, and in your brighter and warmer state the trouble would be likely to be worse than in our colder ones. It is hard to explain why one plant will burn and not another, when under similar treatment and growing in the same soil. Usually plants which are somewhat dry on a hot, clear day will suffer, while those moist at the root will not. Heavy feeding will greatly aggravate the trouble.

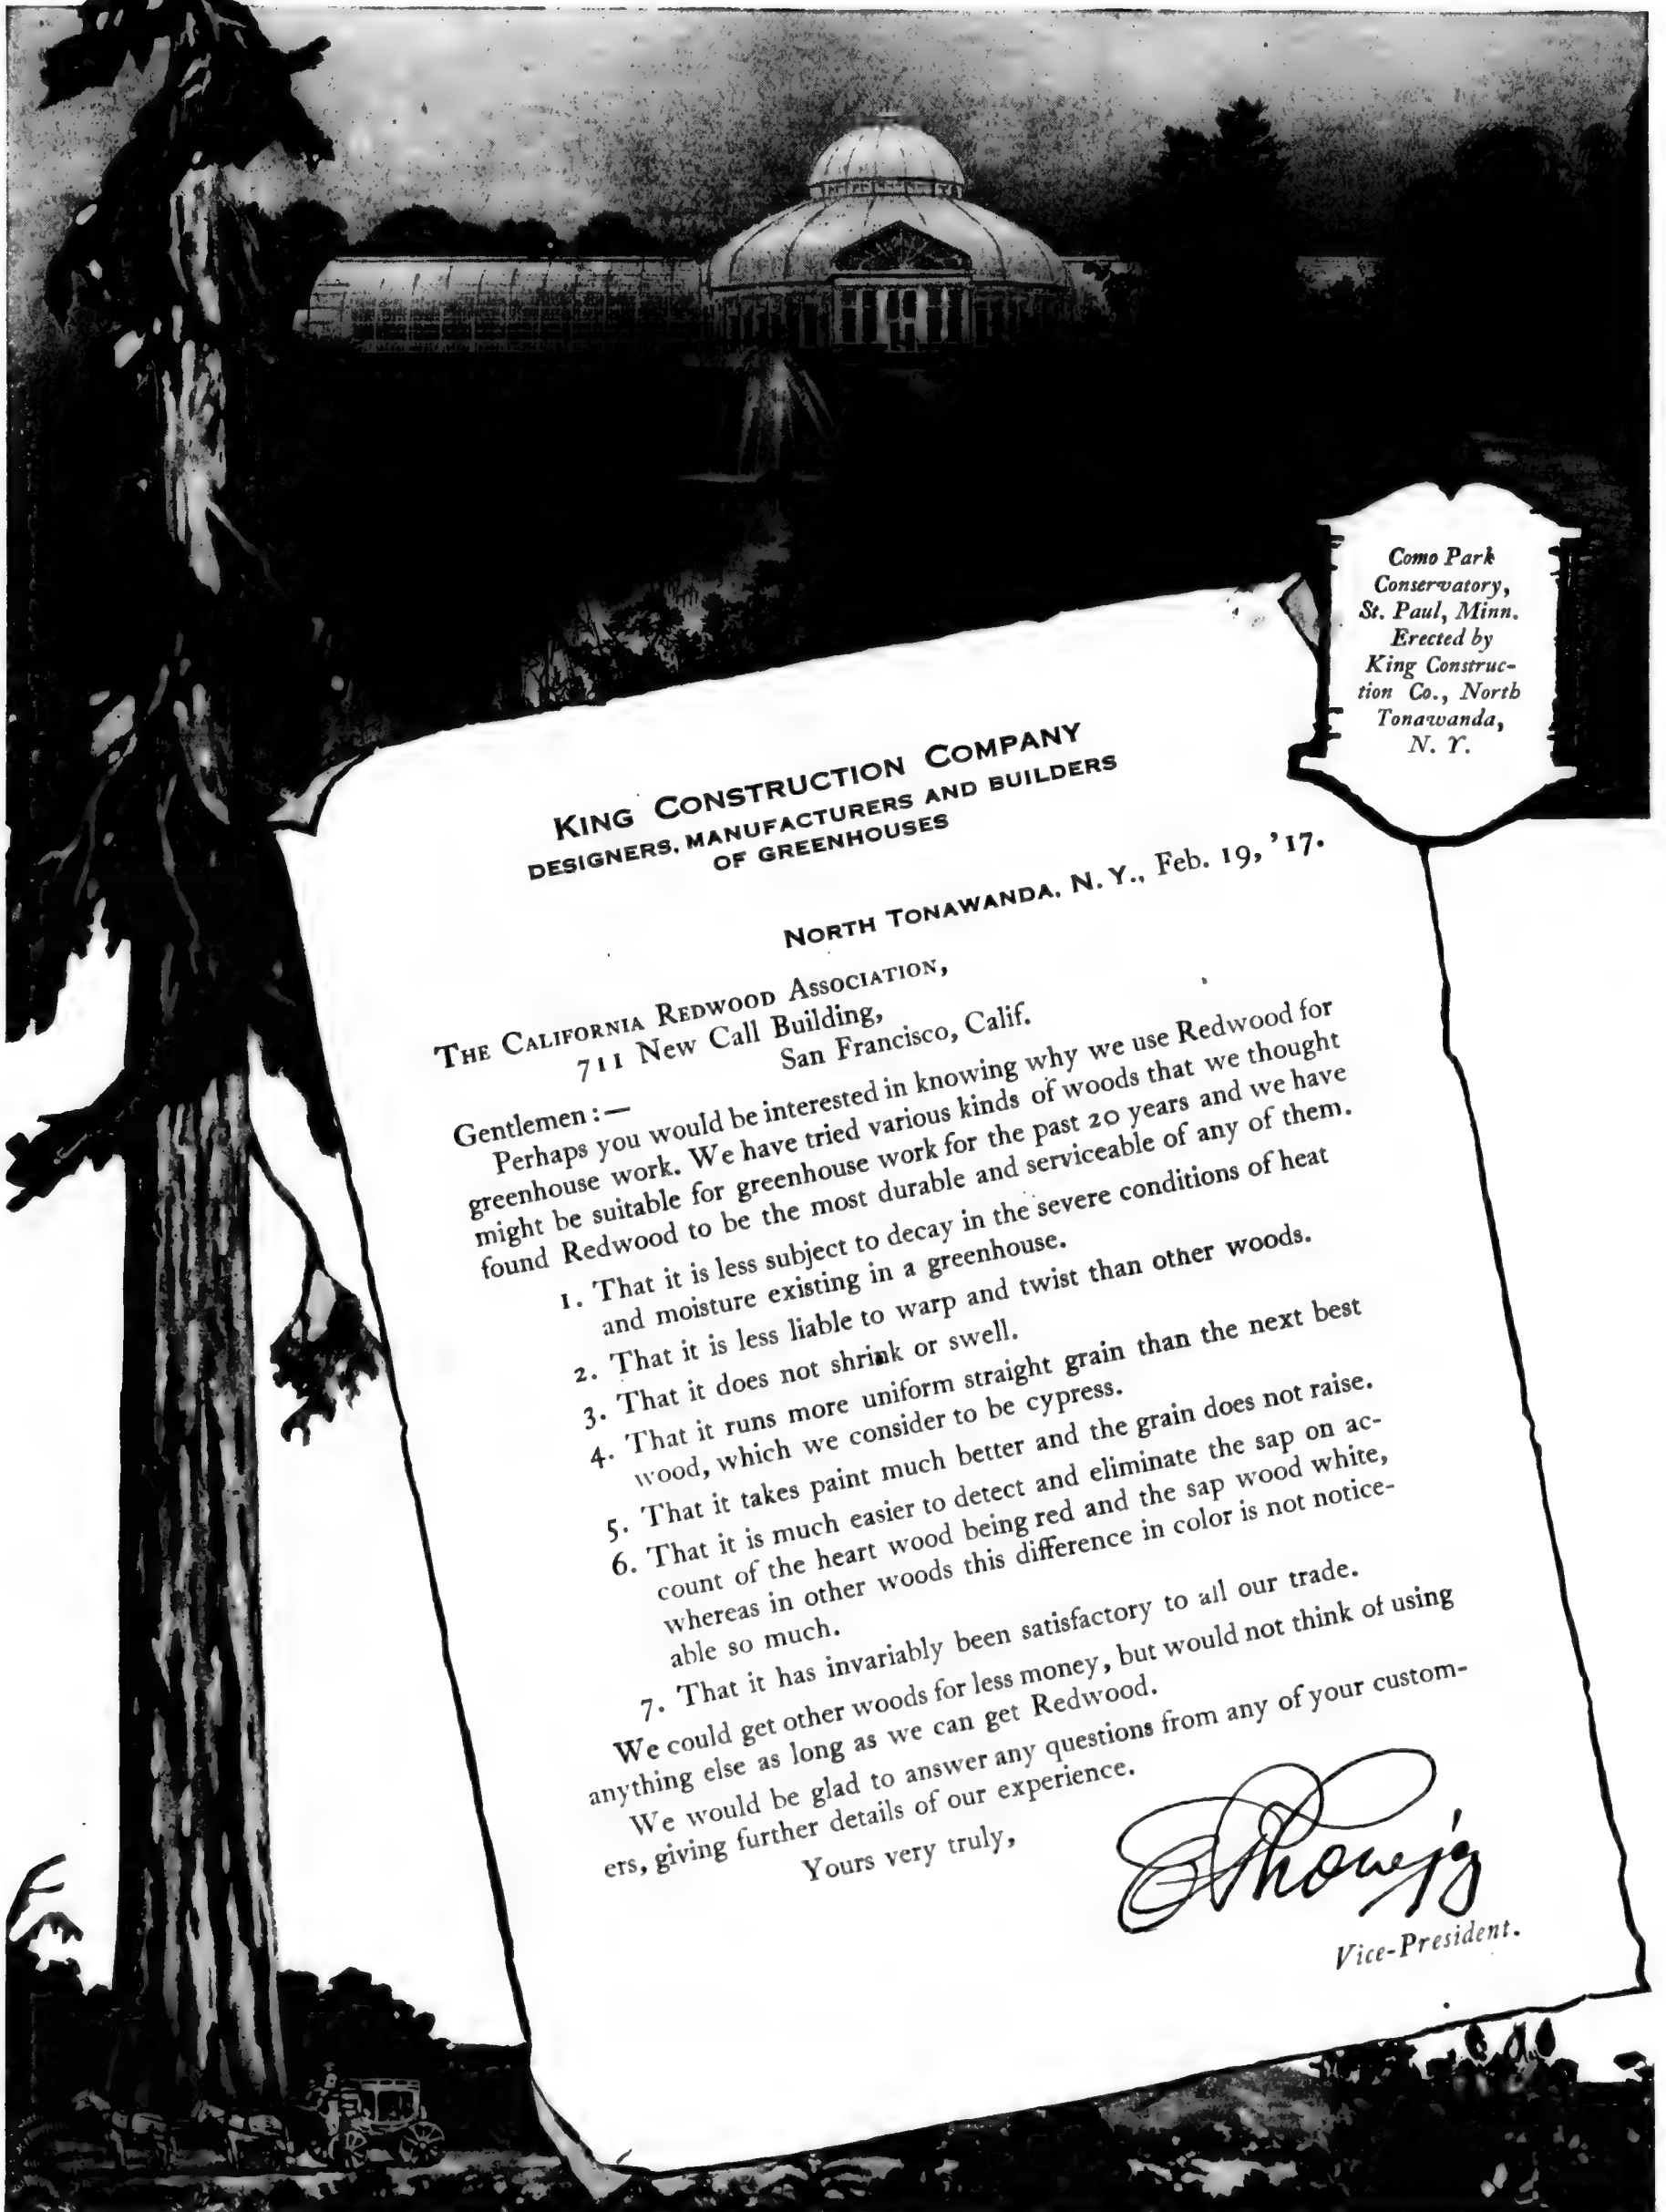

The big specimen schizanthus seen at shows in Boston, New York and Philadelphia, five to seven feet in diameter, are always grown cool, 45 degrees at night being considered better than 50 degrees at night for them, as it makes them much more stocky. At the last potting, soil such as is used for mums and roses is found suitable, and liquid manure and top-dressings of fertilizer are applied when the pots are full of roots. I think that if you used a light shade on your glass and ran a somewhat lower night temperature, you would have better results and greatly reduce the burning.

San Francisco, Calif.

Gentlemen:—

Perhaps you would be interested in knowing why we use Redwood for greenhouse work. We have tried various kinds of woods that we thought might be suitable for greenhouse work for the past 20 years and we have found Redwood to be the most durable and serviceable of any of them.

1. That it is less subject to decay in the severe conditions of heat and moisture existing in a greenhouse.
2. That it is less liable to warp and twist than other woods.
3. That it does not shrink or swell.
4. That it runs more uniform straight grain than the next best wood, which we consider to be cypress.
5. That it takes paint much better and the grain does not raise.
6. That it is much easier to detect and eliminate the sap on account of the heart wood being red and the sap wood white, whereas in other woods this difference in color is not noticeable so much.
7. That it has invariably been satisfactory to all our trade.

We could get other woods for less money, but would not think of using anything else as long as we can get Redwood.

We would be glad to answer any questions from any of your customers, giving further details of our experience.

Yours very truly,

Howe's
Vice-President.

Showing one style of Evergreen Window Box Planting

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG,
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of Boxwoods and other imported plant material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the class of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Push Evergreens now and the coming months. Talk Evergreen Boxes and Hardy Tubbed Evergreens to the people who have had summer decorations. Both are as easy to sell as Summer stocks and give complete satisfaction. Try out this line now and see for yourself. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no efforts to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements, but the demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders should be placed now for immediate or late delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

The Florists' Review, 508 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

POMPONS PULL PROFITS PROMPTLY

Retailers have learned that the dainty little pompon chrysanthemum is a most useful flower and that, when placed in a pretty basket, it proves one of the best of sellers the first part of the season. Pompons soon will be plentiful and the retailer who pushes them will see his sales increase.

CANNINESS'' is a good old Scotch word that fittingly describes a trait in many of the more successful members of the trade. These florists have the ability to see opportunities whereby they can increase their sales and profits by taking advantage of certain conditions in the market—conditions that are known to all of us, but which all of us have not the quickness of perception to turn to good account. In consequence the successful retailers turn a quick trick, pocket a neat profit and are preparing to do the same thing again, only in a different way, when some of us wake to the fact that we have overlooked a profitable opportunity. Such a retailer lives in almost every city in the country. By his success, he easily can be picked out. How one such florist turns conditions to a good account may suggest ideas to others in the trade.

How One Florist Does It.

This man is a close student of conditions in the wholesale market. Daily he visits the different wholesalers and talks with the growers who happen to be there. From them he learns what stock is going to be plentiful about Saturday; what are the prospects of a glut, or whether the most seasonable of stock will be scarce. The information thus gained he turns into cash profits for himself.

Perhaps he finds out that the cuts of pompon chrysanthemums promise to be exceptionally heavy the last part of the week. So he hustles off to the man who does his printing and prepares to feed the goose that every once in a while lays for him a golden egg. He has printed cards which announce that next Saturday pompon chrysanthemums will be extra fine in quality and extra low in price, but he does not name the price. He also supplies the information that pompons will be a good buy next Saturday, thereby appealing to every person's desire to get a bargain. These cards he mails to his regular customers. Friday, or perhaps earlier, he begins to get orders. By Saturday morning he is ready to buy the stock, much of which already has been sold. Should the conditions be such as the growers have predicted, he gets his stock cheap. He sells it at prices which bring him the usual profit, but which are looked upon by his customers as "bargain prices."

Opportunities Are Many.

This retailer, and many others who have the same amount of "canniness," have done this many times. Perhaps the opportunity comes through roses being in heavy supply; perhaps carnations are a glut; but whatever the medium may be, he is merely taking advantage of a recognized trade principle—that the time to sell any commodity is when it is in season.

During the next six weeks that companion of Jack Frost, the pompon chrysanthemum, will be at its best. Last year pompons sold best in the early part of the season. While their popularity waned after about November 10, by which time they had been heavily in evidence for several weeks, some of the later varieties of pompons sold well at good prices after the glut had passed, especially at Christmas and New Year's.

It has been only during the last four or five years that the production of pompons has been large enough to make them recognized factors in the supply of autumn flowers. They came into popularity first because they provided a novelty. Growers realized good profits on them and began to produce larger quantities, and this year they will be in heavy supply in all the markets of the country until Thanksgiving or later.

Much of the popularity of pompons with the flower buyers came through the use retailers made of them. They are adaptable for many things. Some of the double white varieties can be used instead of carnations in funeral designs. They even are useful for corsages, while the sprays add much to decorations.

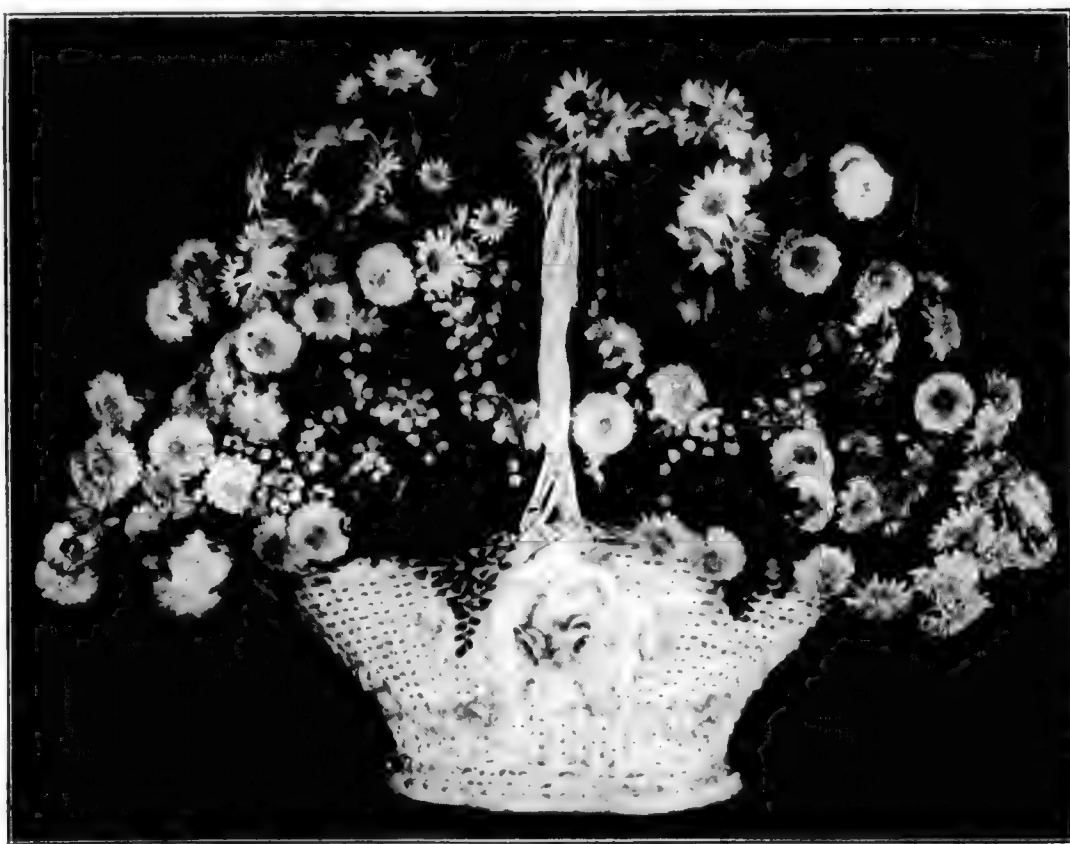

But what are most popular with buyers are baskets of pompons. Take a bunch of these small flowers and put them in a basket with a touch of ribbon and you have something that sells as well as the proverbial hot cakes.

Pretty Baskets Help Sales.

Basket manufacturers and supply men have realized this popularity and each season sees their output better adapted to pompons. Small baskets, with or without liners, are best. The flowers may be put in water, but sometimes wet moss is used.

Retailers should be sure to have enough of these small baskets in stock, because there will be a big call for them now that the season of small mums is on. Ribbon, too, is essential, the satin-edged gauze, or light ribbon, being best for these light, graceful flowers and the small baskets. The wide, heavy satin taffeta ribbons do not go well with pompons.

Small baskets filled with the less expensive seasonable flowers are having a wonderful popularity and are bringing good returns to the retailers. Last spring this was especially so. Baskets filled with sweet peas, tulips, jonquils, short-stemmed roses and other flowers sold rapidly at from Push the Pompons, Give Their Season a Flying Start.

$1.50 to $3 a piece. Retailers in many cities made these baskets leaders in their sales and cleaned up nicely.

An excellent example of how attractive pompons are when tastefully arranged in baskets is shown in the illustration on the preceding page. Such a basket would undoubtedly prove a winner during the next few weeks. It is dainty and at the same time showy, and, while it does not cost so much money, will add substantially to the profits of the store that makes a leader of it, and those similar to it.

Pushing the sale of pompons at this season, and with the true pompons should be included the single and semi-double varieties, is one of those opportunities for profit that were spoken of at the beginning of this article. Each year sees a greater number of these mums grown. The buying public seems to be unable to get enough of them except at the height of the season. But the sales can be made greater with a greater effort on the part of the retailer. What he has to do is to make the flowers attractive with the accessories now so much used in the trade and let his customers and the public generally know about them.

THIS IS PHILIP.

The employees of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, recently enjoyed an outing, the head of the house being one of the hugely interested participants. The omnipresent snapshooter obtained an excellent focus, with the result shown in the accompanying illustration, in which Philip Breitmeyer is shown minus a collar, but wearing an extremely good-natured grin—not to mention the girl's hat—with his hands full of freshly gathered water lilies.

ECHOS OF THE F. T. D. MEETING AT DETROIT

A FINE FINISH.

The Detroit florists were lavish in their hospitality when the F. T. D. met in their city last week. In addition to many individual evening entertainments, the Detroit Florists' Club served luncheon both days, thus keeping the members together for the entire day. However, the special feature of the entertainment followed final adjournment. It was a cold, raw, rainy afternoon, but the visitors were taken in florists' motor cars for a ride over the boulevards, returning to the store of E. A. Fetters for supper. The unique location of the store makes such service possible and the affair, which lasted well into the evening, was spoken of by all as one of the best planned and executed in the history of trade gatherings. Of course there was music and speech making, in which Charles H. Grakelow shone with special brilliancy.

MORE MONEY FOR PUBLICITY.

In last week's report of the meeting of the F. T. D. many subscriptions to the S. A. F. publicity fund were reported. The F. T. D. itself subscribed $2,500. Philip Breitmeyer made a special contribution of $500 and there were other individual subscriptions aggregating $2,600. Due to a telegraphic error the subscription of $50 by Westman & Getz, Cleveland, was not included in the list.

WHAT CLEVELAND THINKS.

Views in the Next Convention City.

The next convention of the F. T. D. will be held at Cleveland, which makes special interest attach to what the Cleveland florists think of last week's Detroit meeting, reported fully in The Review for October 4. Cleveland comments are:

By H. P. Knoble.

"I have attended many florists' conventions, but the Detroit meeting of the F. T. D. was the most interesting, most successful and most far-reaching in scope of all; interesting because of the active presence of, and contact with, the leading and most representative members of the profession, engaged in earnest interchange of views; successful, because of the actual good accomplished; far-reaching, because the problems considered were vital, regardless of location, and not only national in importance, but international as well.

"I am more than convinced that the F. T. D. as an organization is the greatest single factor in the development of the commercial flower business. It literally teems with potentiality. It opens up a vast field, and meetings such as this go a long way in determining the best methods for its proper cultivation.

"There are times, perhaps, when one feels that the same expenditure of money, time and energy might bring greater returns in other fields. To my mind, a most efficacious remedy for this mental state is the attendance at an F. T. D. convention such as the one held in Detroit. A few drafts of the enthusiasm met there would soon restore the equilibrium of the depressed and prove the positive pleasure of being associated with the mentally vigorous and unselfish members of the profession."

By Carl Hagenburger.

"Among the many notable features at the Detroit meeting I was particularly impressed by the splendid manner in which the boys got down to business and stayed at it. President Gude's dexterity with the gavel doubtless had much to do with it, but the chief reason was that this was a meeting of business men—men accustomed to working in double harness. And it might be said here, that this is the only method of getting anything worth while accomplished.

"When I went to Detroit I was not a member of the F. T. D., but I joined there, and if I have any regrets it is because I had not become a member several years before. As a body, formed to promote the welfare of a business, I know of no organization in any field so fraught with the pos-

"I was somewhat averse to attending the F. T. D. convention, but went, and now feel that I never spent money to better advantage. It was an inspiring and instructive meeting, replete with life and vim. The trade was represented by able business men, who also are gentlemen. The business of the meeting was transacted with courtesy and dispatch, there being not a single jarring note. Advertising, credits and bookkeeping were discussed, and many points of particular benefit were brought out. "Although a wholesaler, I felt sufficiently interested in the work of the F. T. D. in its efforts to increase the use of flowers to attend the Detroit meeting. I am glad I went, for it

$1.50 to $3 a piece. Retailers in many cities made these baskets leaders in their sales and cleaned up nicely.

An excellent example of how attractive pompons are when tastefully arranged in baskets is shown in the illustration on the preceding page. Such a basket would undoubtedly prove a winner during the next few weeks. It is dainty and at the same time showy, and, while it does not cost so much money, will add substantially to the profits of the store that makes a leader of it, and those similar to it.

Pushing the sale of pompons at this season, and with the true pompons should be included the single and semi-double varieties, is one of those opportunities for profit that were spoken of at the beginning of this article. Each year sees a greater number of these mums grown. The buying public seems to be unable to get enough of them except at the height of the season. But the sales can be made greater with a greater effort on the part of the retailer. What he has to do is to make the flowers attractive with the accessories now so much used in the trade and let his customers and the public generally know about them.

THIS IS PHILIP.

The employees of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, recently enjoyed an outing, the head of the house being one of the hugely interested participants. The omnipresent snapshooter obtained an excellent focus, with the result shown in the accompanying illustration, in which Philip Breitmeyer is shown minus a collar, but wearing an extremely good-natured grin—not to mention the girl's hat—with his hands full of freshly gathered water lilies.

ECHOS OF THE F. T. D. MEETING AT DETROIT

A FINE FINISH.

The Detroit florists were lavish in their hospitality when the F. T. D. met in their city last week. In addition to many individual evening entertainments, the Detroit Florists' Club served luncheon both days, thus keeping the members together for the entire day. However, the special feature of the entertainment followed final adjournment. It was a cold, raw, rainy afternoon, but the visitors were taken in florists' motor cars for a ride over the boulevards, returning to the store of E. A. Fetters for supper. The unique location of the store makes such service possible and the affair, which lasted well into the evening, was spoken of by all as one of the best planned and executed in the history of trade gatherings. Of course there was music and speech making, in which Charles H. Grakelow shone with special brilliancy.

MORE MONEY FOR PUBLICITY.

In last week's report of the meeting of the F. T. D. many subscriptions to the S. A. F. publicity fund were reported. The F. T. D. itself subscribed $2,500. Philip Breitmeyer made a special contribution of $500 and there were other individual subscriptions aggregating $2,600. Due to a telegraphic error the subscription of $50 by Westman & Getz, Cleveland, was not included in the list.

WHAT CLEVELAND THINKS.

Views in the Next Convention City.

The next convention of the F. T. D. will be held at Cleveland, which makes special interest attach to what the Cleveland florists think of last week's Detroit meeting, reported fully in The Review for October 4. Cleveland comments are:

By H. P. Knoble.

"I have attended many florists' conventions, but the Detroit meeting of the F. T. D. was the most interesting, most successful and most far-reaching in scope of all; interesting because of the active presence of, and contact with, the leading and most representative members of the profession, engaged in earnest interchange of views; successful, because of the actual good accomplished; far-reaching, because the problems considered were vital, regardless of location, and not only national in importance, but international as well.

"I am more than convinced that the F. T. D. as an organization is the greatest single factor in the development of the commercial flower business. It literally teems with potentiality. It opens up a vast field, and meetings such as this go a long way in determining the best methods for its proper cultivation.

"There are times, perhaps, when one feels that the same expenditure of money, time and energy might bring greater returns in other fields. To my mind, a most efficacious remedy for this mental state is the attendance at an F. T. D. convention such as the one held in Detroit. A few drafts of the enthusiasm met there would soon restore the equilibrium of the depressed and prove the positive pleasure of being associated with the mentally vigorous and unselfish members of the profession."

By Carl Hagenburger.

"Among the many notable features at the Detroit meeting I was particularly impressed by the splendid manner in which the boys got down to business and stayed at it. President Gude's dexterity with the gavel doubtless had much to do with it, but the chief reason was that this was a meeting of business men—men accustomed to working in double harness. "Although a wholesaler, I felt sufficiently interested in the work of the F. T. D. in its efforts to increase the use of flowers to attend the Detroit meeting. I am glad I went, for it brought me into touch with some of the best members of the trade. I believe, without exaggeration, that I met more live-wire florists than ever before at a single gathering. There were present men from Maine to California, all imbued with a keen desire to glean something from the knowledge and experience of their fellow tradesmen that might assist them in the solution of their own individual problems. This, to my mind, means that a new day has dawned for the florist, in that his business is soon to be conducted upon a strictly business basis, like that adhered to in other lines of endeavor."

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson.

"Talk about pep! When President Gude brought down his gavel the lid was removed from the box, and every person present at the F. T. D. meeting became suddenly inoculated with pep! "Call it 'go,' if you like; every up-to-date florist in the land had gone to it!

"Designate it 'push,' if you care; it was there in the person of the energetic secretary.

"It was an excellent meeting, productive of much good. There should be more of them.

"We were royally entertained by the Detroit florists and we shall not soon forget the genuine good-fellowship that we met with everywhere."

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

PENN AND PUBLICITY.

At the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit the advertising of Penn, of Boston, was referred to by many speakers as an evidence of what a florist can accomplish through the skillful use of publicity. It also was commented on that many of the Penn advertisements are not direct offers of things for sale and Mr. Penn said he thinks the advertisements dealing with the topics of the day are among the most effective he uses in arousing in the public interest in his store.

Reproduced with this note is an advertisement he has just used which cleverly couples the florists' business with the Liberty bond advertising campaign, which just now occupies more attention than anything else before the public. "It would be good advertising," writes Mr. Penn, "for the florists throughout the country to tie up to the Liberty bond publicity, not only because it is the patriotic thing to do, but because it is good advertising for any florist. Our method of treating it is not copyrighted."

FLOWERS IN HOTELS.

A great deal may be said regarding a recent editorial in a hotel bulletin on the subject of "Artistic Floral Decorations." Years ago people expected to put up with the inconveniences of hotels; no one thought of permanently living at hotels. In this advanced period more and more people live in the country half of each year, and a hotel is their "home" the other half. They expect every convenience and luxury that money can command, and it is the efficient carrying out of small details in all departments that keeps the big wheel running smoothly.

The first fully equipped department of decorations was introduced at the Hotel Statler, Cleveland. It is under the direction of Mrs. Anna W. Slaght, and the success from the first was so marked that it proved conclusively the urgent need of such a department in all good hotels; also that it is a woman's job. In a home, where most of the entertaining has always been done, has it been the man who planned and put the thought into the finishing touches of a table? We will admit that he pays the bills, and that a gentleman is at all times as particular regarding the appointments of a table as a woman, but it takes the artistic touches of a woman to complete a table. In the first place, a man may have enough artistic ability to arrange flowers artistically, but to keep up at all times with the latest ideas and innovations in cards, favors, wedding accessories, etc., is too effeminate for a man to handle in this important thing of a large commercial hotel. At the same time, a wonderfully cooked and served dinner can be a fail-

a department. The guests are relieved of every detail; if a wedding, then from the altar to the rice thrown for good luck. At college dinners or banquets one must be able to create and carry out different college ideas. For convention work one must design rooms and tables in keeping with the trade-marks or emblems. For banquets of different nationalities one must be familiar with the different flags, colors, etc. It is a most interesting work for any woman who is creative and has talent along these lines. It has no end of possibilities—from a guest's standpoint, convenience, luxury and necessity; from a hotel's standpoint, economy, profit and courtesy.

STRONG FOR PUBLICITY.

I am enclosing a few of the advertisements I have been running in the local daily newspapers from time to time. I think florists throughout the country will be interested in what the S. A. F. is going to do to call the public's attention to flowers. It is a good idea. I have had good results from the advertising, but find it must be kept up in order to have my name and business impressed upon the public. Of course, I use window displays and other advertising matter. I feel assured that florists must wake up and use plenty of space in the papers, the same as the department stores do.

Edward Green.

The advertisements Mr. Green enclosed occupy two, three and four inches of space in single column. They call attention to his display windows; tell of special sales, and impress upon the public the sentiment of special days, such as Mothers' day. It is advertising such as this that the S. A. F. publicity plan contemplates local florists will do to get the benefit of the national advertising in magazines.—Editor.

St. Joseph, Mo.—The Chesmore, Eastlake Co. is most sanguine regarding the coming season's business, but a shortage of Holland bulbs will be felt.

Laurel, Del.—George E. Smith, of the L. M. Smith Quality Flower Co., spent the summer with his son, who is assistant secretary and treasurer of the Canadian Explosives Co., Montreal, Que.

The Most Wonderful Blossoming Plant in the World

If a large and thoroughly reliable business concern offered to the public a plant that could be bought in any size, at a price suited to every man's pocketbook, that required absolutely no care, would grow out of doors or in the house, summer and winter alike, and was guaranteed to bear twice a year, on stated days for a period of twenty-five years, blossoms so highly prized that anybody would accept them in payment for merchandise and service, and if at the end of the period the concern guaranteed to repay the owner his total original cost—such a plant would truly be the most wonderful plant in the world.

The above conditions apply exactly to the terms and advantages of the second issue of the Liberty Loan Bonds. We advise their purchase by every household in the country.

ure by reason of a poorly appointed table. The small details are fully as essential and need as much scientific consideration as the cooking does.

A handsome centerpiece is ordered from a florist, but only too often it is too large or too small for a certain table. A captain, waiter or bus-boy has no knowledge of how to obtain the required results. The host, not pleased with a table, does not take into consideration that, while he ordered the flowers from a florist, he did not pay the florist to decorate the table. It is a courtesy and convenience to the guest to have such

HOW THE WAR TAXES AFFECT THE TRADE

WE ALL MUST PAY OUR SHARES.

No Special Taxes for the Trade.

The trade, including florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, is not specially taxed in the new war revenue law, which, with President Wilson's signature, went on the statute books last week, but the character of the business makes some of the new taxes bear quite heavily on us. For instance, express charges will be increased approximately five per cent under the paragraph which taxes the express companies 1 cent on each 20 cents paid to them. This tax will be added to bills collected, instead of being paid by stamps affixed to receipt books by the shipper, as was done the last time express shipments were taxed; consequently, the tax will be paid by the buyers of cut flowers, plants and florists' supplies. This part of the law goes into effect November 1.

Growers will find freight bills increased three per cent by the tax. This will add nearly 7 cents per ton to the cost of Pocahontas coal to growers in the Chicago territory, many of whom burn from 5,000 to 50,000 tons per year.

Many Miscellaneous Items.

Houses sending out travelers will find their railroad fares increased eight per cent and their Pullman fares increased ten per cent.

November 3 letter postage will become 3 cents instead of 2 cents.

The trade has escaped the threatened tax on the mailing of catalogues, as the law does not apply where the postage is less than 25 cents per piece; this lets the seed trade out.

The trade makes large use of the telegraph, in ordering stock and in F. T. D. work. Each telegram or long-distance telephone call costing 15 cents or more will carry an added tax cost of 5 cents.

New policies of insurance will carry a stamp tax of one per cent of the face and there are many other new taxes that will be passed along to the consumer but which do not bear specially on our trade. One of these is three per cent on the cost of any new car we buy.

Excess Profits Hard Hit.

Multitudinous as are the new taxes, they are of small consequence when compared with the two items of income and excess profits taxes, especially the latter. The excess profits tax will take from twenty to forty per cent of the normal profits of many small corporations engaged in the florists' business and the individuals will be heavily assessed because they will have to pay income taxes if not excess profits taxes.

Growers who have anywhere from $50,000 to $1,000,000 invested in land and greenhouses will be permitted to earn from seven to nine per cent on the capital before the war taxes apply, but the retail florist or commission dealer using only $5,000 to $10,000 of capital and turning it often to make the same profit a fair-sized grower does, will be harder hit. The war revenue bill often has been referred to as the conscription of wealth, but in its effects on the trade it seems more like a tax on personal ability, industry and special capacity for the business.

How the Tax Applies.

In the accompanying boxed table the application of the law to a retail florists' business of moderate size is shown. In one case the figures are for a corporation, in the second a partnership of two men or for an individual.

In the cases of the individual and the partners the excess profits tax is increased by the application of the individual income tax, but in neither case is any tax figured on income aside from that derived from the profits of the business. It is to be supposed that in any case salaries for management have been figured out in computing the profit of $12,500. If the owner or chief stockholder also is manager he is entitled to draw as salary a sum such as it would be necessary to pay someone else to run the business to an equally good financial result.

The need for comprehensive book-keeping is accentuated by the increased taxes. We are expected to pay in accordance with the law and none of us has a desire to do less than his duty, but it is folly not to so keep books that the profits shown are of a tangible character rather than of the ephemeral qualities so many profit accounts show to the outsider who analyzes them after trouble comes.

ASTER YELLOWS.

We are sending you under another cover a specimen from our aster garden, which contains about 500 plants, nearly all of which are affected as the sample. We would like to know what is the cause of the disease and its remedy, if there is any.

We planted the seeds in flats in the greenhouse early in April, transplanting the seedlings into 2-inch pots after the second leaves appeared. About the middle of May we planted them in the open, eight inches apart in rows about two feet apart.

The ground in which they are planted has not been used for asters for about four years and was fertilized last fall and plowed under this spring. Other plants from seeds sown in the open look better, but also show signs of the same disease. These are in soil that has never before been used for asters.

A. C. A.—Neb.

Your plants are attacked by what is commonly called the yellows disease in asters, which gives the entire plant a bleached appearance. Its exact cause is unknown, but it is probably due in considerable measure to irregularity in the supply of moisture to the roots, which causes a derangement in the plant's functions. The trouble, in common with stem-rot, may have its inception in the seed bed. For this reason, outdoor grown seedlings are always more immune from disease than those started under glass. Overcrowding in seed flats and burying seedlings too deeply at transplanting time will aggravate the evil. Cover the seed flats with sand after sowing, prick off before the plants crowd, and grow them cool and airy. Give frequent cultivation in the field, especially during spells of hot, dry weather, and you will materially reduce the number of diseased plants. C. W.

MUST HAVE STICK-TO-ITIVENESS.

The line that in a business way has divided the florists of America as narrow-minded, self-centered and self-satisfied beings from broad-minded American business men, has been crossed. It has taken years for the germ to get a hold, but it has at last made itself apparent in the start made at the New York convention, and I hope the work so ably started will go on.

It is well that subscriptions are being made for a period of years. Publicity, as we call it, is just plain advertising, and advertising has a cumulative value. The longer the slogan is before the public, the more it is worth. With advertising discontinued, business travels on its own momentum, losing which it stands still and then goes backward.

Back publicity with clean, honest methods and good values and nothing can stop the industry. We are all fighting a new fight to get back what modern business is costing us. We need each other, and I am happy to be fighting the good fight shoulder to shoulder with others for the trade's uplifting to the business level, at least, of the chewing gum industry, and hope that some day, with our endless variety of stock in trade, we may reach the industrial level of the fifty-seven varieties.

BULBOUS STOCK FOR HOLIDAYS.

We will open a store this fall in a town of 20,000 inhabitants where there already are two flower stores, and would like to have some advice. Can you give us an idea as to how many and what varieties of tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, etc., we should order and grow for Christmas and Easter? Our highest night temperature is 55 degrees. We would appreciate the same information regarding lilies. S. & S.—O.

I could not advise you as to how many bulbs to buy for your trade, as I have no idea what the sales may be. You could not force Dutch bulbs and have them in flower for Christmas, but it will be easy to bloom any of them for Easter. I would suggest that you buy 5,000 Paper White narcissi. These you can have in flower from Thanksgiving until after Easter. Grow them in flats and store these and other bulbs in a cold cellar or pit where they can be readily got at in winter. Roman hyacinths can be flowered from early in December until Easter. Freesia Purity, if started now in pans, will bloom in January and successional plantings can be made to prolong the season. You should grow at least 2,500 of these.

Of Dutch bulbs I would suggest 3,000 La Reine tulips, 2,000 Murillo, 1,000 Flamingo, 1,000 Yellow Prince, 1,000 Brimstone Beauty, 1,000 Darwin Pride of Haarlem, and 5,000 Golden Spur narcissi, 5,000 Victoria, 2,500 double Von Sion, 2,000 Trumpet major, 1,000 Emperor, 2,000 rugulosus. A number of these could be grown in pots or pans for Easter and should be housed a month or so before they are needed. Grow some of the Dutch hyacinths for Easter. I would suggest trying 500 in pink, white and pale blue colors. Spanish iris and Gladiolus Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride will be found useful after Easter.

Plant Formosa lilies for Easter. You will not be able to get giganteums, which are the best lilies to bloom for an early Easter in a temperature of 55 degrees. Pot the lilies as soon as you can receive them and start them in a frame or below a greenhouse bench where they will be clear of drip. Grow them in 6-inch pots and be sure to water them moderately until the plants are well rooted and started into growth. Lilies for Easter in your warmest house should be showing their buds seven weeks before Easter. C. W.

THE MEN IN KHAKI.

Reveille Supersedes Alarm Clock.

The insatiable greediness of war for men and more men continues to take workers from the business of flowers to make them expert in the business of fighting. But as the list of florist-fighters grows, it is apparent that burdens must also be borne by those who remain at home. Each week The Review prints the names of those who have become members of either the army or navy, and any information about florists who have gone, or who will go, will be appreciated.

Poat at the Front.

Robert Poat, of Poat Bros., Richmond, Va., did not wait for the United States to get mixed up in the war, but enlisted last April in a Canadian infantry unit. He finally has reached the front in France and writes that he has charge of one of the Lewis guns. Poat Bros. are bulb growers and Robert Poat is well known among the members of the trade at Richmond.

Buckbee Family Aids Soldiers.

While Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Buckbee and J. T. Buckbee, of Rockford, Ill., have not gone to war, they are doing many things to make more pleasant the stay of the embryo soldiers at Camp Grant, near Rockford. In testimony thereof, Company A Engineers, before leaving the camp September 29, held an informal farewell reception at which the Messrs. Buckbee were presented with diamond rings, and Mrs. Buckbee with an article of jewelry. These tokens of remembrance were in recognition of the social activities of the recipients in behalf of the engineers while they were in Rockford. The company of engineers was the first to arrive at Camp Grant and supervised the building of the cantonment.

Starts for Europe, Via Camp.

Victor B. Willis, manager of the Midland Cut Flower Store, Midland, Pa., has been called to the colors and left October 7 for Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O. "Good-bye. I will see you in Berlin," he writes.

Review Bookkeeper Called.

Frank Zdarsky, for several years a bookkeeper in the office of The Review, was among those drafted into the army. Mr. Zdarsky did not claim exemption and October 4 left for Rockford, Ill., where the men drawn from Chicago and other parts of Illinois are in training. Mr. Zdarsky was the first member of The Review staff to be called. But there are others who probably will depart within a short time.

Two Robinson, Ill., Men Go.

The war has taken two men from the establishment of Ernest T. Oldham, Robinson, Ill. Last May Earl Richards, an employee of Mr. Oldham, enlisted in the army and now is with the Pershing forces in France. The draft October 2 took Luther Johnson, who had been employed by Mr. Oldham during the last two years. Mr. Johnson is now at the cantonment at Rockford, Ill., training.

Arthur C. Abrams Drafted.

Arthur C. Abrams, the son in the firm of W. F. Abrams & Son, Haverhill, Mass., has been drafted and left for the camp at Ayer, Mass., October 5. Young Mr. Abrams has been associated with his father in the florists' business for several years.

Nebraska Man Joins.

A. T. Howard, of the Howard Greenhouses and Flower Shop, Scottsbluff, Neb., has answered the call of Uncle Sam and joined the army. He is now at one of the training camps learning how to make war in the most approved modern style.

R. P. Hargrave, one of the owners of Hargraves' Seed Store, Galveston, Tex., is a member of the quartermaster's corps of the United States army and is stationed at Camp Logan, Houston, Tex., one of the camps where what was the national guard is in training. Mr. Hargrave was associated with his father, M. P. Hargrave, who died recently, and his brother, J. F. Hargrave, in the seed business at Galveston.

A VISIT TO WHITE MARSH.

Home of the Vincents.

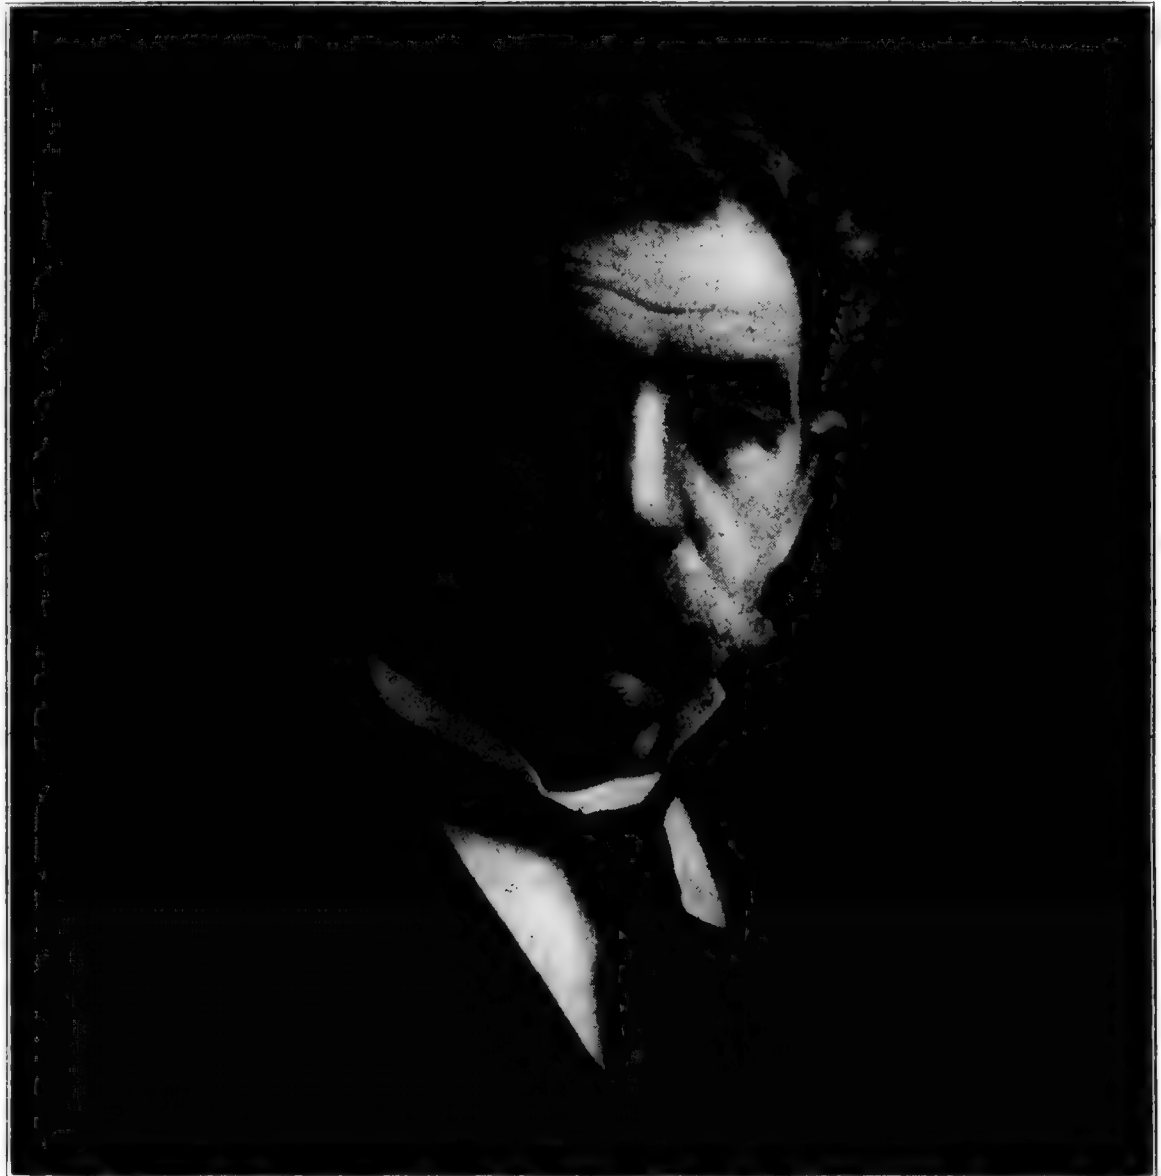

At a recent meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore I talked to Richard Vincent, Jr., about dahlias. He had a vase of new dahlias on exhibition that surpassed anything I had ever seen, and as we examined them the thought struck me that I had never been out at White Marsh, Md., to see the home of the dahlia, canna and chrysanthemum. So we made an engagement, and in due course of time I met Mr. Vincent at historic old Camden station, Baltimore, and from there on it was a personally conducted tour, with a most interesting man for guide. As we passed through the beautiful country Mr. Vincent pointed out to me spots of unusual interest, and about fifteen miles out we got off at a station in a quiet spot. There was a postoffice and a group of buildings, and things looked unusually busy and prosperous for such a location. To run ahead of my story, I learned on my return to the station that the Vincent dahlia farm was responsible for this station and postoffice in the woods.

We had about a mile's ride in one of the automobiles from the place, over fine roads and through a densely wooded country, arriving at what is often called "Vincentville." We emerged from the woods into a well kept farm of 350 acres. There are fourteen dwellings on it, five of which are occupied by children of my host, and the remainder by employees of the farm. The eye would become dazzled by the kaleidoscope of color as we went along the drive, and as far as the eye could reach were fields of dahlias and cannas in full bloom. Here and there was a field of chrysanthemums not yet in bloom, but the bright green foliage helped to make up a picture that surpassed anything I had ever seen in flowers.

The Range and Packing Shed.

I have stood on a peak in the Blue Ridge mountains and looked off into the Cumberland and Shenandoah valley at fields of ripening grain that suggested a patchwork quilt. This is just what the Vincent dahlia farm would suggest, except that nearly every color of the

When his health failed several years ago, Henry Meuschke, Pittsburgh, Pa., sold his bakery and confectionery business and moved to Castle Shannon, near that city. There he occupied his leisure growing flowers. Renewed health and much pleasure were derived from this work and gradually Mr. Meuschke enlarged the scope of his operations. When his two sons, who also had developed a love for flowers, decided to make floriculture their life work, Mr. Meuschke built the Saxonwald Greenhouses, a range of 150,000 feet of glass. rainbow makes up the beautiful scene.

In the distance I caught sight of a range of glass, and as we approached it I began to have some conception of its magnitude. The first range we entered was the one in which the stock plants are kept. In this range, which covers an acre of ground, one can see 300,000 geraniums growing on benches, besides other bedding plants. All of the best varieties are grown, and as the firm sells plants from 2 and 3-inch pots to florists, its reputation demands that everything must be the best in variety and, above everything, true to name.

As Mr. Vincent explained the care and system used to accomplish this, I was not surprised that shipments are made to florists in every state east of the Mississippi, from Maine to Florida. In the packing houses there was an order for 1,000 geraniums from 3-inch pots being put on the truck for Maine.

This great mass of stock is sold without a salesman on the road, advertisements and a catalogue being the only "salesmen" employed. This packing shed is three stories and a cellar, and everything about it works like a piece of well lubricated machinery. R. A. Vincent, who has charge of this plant end of the business, has his office in the center of this beehive of industry, and he has devised a system that is as nearly perfect as it possibly could be. There is one thing for which he is always on the alert; that is, an opportunity to economize on space and labor. Radiating from this shed are four blocks of houses, each of these covering an acre of ground. In each of these ranges the benches run crossways instead of the length of the house, and one can readily see where much time is saved in wheeling the plants from the potting benches to the houses. Radiating from this shed are four blocks of houses, each of these covering an acre of ground. In each of these ranges the benches run crossways instead of the length of the house, and one can readily see where much time is saved in wheeling the plants from the potting benches to the houses. These four ranges are connected with the packing shed by subways, so that during the coldest day in winter the work can go on without interruption.

No Lost Motion Here.

Along one side of this shed is a potting bench that runs the length of the building, at which about twenty young women pot plants either from the propagating bench or shifting from 2 to 3-inch pots. Here is where another bit of system comes in that I was not familiar with. The employees work in teams, four girls and two boys to a team. Two of the girls do the potting, the boys wheel the trays that hold 100 3-inch pots and the other two girls set the pots on the benches in the greenhouses, with three or four men keeping the bench heaped with soil.

Each Monday morning a report is placed on R. A. Vincent's desk, giving the exact number of plants shipped during the previous week; then, at the end of the year, there is a recapitulation of the weekly reports. In this way Mr. Vincent keeps track of his stock. Take salvias, for instance. The yearly report for 1917 shows that 100,000 were sold. He knows whether they were short or had too much for this year, and as these are all sold during the spring season, he can look over the stock in March and know just how they stand for 1918. I could go on with the system indefinitely, but I know that system is like statistics; it becomes tiresome. Last year six tons of heavy paper were used for lining boxes and ten tons of light paper for wrapping the plants.

A Family Success.

As I was waiting for the machine to go to the station, Mr. Vincent asked me if I had gotten all the notes I needed. I replied that "it would be easier to write about what they did not have than what they had." While on the well kept lawn, this pioneer, who now is 74 years of age, got reminiscent, and I am sure I am not betraying any confidence, for any man that has reached such success from a humble beginning has a right to be proud of it. He told me how he had started without a dollar; how his faithful wife had shared with him the burden; how, step by step, they had grown; how he had incorporated the business and there are just five members of the corporation, himself and wife and three sons. In this way the boys were kept at home, and, today, with his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren about him, Mr. Vincent is still the head of this great business, ever ready to lend a friend a helping hand, and loved by everyone. HARDY PERENNIALS

THE AUTUMNAL GARDEN.

Boltonias.

Closely allied to the asters are the boltonias, or false chamomiles. They are tall flowering subjects and are better if divided every two years. B. asteroides is the variety most in evidence now, with large heads of pure white aster-like flowers. B. latisquama is a little less hardy and vigorous than B. asteroides. Its pink flowers tinged with lavender are pretty. There is a dwarf form of this variety, growing only thirty inches in height, named nana, which is a desirable border plant.

Helianthus.

While the helianthus or hardy sunflowers are nearly all tall growers and in some cases spread almost too rapidly, we cannot well do without them in the hardy border, but their use must be carefully considered or there may be too much yellow. H. rigidus Miss Melish, with large, single, golden yellow flowers, is one of the best. Fine also is H. rigidus Miss Wilmott. The rigidus varieties spread tremendously and must be kept in check. H. orgyalis, the willow-leaved sunflower, grows six to nine feet in height and carries its medium-sized single yellow flowers practically the whole length of the stem, if the stems are thinned out well. H. Maximilianii is a late sort, just starting to flower. It will not be at its best before mid-October in good soil. This often grows eight to ten feet high. H. giganteum sometimes attains a height of ten to twelve feet. It carries bright canary yellow flowers now. One of the finest of all sunflowers, now on the wane, is H. mollis, with downy foliage and large, single pale yellow flowers. It grows four to six feet high. All the sunflowers are fine for cutting.

Rudbeckias.

The rudbeckias, or coneflowers, are to be found right through the summer and one or two varieties are good in late September. Among these are R. nitida Autumn Sun, with large primrose yellow flowers with long petals, a striking variety of robust habit, now eight to nine feet high, but in poorer land it does not exceed six feet. R. maxima, with flowers five to six inches across, grows six feet high and is a most attractive sort. R. purpurea, which started to bloom in late July, looked quite presentable, and R. Newmanii, with orange yellow flowers, also was blooming abundantly in late September.

Pyrethrum Uliginosum.

Pyrethrum uliginosum, the giant white daisy, one of the best of all perennials for cutting, makes a mass of flowers. In some seasons the attacks of the tarnished plant bugs cripple the flower spikes, but this season for some reason we have seen but few of the chinch bugs, as they are more commonly called. Effective clumps of this daisy are noteworthy and here is a plant, quite hardy, which increases abundantly each year, which every florist should grow. If some hybridizer would give us pink and blue forms, what glorious acquisitions they would be!

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

FRENCH BULBS IN SOUTH.

The Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths have arrived. The Roman hyacinths should have been boxed off at once, especially those wanted for the holidays or earlier, and those for later use a month or six weeks afterward. Paper Whites wanted for the holidays may be boxed in October. A batch for early cutting may be planted in a bench in the greenhouse or in a coldframe, with sash protection in the extreme southern states. Bulbs for late planting should be kept in cold storage. The middle of January is about as late as they can be kept, to flower satisfactorily. Bulbs for Christmas cutting may be planted on a table five weeks before that date, and in a rose house temperature will be in on time. L.

GERANIUMS IN THE SOUTH.

This month is a good time in the south to take a large batch of geranium cuttings. Instead of putting them in the sand, put them in 2¼-inch pots, using a rather light soil for potting. Place them in a coldframe, in the full sun. Water them thoroughly the first time, but only sparingly thereafter until they are rooted, which should be in about three weeks. The one thing needful to insure a good strike is to have sashes handy to protect the cuttings from the rains. If the cuttings get one or two heavy showers they will assuredly rot off. In the milder sections of the south these plants are better handled in a coldframe all the time, using sashes only on cold nights. L.

POINSETTIAS IN THE SOUTH.

As soon as the cuttings or layers of poinsettias are well established in small pots they can be made up in pans with ferns, etc., for sale at the holidays. There is no trouble in having them in good shape then, with full, healthy foliage, if only two things are remembered: First, do not overwater, but keep the plants well on the dry side, especially at the finishing stages; second, see that the plants do not lack nourishment. If these two points are properly observed, plants well furnished with foliage in pot or pan will be the result. A night temperature of 56 degrees at about the time the plants begin to develop their bracts is enough.

Sometimes before regular firing begins the temperature may drop as low as 45 degrees for a few nights, but no harm will result if the plants are kept rather dry. For fertilizing I prefer to mulch the plants with old stable manure, renewing it at the end of two weeks, rather than give them manure water. L.

Rambler Roses in Pots.

Pot-grown rambler roses are the best for early forcing. Their canes are now well developed. To assist in maturing the wood, take the pots out of the ground where they have been plunged and lay them on their sides. If we get hot weather they may need a little water. Usually, however, good sprayings from the hose will keep them sufficiently plump. These pot-grown rambler roses ripen their wood much earlier than field-grown stock and are much more dependable for early forcing.

Nerines.

Spikes are now commencing to appear on the nerines, or Guernsey lilies. Our plants have been baking under glass all summer. This thorough drying is needed to harden the bulbs and make them flower freely. Remove all dead foliage. Where any bulbs are much crowded, divide them and give them a small shift. Be sure the shift is a small one, as nerines will grow well but flower sparsely until the pots are matted with roots. They flower best in comparatively small pots, anywhere from 3-inch to 6-inch. They succeed well in a cold greenhouse. After flowering they can be successfully wintered in any unheated but frost-proof pit.

Planting Irises and Peonies.

For the best results, irises and peonies should be transplanted during September or early October. The German and Japanese irises do much better if planted tolerably early. In the case of peonies, while they may be successfully planted until freezing-up weather arrives, the early planted stock will show a decided advance over the late, when growth starts in spring. Be careful not to plant the German irises too deeply; also avoid ground where water will lie in winter. The pallida types are the finest for florists and possess greater vigor than any other sorts.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cinerarias and Calceolarias.

A coldframe is the ideal place for cinerarias and calceolarias for some time yet; in fact, if well protected they do just as well there until the mum season has passed, if greenhouse space is limited. At this season the larvae of the cabbage moth are liable to do considerable damage to the foliage. The plants should be examined daily for any traces of this pest, for which hand-picking is the best remedy. The plants grow rapidly now that the nights are colder and must be spaced apart quite frequently, while potting will need close attention. The plants should never be allowed to become potbound. If, perchance, they get into that condition, scratch the roots somewhat with a pointed stick, so as to loosen them a little before potting.

If you have some early cinerarias in 6-inch or 7-inch pots, and want them for Christmas, place these in a greenhouse now, but be sure to shade them from bright sunshine, air abundantly and let the night temperature run down to 50 degrees. Later in the season 5 degrees lower will suffice. Spray or fumigate regularly for green aphids, which is specially fond of both cinerarias and calceolarias.

Cyclamens.

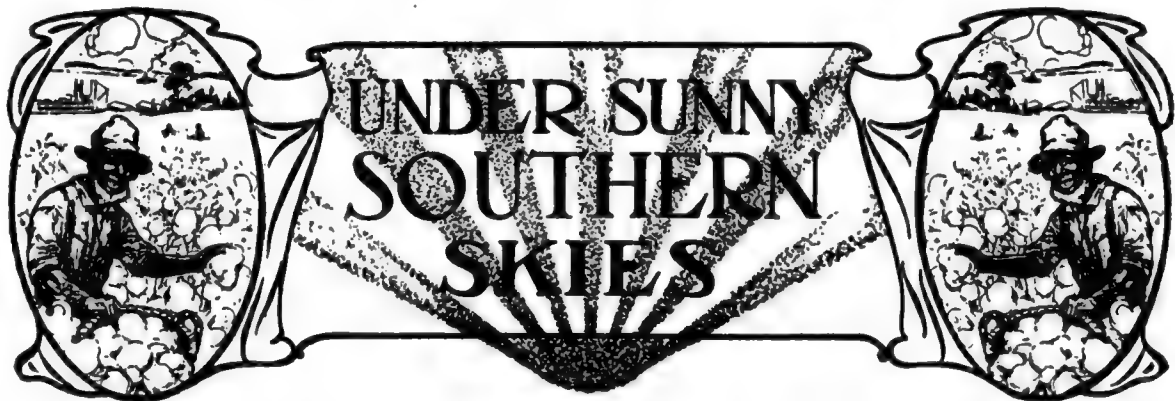

Anyone who has a large batch of cyclamens this season has good property. They are splendid house plants, not being affected by an occasional drying up at the root as are many other plants. The bulk of the stock is usually cleared out for Thanksgiving or Christmas, although plants may be kept over for spring exhibitions or Easter in a cold house. The man who grows a few dozens or hundreds of plants, and perhaps has no special house well adapted to their culture, will find they do well around the sides of a carnation house. Where walks come between the walls and the benches it is often possible to erect a narrow bench just wide enough to hold a single row of cyclamens. A carnation temperature also suits them well.

If wanted for late blooming, the cyclamens can stay out in the coldframes for some time yet. Give the plants their final potting now if this has not yet been done, not forgetting to use a light compost containing plenty of half rotted leaves; in such a soil cyclamen roots love to travel. Every year growers have trouble with cyclamen mite. There is no real cure for this. It shows itself in deformed leaves and flowers, and plants thus affected might just as well be thrown away at once.

Antirrhinums.

Antirrhinums that were benched early in August, allowed to run up to flower and then pinched back tolerably hard, now carry several shoots each and some of these are coming into flower. While the stems are rather short now, nice bunches make an acceptable addition to our flower supply, coming in, as they do, while carnations are small and before many mums are in evidence. Leaf and stem disease again is troublesome this season on snapdragons. Where the leaves only are affected, pick them off and spray with Bordeaux mixture. If, however, blotches of disease show on the stems, cut off the affected parts and burn them. If the plants are badly attacked, it will be better to destroy them. As usual, plants raised from cuttings, being less vigorous than seedlings, are suffering worse from disease. Do not spray snapdragons overhead. Allow them to dry out well between waterings. For a successful winter crop give them a restricted root-run. Sow seeds now for plants to produce an early spring crop.

Norfolk, Va.—The store of George, Inc., has been remodeled from end to end. The proprietors are George E. Ellis and W. W. Lee.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Hutchinson & Murphey, landscape architects, of St. Louis, Mo., have opened an office at 314 Terminal building, Oklahoma City.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Hayes-Thomas Grain Co., which operates a seed department under the direction of David McLees, is adding such plants as can be handled without the use of a greenhouse.

Waxahachie, Tex.—Mrs. J. O. Ray, who sold her greenhouse establishment five years ago, intends to embark again in the florists' business. She is planning to build a modern greenhouse within the next month or two.

Tampa, Fla.—The year has been the most prosperous thus far experienced by the Knull Floral Co., says F. A. Knull. A new slat house, 50x150 feet, has been added this summer and a glass propagating house is being built.

Houston, Tex.—With the woods around Houston abounding with the right kind of stock, Walter Westgate thinks his venture in the decorative evergreen business bids fair to be a success, with the aid of advertising to move his products.

Birmingham, Ala.—H. H. Brown, manager of the Sunnyhill Flower Farm, 1717 South Twelfth avenue, reports that autumn business is opening well. Mr. Brown is a strong friend of The Review, which he says contains "reading matter that is always interesting and instructive."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

LEAF MINER ON MUMS.

I am enclosing some chrysanthemum leaves that are affected by a worm trouble, with the idea of having you supply me with a remedy. There are a number of leaves in this condition, but otherwise the plants are in good form.

W. A. R.—Ind.

The chrysanthemum leaves submitted were affected by one of the leaf miners. One kind is bad on celery and many weeds are subject to this same pest. It is quite possible that your plants got this trouble, in the first place, from some of the weeds in the neighborhood, which served as "host" plants until the mums were growing. It is extremely difficult to stamp out this pest. Any application strong enough to penetrate the tissue of the leaf and kill the worm will also kill the foliage. If the affected leaves are removed, as many as possible, without injuring the remainder between the roots and tops, and the worms in these leaves are squeezed between the thumb and finger, thereby killing them, that is all one can do at this time.

The best way to permanently get rid of the pest is to propagate next year with entirely new plants, which have been grown outdoors all summer and have received a slight freezing. In this way any diseases or pests that are on the plants will die. The slight frost will not damage the plants, which can then be brought into the greenhouses and propagated from.

Chas. H. Totty.

FROST FOR MEALY BUG ON MUMS.

I am sending you samples of some bugs that are troubling my mum plants. These insects seem to be similar to the kind that attack coleus plants, but they have survived applications of Bordeaux mixture and a nicotine extract. How shall I exterminate the bugs?

Another thing that worries my mum plants is a green worm that eats the stem of the plants at the top, like a cutworm. My mums were doing well. I used good, plain soil and added ground bone, lime and commercial fertilizer before planting. Do I need to do any feeding later to get best results? If so, what shall I use, and how shall I use it?

I am growing Bonnaillon, Chieftain, White Chieftain, Seidewitz, October Frost, Odessa and Marigold mums. Marigold is exceptionally strong, and I think could have had three flowers per plant. Which is the best bud to take, the first that shows (center bud), or one of the side buds? E. B.—Pa.

The bugs so far have not arrived, although from the description it would seem to be the mealy bug that is giving trouble. If so, it is a serious pest, although from now on, with the houses being run cool, no kind of bug should make much headway. Mealy bug can be eradicated with any nicotine extract, but it is necessary to use it so strong that it will either destroy the blooms or the foliage. As no one wants this to happen at this time, I would not recommend it. The simplest way to get rid of mealy bug from mum plants is to subject them to a slight frost. This kills the bug and does not bother the plants to any extent.

About the only remedy for green worm is hand-picking. The night fireman with a lantern can do a great deal in this respect.

Regarding the application of fertilizer, the work that has been done to date seems correct enough. If E. B. has time and really wants to grow flowers superior to those of his neighbor, liquid fertilizer made from cow or sheep manure can be used until the buds show color.

As to which are the best buds to take: Take the first bud that shows now; always take the center bud. It is one of the vagaries of our English language to say "take the bud," when what we really mean is retain it. But E. B. will understand if he has been growing mums long. Retain the center bud and pinch out the side buds to throw all the strength into the center bud.

Charles H. Totty.

INSECTICIDE TOO STRONG.

Can you tell me what is the cause of mum leaves turning yellow at the edges?

A. McA.—Ill.

The cause of the foliage turning yellow, as on the mum leaves presented, is fumigating or spraying with nicotine extracts that are too strong. We have found the best insecticide to use on mums growing in the benches is the "Fumigating Kind" of tobacco dust. This does not seem to harm the foliage and is quite efficient in destroying fly.

PACKING METHODS.

In The Review for September 20 we read an article by C. E. Braun relative to the packing and shipping of plants, particularly carnation field plants, in which the writer complains of the packing done by some shippers.

Of course, there is a certain risk attached to long-distance shipments of plants, but this risk may be reduced to a minimum, provided precautions are taken to see that all plants are properly packed. The best method is none too good, especially in these days of over-worked express companies and delays of shipments.

We have shipped carnation plants from Pennsylvania to every state east of the Mississippi river, and to several states west. We have shipped stock from the western part of Pennsylvania to Philadelphia and then on a six days' journey by boat. Complaints are few and far between, so our method of packing may be of interest to shippers.

Medium-sized boxes of some light wood like white pine should be used. The ends of the boxes should be raised to a height of eighteen inches from the bottom of the box by two uprights of 1/2x3-inch material, with a cross-piece 1x3 inches, to which the lid is to be nailed. This makes the lid about six inches above the sides of the box, and allows free circulation of air above the plants. About one inch of wet moss should be placed in the bottom of box, and the plants carefully placed upright on the moss, packed fairly tight to prevent shifting around and breakage. A light sprinkling should be given the plants to prevent drying out, and then the lid should be nailed on securely. The consignee's name should be written on the top of each box, and a shipping tag should be nailed on the end of each box.

It is wrong to use a box of 1-inch hardwood boards, which weighs more empty than the box ought to weigh packed. Do not use boxes that have stood in the rain and have become water-soaked; and never leave nails sticking out of the box to tear the expressman's hands. The shipper won't be there, so the expressman may take his spite out on the box of plants. Do not send a shipment to arrive on Saturday or Sunday unless ordered to do so. Attention to all the little details means the safe arrival of the plants, a pleased customer and good will, upon which permanent business is founded.

Washington Floral Co.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The demand for flowers during the last few weeks has been steady and all good stock has been cleaned up every day. Carnations are still small and scarce, but are improving as the weather gets cooler. Roses are extra good for this time of the year, but the supply is hardly equal to the demand. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance in the following varieties: Golden Glow, Unaka and October Frost, and sell fairly well. Cattleyas are fine and there is a surplus. Dahlias continue to come in large quantities and were never better than this year. These can be bought on the City Market at 5 and 10 cents per dozen. The florists have been buying them in order to keep the price up.

A wedding of interest to their many friends was that of Miss Margaret Louise Todd and John A. McMillan September 19. Miss Todd had been saleslady at Baum's for the last four or five years, during which time she made many friends and customers. She was a loyal and enthusiastic member of the Florists' Society.

R. E. M.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Cooler weather has started fall business. Plenty of dahlias can be had at prices ranging from 75 cents to $3 per hundred. Roses are showing improvement in quality and quantity. They sell for from $3 to $8 per hundred. Asters and gladioli are seen, but are of poor quality. Chrysanthemums are coming slowly. Valley is on the short side. Lilies are of good quality.

Various Notes.

C. Dennick, of the Ideal Floral Co., had a slight accident when he ran the company's automobile into a shed to avoid a collision with another machine. The fender was smashed.

A. Horn has joined the Heiss Co. force.

Frank Frisch and William Gerlach, Jr., of Piqua, were guests of Mr. Frisch's brother, George W. Frisch, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Frisch are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a daughter at their home.

Fred Lemke, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week. G. J. F.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A heavy frost the night of October 6 will undoubtedly cut short the supply of outdoor flowers, which have been welcomed in the market because of the shortage of roses and carnations. The latter, however, are now coming in good supply and the quality is improving. The late asters have been exceptionally good and have sold well. The same may be said of gladioli and dahlias, the latter having become popular with the public. Fancy dahlias sold for as high as $1 per dozen October 6. The supply of the early varieties of chrysanthemums, with the exception of Golden Glow, has been limited. Smith's Advance, October Frost, Chrysolora, Unaka and Alexander Guttman chrysanthemums are now more abundant. Prices have been satisfactory. Some of the fine flowers of the varieties named have sold as high as $5 per dozen.

Carnations are beginning to come in quantities. Some long-stemmed Wards sold for $4 per hundred October 6. Larger supplies are expected this week and it is certain the price will drop. Lilies are steady in price, the best holding at $6 per hundred. Valley continues scarce and the price high, $8 per hundred being the general quotation. Orchids have dropped in price and now the best arrivals do not bring more than 40 cents apiece, while oncidiums are as low as $1 per hundred. Outdoor flowers were in abundance last week, but most of the supply was absorbed.

Roses were in larger supply and have improved in quality. Short-stemmed flowers sold at prices ranging from $2 per hundred up; hybrid perpetuals brought from $5 to $10 per hundred, with some of the specialties above those figures. Hadleys are up to $12 per hundred, while Keys, Mocks and Russells are at the same figures. American Beauties sold as high as $30 per hundred for the finest flowers, while those of poorer quality were less, and there was no surplus.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of 150 at the meeting of the Florists' Club October 8. C. H. Totty staged vases of Queen Mary, white; October King, yellow; October Herald, bronze; Crystal June, white, and a collection of early single chrysanthemums which were highly commended. E. W. Fengar's Bronze Unaka was much admired and the committee expressed its desire to see it growing. Geo. W. Crawbuck displayed a vase of Chrysolora of great size and finish. The new dahlia, Mrs. George Schlegel, reddish pink, shown by S. G. Milosy, was awarded the club's preliminary certificate.

Chairman Kessler reported arrangements complete for ladies' night November 17, at the Hotel McAlpin. It was decided to limit the attendance to members in good standing.

W. J. Guille and Thomas J. Nolan were elected to membership.

The deaths of W. J. Interman and Mrs. W. A. Sperling were reported and committees appointed to draw up resolutions of sympathy, and also for the family of J. A. Valentine, of Denver.

There were enthusiastic reports of the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit and it was voted unanimously that the club subscribe $1,000 to the S. A. F. publicity fund.

Among the visitors from out of town were J. C. Vaughan, Prof. E. A. White, S. S. Pennock and L. J. Reuter, each of whom made an interesting address. Mr. Pennock talked on the serious problem of express service and the president and F. R. Pierson, Jas. McHutchison and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., were charged with the duty of meeting the officials of the express companies at a meeting in New York October 9.

The committee of the Florists' Club visited the establishment of W. A. Manda at South Orange, N. J., October 8, to pass on the merits of his new dahlia, No. 1000. Messrs. Weston, Rigby, Brown and Jos. Manda were in attendance, as well as members of the trade press. The committee awarded it the club's certificate. An elaborate dinner was served in Mr. Manda's home.

Various Notes.

The New York Florists' Club will have its annual Ladies' night Saturday evening, November 17, at the Blue and Green rooms of the Hotel McAlpin. Philip Kessler is chairman of the entertainment committee.

At Frank Dinda's establishment, Farmingdale, L. I., the most striking of his early chrysanthemums is Alexander Guttman, which blooms October 1. It is a lavender pink of exceptional size and beauty. Mr. Dinda says he has realized $6 per dozen for this flower this season.

M. Matheron, Baldwin, L. I., has 75,000 feet of glass devoted almost exclusively to carnations. Ward, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and the new scarlet seedling, Olive Whitman, are among the varieties grown. Mr. Matheron was formerly foreman for the Cottage Gardens Co.

Lieutenant Henshaw, of the U. S. navy, and Major Rigo, of the army, paid Twenty-eighth street a short visit October 6.

The Peacock Dahlia Farms, Berlin, N. J., has been shipping some excellent dahlias to the New York market. Last week this concern had an exhibit of dahlia novelties at one of the Broadway department stores.

The Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., has been sending fine roses to market, among them being Mrs. Charles Russell of exceptional merit.

The seedsmen have been busy shipping Holland bulbs and expect another shipload within a few days.

Earle Riedel, son of Harry Riedel, of Riedel & Meyer, is recovering from an operation, performed at a local hospital.

W. P. Ford is still in the hospital, but is recovering rapidly.

George C. Crawbuck, Jr., expects to leave this week on board a United States cruiser. His destination, of course, is not made public.

The wholesale stores are all decorated and ready for the season's business. The Barney B. Jacobs store has been done over in white.

Frank & Son, 1561 Third avenue, report a large demand for funeral work. Three large blankets were among the orders last week.

Joseph Mackerer, of Union Hill, near Weehawken, N. J., died suddenly October 5. The obituary notice will be found in this issue of The Review.

J. Austin Shaw.

The fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held November 8 to 11 at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Columbus avenue. The schedule, offering prizes of more than $2,300, is now ready, and may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York city. All those exhibiting bush chrysanthemum plants are requested to bring them in Wednesday, November 7, so that they may be in position before the other exhibits arrive. The manager of the exhibition will be on hand on that date to receive exhibits. George V. Nash, Sec'y.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Two or three nights of good, hard frosts have put an end to all garden flowers, but the snappy weather has started a big demand for carnations, which are so scarce that the situation is acute. There is nothing to take their place. Chrysanthemums are appearing slowly, mostly pink and white, and probably by the end of the week plenty of them can be had. Roses are in fairly good supply, though mostly shorts. They are quickly utilized. Violets are arriving from the fields in small quantities. There are no Easter lilies in the market, and only a few rubrums. The scarcity of greens has relaxed a little; smilax is still hard to find, however.

Various Notes.

Miss Mary Hartnett has been busily occupied with a large wedding decoration.

Eli Cross has an extra house of violets and sweet peas. He now is cutting some mums and picking a few violets.

Henry Smith has not half enough carnations to go around, and he reports that business is brisk. A. F. C.

Ravenna, O.—A flower store has been opened at 244 North Water street by S. P. Pike.

OBITUARY

J. A. Swartley.

A fall from the roof of a coal shed, in which he sustained a fractured skull and injury to the spine, resulted in the death of J. A. Swartley September 29. The decedent, who was president of J. A. Swartley & Sons, wholesalers and retailers of Sterling, Ill., was born in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1847. In 1874 he moved to Illinois, and in April of the following year he married Emma B. Delp.

Oliver Harrison, Karl Aldrich and Harold Dwight Swartley, three of the seven children surviving, were associated with their father in the business at Sterling; which they will continue.

William B. Entenmann.

The Jersey City grower and retailer, William B. Entenmann, passed away last month at the age of 50. Mr. Entenmann was a member of the S. A. F. and the New York Florists' Club, and was an active worker in many fraternal organizations. A wife and daughter survive.

Joseph Mackerer.

Joseph Mackerer, aged 40 years, died suddenly at his home in Union Hill, near Weehawken, N. J., October 5 of heart disease. Mr. Mackerer was a successful grower and retailer and had a range of fifteen greenhouses. He leaves a wife and three children. J. A. S.

R. W. Clucas.

R. W. Clucas, manager of the Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkill, N. Y., died at that place October 6 after an illness of six months. Mr. Clucas was born in England in 1860 and came to this country in 1880 to take a position with Peter Henderson & Co. After leaving that concern he was president of the Clucas & Boddington Co., severing his connection with this firm to become manager of the Palisades Nurseries. Mr. Clucas was well known in both the seed and florists' trades, and had an excellent reputation as a grower of seeds, bulbs and perennials.

Robert L. Pyle.

Robert L. Pyle, father of Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., died October 3 at his home in London Grove, Pa., of valvular heart disease. Mr. Pyle was treasurer of the Conard & Jones Co. For the last fifty years he had been identified with the mercantile business of southeastern Pennsylvania, having conducted a chain of stores in that section. He had been a stockholder in the Conard & Jones Co. since its organization and incorporation and was elected its treasurer in 1911. He also was president of the National Bank of West Grove. Mr. Pyle was 75 years old. He leaves five children.

Michael P. Hargrave.

Michael P. Hargrave, who, with his two sons, R. P. and J. F. Hargrave, owned Hargraves' Seed Store, Galveston, Tex., died at his home in Galveston last week after a long illness. Mr. Hargrave was 68 years old and had been a resident of Galveston for more than forty years. He was interested in several business enterprises previous to 1901, when he established the seed store. Mr. Hargrave is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. A. P. J. Voigt, and five sons, J. F. and F. J. Hargrave, of Galveston, M. P. Hargrave, Jr., of Houston, T. A. Hargrave, of Dallas, and R. P. Hargrave, who is serving in the quartermaster's corps of the United States army at Camp Logan, Houston. Funeral services were held from the residence the day following Mr. Hargrave's death. The burial was in Calvary cemetery.

John F. Hargrave, who has been the active manager of the store since his father's illness began, will continue the business until his brother R. P. Hargrave, who also was a member of the firm, returns from army duty. Mrs. Hargrave will have her husband's interest. John F. Hargrave said that while he is handicapped by his brother being with the army, he has a competent force of clerks and feels able to handle the business alone.

George H. Cummings.

George H. Cummings, secretary of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia., was killed in an automobile accident near Le Mars, Ia., during the afternoon of October 6. A rear tire blew out and the car turned over, Mr. Cummings being thrown on his head. In the car were Mrs. L. N. Patton, a bookkeeper for the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., her daughter, Miss Elsie Patton, and Mrs. Arthur D. Merchant, another office employee of the company. They escaped serious injury.

Mr. Cummings was born on a farm near Uhrichsville, O. Had he lived another month he would have been 67 years old. He is survived by his wife, his mother, two brothers and three sisters. Mr. Cummings removed to Sioux City in 1884 to become secretary of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., a position which he held until his death. Before that he was for several years principal of the high school at Seward, Neb. He was much interested in educational work and was a member of the board of trustees of Buena Vista College, Storm Lake, Ia. Almost from its inception, Mr. Cummings was prominently identified with the prohibition movement in Iowa. He was one of the leaders in the fight that was waged for years to vote Sioux City dry, and was president of the Woodbury County Anti-saloon League.

J. A. Valentine.

J. A. Valentine, president of the Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., was killed almost instantly at 11:30 a. m. October 4, when the automobile he was driving turned over near Nighthawk, Colo. Mr. Valentine was crushed by the machine, the front wheel of which hit his head. Mrs. Valentine suffered a broken collar bone and internal injuries, while two friends were less severely hurt.

The cause of the accident could not be explained by the surviving members of the party. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine and the friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Woodson, also of Denver, were on their way to Decker's Springs, Colo., for a week-end fishing trip. At the point on the Jare cañon route where the accident happened there is a bank on one side of the road and a ditch on the other. Mr. Valentine either lost control of the car, which was traveling at a moderate rate of speed, or the steering gear broke, as the automobile ran up the bank and then turned over in the roadway. Mr. Valentine sustained the greatest weight of the car. Mrs. Valentine and Mrs. Woodson were caught under the tonneau, and Mr. Woodson under the rear of the car.

A forest ranger, who was passing on horseback, and several farm hands pried up the automobile with timbers. Mr. Valentine was dead and had been since the car struck him, according to a physician who made an examination. The other members of the party were taken to Denver in automobiles by B. E. Gillis, vice-president of the Park Floral Co., N. A. Benson, president of the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co., and George Cooper, a Denver florist, who were notified of the accident by telephone. Mrs. Valentine was taken to her home, 1733 Marion street. While she suffered greatly from her injuries and the shock of her husband's sudden death, it was expected that she would recover.

During the twenty-two years Mr. Valentine had been in the florists' business he became one of the foremost figures in the trade. He was president of the S. A. F. during the year 1909, was president of the American Carnation Society in 1912, and was the originator of the idea of an association to guarantee credits, becoming the first president of the F. T. D. when it was organized in 1910. At the time of his death he was district representative of the organization for Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada.

Mr. Valentine was 58 years old and was born in Keosauqua, Ia. His education was gained largely under the direction of his father, John Valentine, who was a school teacher in Iowa for more than thirty years. Mr. Valentine was graduated from the State Law School at Iowa City, Ia., in 1880 and went to work for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad. He was engaged in construction work for this railroad and for the Northern Pacific until 1887, when the ill health of Mrs. Valentine caused him to remove to Denver, where he practiced law.

It was through his friendship for another lawyer, Allen B. Seaman, that Mr. Valentine became interested in the florists' business. Some years ago, while traveling to one of the conventions of the S. A. F., he told the story of his entry into the florists' business and of his early troubles, to a party of friends.

"In 1894, Allen B. Seaman, a prominent attorney of Denver and a close social friend of mine, put some money into the erection of some greenhouses for the purpose of helping a florist friend of his," said Mr. Valentine. "In January of 1895, Mr. Seaman talked over with me the advisability of abandoning his investment, as it then seemed unprofitable, but he and I were induced to believe that if more money were invested and larger greenhouses erected the business could be made profitable under its then management, and I agreed to give some slight attention to the bookkeeping and handling of the accounts. At that time neither of us imagined that it ever would be necessary that I should give my personal attention to the greenhouse business as such, but later on it became apparent that the only way to save the investment was for me to take hold of the active management. I knew absolutely nothing about the business, and, in fact, there were a great many of the common flowers that I did not even know by name. I realized that I was up against a tough proposition, but I immediately subscribed for the two trade papers which were then being published and sat up nights to read anything and everything that I could get hold of that had any bearing on the florists' business.

"No one needs to be told that at the start I met with a great many expensive failures. In addition to my reading I made it a point to travel as extensively as I felt I could afford and visited the prosperous florists' establishments in the different parts of the country. I have been a pretty regular attendant at the meetings of the Society of American Florists and the American Carnation Society and believe that these various trips have been productive of a great deal of good to me. In fact, I believe they have been the best expended dollars that I have spent in the florists' business."

In September, 1904, Mr. Seaman died suddenly. Mr. Valentine took over the active management of the estate's interest in the concern and reorganized it on the coöperative plan. Several of the employees of the company were allowed to acquire small blocks of stock. At the time Mr. Valentine said he believed that a large part of the success of the company was due to the spirit of loyalty among its employees. Since that time the company has continued its earlier success and is now one of the most prosperous establishments in the country.

Mr. Valentine's trips to the S. A. F. convention, brought him into contact with the prominent florists of the country, who soon recognized his exceptional ability. Several times he was called upon to read papers before the society and at its 1908 convention, held at Niagara Falls, he was elected its president, serving during the following year with distinguished success.

That Mr. Valentine did not long remain ignorant of flowers and their culture after he set out to learn about them, is shown by the fact that in 1906 he read a technical paper before the American Carnation Society at its meeting in Boston. Five years later he was elected president of the society and since had been active in its affairs.

It was Mr. Valentine who conceived the idea which developed into the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, in January, 1910. He was made temporary president at the preliminary meeting, and when the organization was perfected, in August of the same year, he was made its first president, serving several terms.

Aside from his activities in florists' organizations, Mr. Valentine was prominent in Denver civic societies. He was a member of the Denver Rotary Club, and consequently was the Rotary florist of Denver, and of the Denver Civic Association.

Mr. Valentine is survived by his wife and father.

Mr. Valentine was a man of many unusual qualities, possessed of a keenly analytical and well trained brain that made his counsel much sought among the trade. For instance, he was the author of the F. T. D. constitution and by-laws and of the new code of the Florists' Hail Association, adopted so recently as last August. His personal qualities endeared him to all who came in contact with him and every man in the trade will feel a sense of personal loss in his death.

The funeral was held at St. John's Cathedral at 1 p. m. Wednesday, October 10, following private services for the family at the home. Burial was at Fairmont cemetery. Among the out-of-town florists present were W. N. Rudd, of Chicago, Frank Crump and Edward Johnson, of Colorado Springs. Practically every member of the trade in Denver was there and the floral pieces were extremely numerous and fine. From all parts of the country the family and the Park Floral Co. have received telegrams and other messages of sympathy. The obituary resolutions committee of the Society of American Florists was one of the first heard from in this respect.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Visits Vincents.

October 4, the Lancaster county florists visited the dahlia show at the farm of the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md. If it had not rained at the start, there would easily have been twenty automobiles, but even as it was, there were eight machines in line. The weather cleared later and we soon had a perfect October day. The route lay through Conowingo, Bel Air and Perry Hall, and the country was resplendent with its autumn glory.

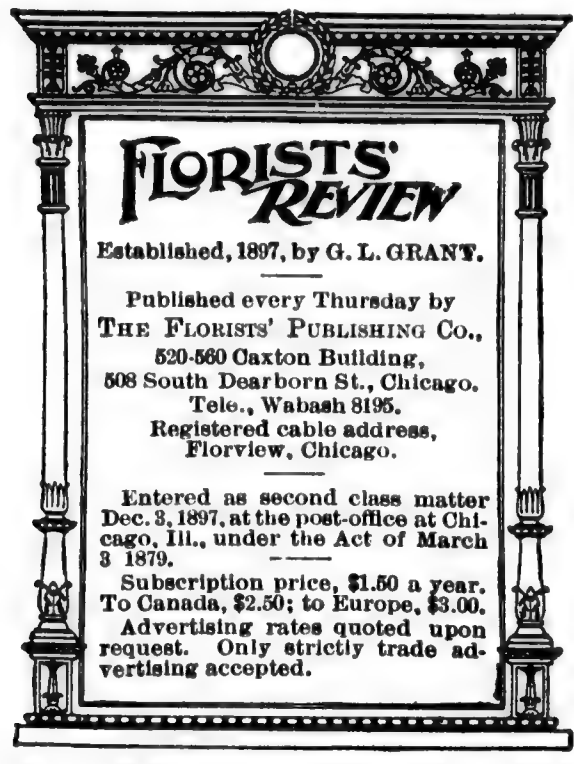

At the Vincent farm seventy-five acres were a mass of dahlia blooms, and the wonderful showing of cut dahlias in the potting sheds was enjoyed by more than 6,000 persons during October 3 and 4.

R. Vincent, Jr., showed our party over the place. The trial grounds of the new varieties of dahlias were most interesting. The new dahlia, King of the Autumn, a beautiful shade of burnt umber, was the most admired of all. Other choice varieties were Mme. Van Loon, A. C. Ide, Oregon Beauty, Minnie Burgle, Beloit, Flamingo, Hortulanus Fiet. Mr. Vincent said that the three greatest blooming dahlias are Lonsdale, Mrs. C. L. Seybold and Jack's Discovery. Dahlias as plants for bedding out were new to most of us, but we were delighted with a large oval bed of a single scarlet dahlia which had bronze foliage and was about thirty inches in height.

Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Kohr, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wade Gayley, Mr. and Mrs. J. De Barry Heintsh, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spinner, Mr. and Mrs. Wissler, Miss Weaver, Miss Elizabeth Kohr, Miss Harnish, H. K. Rohrer, A. K. Rohrer, Amos N. Rohrer, Robert Kohr, T. J. Nolan, Jonas Shank and party and David Shank and party.

Leaving White Marsh at 3 p. m., the party returned to Lancaster pleased with the Vincent hospitality and the outing.

"He who serves best profits most." It is a truism, a demonstration of which may be seen among the florists of every town.

I. L. PILLSBURY, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, is actively engaged in preparing for the meeting and flower show to be held at Galesburg November 6 and 7. He hopes to make it much the best yet.

THE trade has lost one of its best men in the untimely death of J. A. Valentine, of Denver. Recruited from another profession, he was a tower of strength for our business and a credit to our craft. Would we had more like him.

WHILE the usual quantities of field-grown carnation plants have been sold, many seem to be still on hand, indicating that the favorable summer weather resulted in a much larger supply and in more hands than in recent years.

THERE are few of us who have the courage to adopt the business motto, "The customer is always right." It may be good policy, but at first sight it looks to be costly to allow every claim. The customer also must live up to the rules of the game.

AZALEAS will not be out of the market this season by any means. Large numbers of plants that were received last year in a damaged condition have been grown on during the summer and many a man now has the finest, if not the largest, lot of azaleas in his business experience.

THE F. T. D. MEETING.

It is with reason that the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association are well pleased with themselves over last week's convention at Detroit, for there never has been a livelier meeting of florists. It is a truism that the F. T. D. represents the cream of the retail flower sellers of America; these are the men who put the most thought into their business; there are other good men not members, but as a body the F. T. D. represents the progressive element in the trade.

It was a noteworthy feature of the meeting, full of snap and go from first to last, that the basic subject of the delivery of flowers by telegraph received less attention than did almost any other phase of flower selling. So far as concerns the telegraph delivery idea itself, not much remains to be said. It is well understood that the development of this branch of the business depends on educating the public with regard to the facilities offered. To make the business run smoothly it is necessary to educate the trade, including some of the members of the F. T. D., to employ better and more systematic methods. Absolute integrity is demanded and the wheels will not work smoothly until every detail connected with sending, filling, collecting for and paying for each order is attended to right on the dot. Slipshod methods will not do; at present they are the bane of the secretary's life.

Principal attention at this second meeting of the F. T. D. was given to other subjects connected with retail store management. First of all, publicity for flowers interests retail florists. It was the consensus that all general publicity efforts should be centered in the work recently undertaken by the S. A. F. and important sums of money were pledged for that purpose.

The discussion of the cost of doing business and the necessity for knowing the costs in estimating the selling prices was among the important matters discussed. It was apparent that only a few retail florists have an exact knowledge of what it costs to do business or what their selling prices must be to make a profit. It was apparent that the better service now being given by all who make pretense of being first-class florists has materially increased the overhead expense, so that old methods of figuring prices must be revised if a satisfactory profit is to be had in the business.

The best feature of the meeting was the way in which it set those present to thinking. In all lines of business there is a tendency to rely too much on work and to do too little thinking. No florist can achieve his best success unless he works his head as well as his hands and his feet. The Detroit meeting set many a florist to thinking thoughts he never thought before. The result will be a distinct improvement in the methods of many a flower store. Also, it will result in a still larger F. T. D. meeting at Cleveland next October.

NEW YORK FEDERATION.

The annual meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held last month at the New York state fair grounds, at Syracuse. The meeting was called to order by President F. R. Pierson, and among those present were Messrs. White, Vick, Rosin, Adams, Slattery, Mills, Bates, Thorpe, Snyder, Farnham, Lumsden, Eastwood and Workman.

The balloting for officers resulted in the reelection of President Pierson, Secretary White and Treasurer Adams. The following officers were appointed: First vice-president, Dr. Bates, Syracuse; second vice-president, Hugh McCarthy, Syracuse; third vice-president, C. H. Vick, Rochester; fourth vice-president, Anton Schultheis, College Point; fifth vice-president, F. A. Danker, Albany.

The records of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer reported funds on hand to the amount of $215.80. President Pierson, Dr. Bates and Commissioner Wilson reported that plans were under way for the erection of the horticultural building on the fair grounds. It was their opinion that work would be begun during the coming year, but that it was not certain the building would be finished in time for the exhibition next year.

It was moved and carried that a resolution be sent to the New York State College of Agriculture, requesting that an amount necessary to build a range of greenhouses for investigational purposes, at Cornell University, be included in the appropriations for 1917-18. The president appointed a committee of seven to appear before the trustees of Cornell University to urge that the annual budget provide for a range of greenhouses. The committeemen are F. R. Pierson, Charles Vick, W. H. Workman, John Young, Henry Elbers, F. A. Danker and J. R. Clancy.

Dr. E. M. Mills was appointed chairman of a committee of five for the organization of flower societies in different sections of the state. It was suggested that the next meeting be with the affiliated society at Buffalo, in November.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions have shown further improvement during the week under review. Frost has cleared the outdoor stock and flowers produced under glass are the sole reliance. Roses appear to be in short supply in other markets and many buyers are ordering who have not been heard from in months. Prices have stiffened all along the line.

While roses are in principal demand, all other stock shares the increased business. Russell is the most abundant rose and is of good quality. Milady and Hoosier Beauty are in favor.

Carnations are coming in slowly. They clear well. Violets are more plentiful and sell moderately well.

Chrysanthemums are not equal to the demand, creating an opportunity for the importation of California stock; most of the wholesalers believe it poor policy to handle this stock, but several retailers are getting shipments direct from the coast.

Orchids are more abundant. Gladioli are gone, as are asters. There is little variety in the stock in the market at present, the assortment being about at the low mark for the year.

Greens are plentiful.

Florists' Club was held on the evening of October 4, at the Briggs House. The attendance was small, so small, in fact, that it was considered inadvisable to lay before the club many questions of greatest importance, but rather to hold these over until the next meeting, when more members will be present, it is hoped.

In the absence of both President Amling, who is still at Battle Creek, suffering from pernicious anæmia, and Vice-President Klingsporn, who was at Detroit, W. J. Keimel was elected chairman. Immediately upon Mr. Keimel's taking the chair, Anton Then arose and presented to him, for the Chicago Florists' Club, a gavel which he himself had made of wild smilax roots cut at Magnolia Springs, Ala. A letter was read from the Horticultural Society of New York, calling attention to the great devastation of orchards in France and asking for coöperation in raising a fund to help replant these grounds. The matter was laid on the table until the next meeting. A motion was made and passed that all members of the club serving under the flag should be retained on the membership list until their return or discharge from the service.

Robert C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., who was in Chicago on his way home to Texas from the F. T. D. convention, spoke on the great publicity fund the S. A. F. is raising and called upon Chicago to take its rightful place at the head of the list of subscriptions. "But do not look upon this as a gratuity," he concluded, "but as the best investment you ever made."

T. J. Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., president of the Texas State Florists' Association, also spoke, following which Mr. Kerr, and T. E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., gave their impressions of the recent F. T. D. meeting at Detroit.

A letter was read from Thomas W. Head, concerning the National Associa-

It was voted that as an indication of the club's sympathy, the secretary send a basket of flowers and fruit to President Amling, with the club's best wishes.

Applications for membership were received from Chris. Ranuni, 1714 Foster avenue, and Joseph Bieber, 25 East Madison street.

Various Notes.

Several carloads of Dutch bulbs have arrived in Chicago, consigned to a forwarding agent who has not yet received his papers from the shippers. The bulk shipments are to be broken up here and delivered or reconsigned to a large number of customers of the several Holland houses represented. Without the papers showing to whom each numbered case belongs, the forwarding agent is unable to do anything. The supposition is that the missing documents were in the mail taken off the Waaldyk at Halifax.

Another, the third, baby arrived last week in the family of Harry Lubliner, L. R. Bohannon is showing a unique window of fruits and flowers. Real English fruit baskets are used, the arrangements shown selling at from $3 up. Last Christmas many of these flower and fruit combinations were sold at from $5 to as high as $50 each. No fruits are carried in stock; a separate purchase is made to fill each order.

Rose prices in the latter half of September were much below those of last year, frost having cleaned up the outdoor stock September 15 last season. Since October 1, however, there has been a marked improvement in rose prices, the E. C. Amling Co., reporting that values now are about on the same level as at this date last year.

Mrs. C. A. Samuelson, who for many years has been associated with her husband in the retail flower business on Michigan avenue, says steady flower buyers have stopped asking for carnations, and that the better class of flower stores have stopped pushing them. The reason, she believes, lies in unsatisfactory keeping quality. Mrs. Samuelson thinks that it is up to the growers to study the keeping quality of their flowers and that a grower who can demonstrate that his flowers will keep

J. C. Steinhauser and wife were in the city last week, having made the trip of over 650 miles from Pittsburg, Kan., in their Chandler car. Mr. Steinhauser's chief errand was in connection with the heating of two new Dietsch houses he is completing at his branch establishment at Bartlesville, Okla. Mr. Steinhauser's Pittsburg range was hit by a cyclone Friday, July 13, and it was especially unlucky, as he has not yet been able to collect the insurance he carried against it. Repairs are about completed.

Harry A. Barnard, traveler for the Stuart Low Co., Bush Hill Park, England, was a caller last week. It is his fourth trip since the war began.

R. C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., was in town October 4, on his way home to Houston, Tex., after a week's trip in the interests of the society. He says the florists of Houston are doing a big business because of the cantonment on the edge of the city. Mr. Kerr was accompanied by T. J. Wolfe, of Waco.

Peter Freeman, of Aurora, Ill., was a buyer on the market October 8.

Sol Garland, once a wholesale florist in this market, made one of his rare trips from Des Plaines October 8. Chrysanthemums and bulbous stock are his specialties, to the growing of which he devotes all his energies.

The Market.

Business in the wholesale cut flower market showed an improvement last week. Cooler weather helped the retailers and transient trade was better. There was plenty of stock of improved quality. Prices remained about the same as the week before. Roses and carnations are better every day. Ophelia, Russell, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and the Killarney roses are exceptionally fine. The bulk of the supply came from local growers. Carnations are improving in size, color and stem.

The demand for white carnations has been especially good. Beacon, Ward, Washington and all the Enchantress carnations sell at $2 per hundred for the best flowers.

Violets are improving as the weather becomes colder, and some good stock was received from the Kirkwood growers last week. Gladioli, asters and dahlias are nearly over for the season, but a few continue to come. Extra fine cosmos are arriving. Easter lilies are not overplentiful. There is a supply of all kinds of greens, for which the demand is steady.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its regular meeting October 15 at the Knights of Columbus hall. Four members of the association, who attended the meeting at Detroit, will give short talks on the F. T. D. convention.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, Mo., sent a large bunch of his new red single dahlia to Mayor Kiel, with a request for permission to name it St. Louis. The mayor gave his consent.

Before leaving for Fort Riley, Kan., October 3, Harry Schlechter, of the George H. Angermueller Co. force, was presented with a sum of money collected by his friends in the wholesale district. Charles Wors, Jr., left for the same place October 5. He is the third son of Charles Wors to serve his country.

Miss Betty Carlston, well known in retail circles, has taken a position in the floral department of the Famous-Barr store, and has charge of the display in the basement.

Grimm & Gorly have the contract for the decoration of the hall where the convention of laundrymen will be held. Frank Gorly says that he will use cut flowers and plants. This firm now has forty-two employees, all of whom are kept busy.

Henry Jenneman's dahlia farm at Webster Groves, Mo., was a pretty sight last week. Only the best imported varieties are grown. Mr. Jenneman said some of the flowers brought as high as $6 per dozen.

Max Schiller, for several years in charge of the floral displays at the Missouri Botanical Garden, is now with the Bourdet Floral Co.

Foster the Florist, 703 Olive street, is making a display of plants from his greenhouses on Marcus avenue.

Fred C. Weber, Jr., J. J. Windler, Vincent Gorly and F. H. Weber, who attended the F. T. D. convention at Detroit last week, have returned, and are enthusiastic over the convention and the entertainment provided by the Detroit Florists' Club.

A. Werner & Bro., of Clayton, are supplying the local wholesale market with cuts of fine roses, Killarneys and Richmonds, especially. Their cut of roses and carnations promises to be large this season.

T. J. Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., called on the trade last week.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., has started cutting his carnations. He grows all the leading varieties.

Pierre Schneider, of Webster Groves, Mo., is cutting quantities of excellent chrysanthemums.

W. A. Rowe's yellow sport of Smith's Advance chrysanthemum is producing some fine blooms this season. The big carnation houses are expected to yield a large cut.

Edward Westmann, manager of Vandervoort's floral department, made nine bouquets of gardenias and valley for an elaborate wedding at Alton, Ill., September 29. The decorations were

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The market remains steady and good stock is cleaned up every day. Roses, except American Beauties, are in fairly good supply. Carnations are improving and all good stock is quickly absorbed. Good gladioli still are to be had and form a large proportion of the window displays in the retail stores. Good indoor snapdragons are in the market. Easter lilies, orchids and valley find a good market. Chrysanthemums are in large supply and have a steady sale.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of J. A. Valentine, who was killed in an automobile accident October 5, will be found in the obituary column of this issue of The Review.

Charles Meyers, formerly with the Mauff Floral Co., has taken a position as rose grower for the Park Floral Co.

Charles B. Bovier, Jr., foreman in the packing department of the Barteldes Seed Co., is doing jury duty in a murder trial, which is expected to keep him during the next month.

Ernest Flohr has gone to Seattle,

Wash., where he has obtained a position.

Among the visitors to the trade last week were Andrew Hoffman, of Scottsbluff, Neb.; Edward Johnson, of Colorado Springs; A. Gardner, of Greeley, Colo., and A. Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Soleil d'Or and Paper White narcissi bulbs have arrived in splendid condition. A large shipment of Darwin tulips from California has also been received.

The second annual flower show will be held at the Auditorium October 25 to 27. The Denver Horticultural Society, of which Adam Kohankie, superintendent of Washington park, is president, will have charge of the exhibition. Already enough entries have been received to assure the success of the show. There will be no admission fee charged. President Kohankie has named the committees to have charge, and they are busy with the details, while the newspapers are helping by giving the exhibition considerable space. R. S.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business is brisk, there being a large quantity of funeral work each day. Flowers are in good supply, both outdoor and indoor stock—cosmos, dahlias, roses and carnations. Mums are appearing and soon will be plentiful. So far only light frosts have occurred.

The Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Evansville Florists' Club was held at the residence of Ernest Lutz, at Boonville. There was a fair attendance. The final arrangements for the entertainment of the State Florists' Association of Indiana were left to the committees to work out. October 16 is the date of the meeting. The chairmen of the various committees are: Entertainment, Karl Zeidler; reception, Theodore Kuebler; finance, Emil Niednagel; correspondence, E. L. Fenton.

The program prepared is an all-day one, and the visiting florists will enjoy themselves. E. L. Fenton is sending out invitations to every member of the state body; also to many nearby florists who are not members.

Various Notes.

Waldemar Niednagel left for Camp Taylor October 4. Julius Niednagel & Sons are extremely busy with funeral work. Their roses, carnations and mums are in fine shape.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is having its usual good run of work. Since Walter Blackman left with his company for Camp Taylor he has been missed, as he was his father's right-hand man.

Mrs. J. C. Elsperrmann has had much funeral work. Theodore Elsperrmann left with the boys for Camp Taylor October 6.

Karl Zeidler is busy with funeral work. He is cutting many roses and carnations, and his mums are looking fine.

Theodore Kuebler is busy getting things in shape before cold weather appears. He will begin cutting mums this week.

Royston & Fenton have a large stock of coleus in fine form for their season's trade. They are working up a stock of Easter Greeting for the wholesale trade.

E. L. F.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business this week was good, with funeral work heavy. A light frost was recorded, but little damage was done. There are only a few gladioli now, and the asters are poor. Dahlias, however, have been extremely good and plentiful. Roses and carnations are of fine quality and in good supply. Large, yellow mums are more numerous. Prices have advanced over those of last week.

Various Notes.

Arthur Newell reports that business is improving with fall work and that everything indicates a prosperous season. He has been rushed with funeral work.

W. J. Barnes has replaced the old tubes in his boiler with new ones, which have doubled in price since last year.

W. L. Rock is back from Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit, where he attended the F. T. D. meeting. Charles Heite has returned from a fishing trip to the Ozarks.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving a large supply of home-grown roses.

E. Barnes grew dahlias as a side issue this summer, and his time was well spent, as they were among the finest seen in the city.

The Stockdale Greenhouses have installed a new boiler. They have a good lot of 6-inch and 7-inch cyclamens.

The trade has learned with regret of the death of J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo.

Visitors this week included Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.; J. Hubbard, of the Hubbard Seed Co., Topeka, Kan.; Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia. W. J. B. are splendid and many varieties are in the market. Boston ferns are in good supply. Aside from a few cyclamens and primroses, there are no flowering plants in the market.

Various Notes.

Last week brought many weddings, which called for decorations, some elaborate, others less so. There also was much funeral work, and, with counter trade improving, business was excellent.

Moore, Terwilliger & Co. had a good showing of pepper plants last week. This firm always carries a large stock of plants.

Both stores of the Whitted Floral Co. were most attractive last week and business was good. All of the employees have returned from their vacations, ready for the season's activities.

Dahlias

They are at their best now. Nowhere will you find Dahlias in such a variety. While they last you should take advantage of the opportunity to offer your customers what is most seasonable in the cut flower line.

A sample shipment will convince you that you can handle them at a good profit.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There has been a fair amount of business, with more than enough flowers for all orders. The shortage in carnations has helped the sale of dahlias, which now are being used in great numbers. The average price on dahlias is higher than that of last season. The general market conditions are a little better than they were a year ago at this time, despite the war and its effect on transportation. Roses are in heavy supply and form the mainstay of the market, with dahlias. They at times are overabundant in the poorer grades.

Chrysanthemums are becoming more and more prominent; only the early varieties are here so far, many of them in excellent form. Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost have been reinforced by Unaka, Chrysolora and a few more, affording a nice assortment.
There are a few more carnations coming in. They bring pretty good prices, quality considered. To be more explicit, most of the carnations are short in stem; there are few really fine flowers borne on good stems. Cattleyas are becoming more plentiful; they have fallen to one-half the price of three weeks ago. There are a few oncidiums and vandas, but hardly any gardenias.
Wild asters are in their prime; they are most decorative. The regular asters are about over; their season has been curtailed by delay in transit. Cosmos is popular.

Most of the wholesalers feel that the express deliveries are better now than during September.

An Important Conference.

The leading shippers of plants and cut flowers have given much thought to the problem of improving the express service, or, to put it more correctly, asking the express companies for needed reforms, which will meet the changing conditions due to war demands.

After much thought, the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington has been abandoned. In its place a conference between the representatives of the shippers in this city and the vice-presidents of the three express companies, who constitute the final court of appeal, was held in New York city Tuesday morning, October 9.
The representatives of the Philadelphia shippers were Robert Craig, chairman;
Fred Cowperthwaite, secretary; Arthur
A. Niessen, Frank P. Myers, Samuel S.
Pennock, Paul F. Richter and Herbert
G. Tull. They laid before the express chiefs several plans that they believed would remedy the evil of delay and restore the express service to a reasonable degree of reliability. The vice-presidents of the Adams and Wells Fargo companies were present and said the plans would be considered. Nothing definite was promised at the meeting.

canna display at the Henry A. Dreer nursery has been gorgeous.

There are twenty-five acres of land planted entirely to cannas. Exclusive of the seedlings, there are practically 100 varieties. Last fall Eugene H. Michel, a canna expert of Dreer's, gave a list of what he was pleased to term his "lucky thirteen" varieties—the best thirteen varieties for general cultivation today. A year's experience and progress has brought a little change in this list that includes four of Mr. Michel's own seedlings. At least two of these seedlings, Eureka, white, and Favorite, the yellowest of the yellows, have been certificated by the S. A. F. Both are looking remarkably well this season. Next to Eureka, in strong contrast to it, is the German variety, Fanal, a brilliant scarlet not in the original thirteen but by sheer force of merit as a good bedding variety earning a place in that select body. Yellow King Humbert is extremely interesting. You know of course that King Humbert is a wonderful red. Its yellow sport has proved a great find. The funny thing about Yellow King Humbert is that when it reverted to the older type, the King's own, so to speak, it showed a marked and unusual desire to return.

good a variety that it would be hard to have too many. To his surprise, these reclaimed King Humberts in many cases came with green foliage and yellow flowers. What do you think of that?

The general effect of these vast fields of modern cannas was superb. The range of colors, the size of flowers and the freedom of bloom on such vigorous plants was satisfying. A list of the varieties seems more the province of the catalogue than the narrator. They were the result of careful, intelligent selection from the lists of the best hybridizers of this country and abroad. This country comes first today in the hybridizing of the canna. More good varieties have been made in America than in all the European countries combined. To continue growing old-time sterling varieties, such as Florence Vaughan and Charles Henderson, is a crime. Fine as these varieties were in their days, they cannot now come within sight of the magic circle that surrounds the thirteen. These improved varieties have placed the canna of today in a class by itself, as an outdoor decorative plant that is capable of producing magnificent effects.

The October Meeting.

The brief statement of facts that appeared last week does not cover all that was of interest at the October meeting of the Florists' Club. The men of today were there in force; not the men of yesterday, or those of tomorrow, but the men of today, who are battling with the unusual difficulties that beset us. It is also interesting to note that the men of today elected a progressive candidate as their secretary, in preference to a popular conservative. In other words, the younger element triumphed over the older—a most unusual thing in the club.

There was an atmosphere of business about the gossip of the meeting. For instance, you heard one tell a group of interested listeners that Harry Faust's foreman had decided to rent George Anderson's place at 11 o'clock that morning, and at 11:15 he had redecided that there was nothing doing. Whether this was mere gossip or not, matters little; it describes the spirit of the lobby. You can have it further by listening to the next group, who are animatedly discussing whether The Review should be boycotted because Senator Knox's gardener had subscribed and tried to buy carnation plants at wholesale, first thoughtfully securing and planting the plants, and then producing The Review when asked to pay the retail price.

The appointment of a strong committee to further the $50,000 publicity fund in this state was announced from the S. A. F. in New York. Our secretary took a lot of trouble to give me this committee, but somehow it slipped in and then slipped out. I remember that Charley Grakelow was one; that promises well; and Arthur Niessen, who pushed the scheme; and the president of the club; and Henry F. from one seed house, and J. Otto from the other.

John P. Habermehl added social as well as financial strength, while the seven—yes, there it is—is completed by the secretary, Fred Cowperthwaite, a most energetic worker.

There was an exhibit of more than ordinary interest, a vase of lovely pink roses from Teddy Towill, of Roslyn. I presume that Teddy is proud papa, though he did not say so, but only looked it, and that the rose is the celebrated cross between Maryland and something, and that it is to knock Lady Alice Stanley all to smithereens. It is a lovely rose that warrants the deep interest taken in its future.

I don't remember anything more except that the lodge atmosphere clung, the speaker addressing his audience from an open space in the center of the room, which seemed extremely Azaleas.

A good many of us are wondering just what we are going to do without the usual importation of Belgian azaleas this fall. Eugene H. Michel, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., answered that question last week at the Riverview nurseries of the concern when he held aloft a shape-ly plant of one of the new varieties of French hydrangeas, simply remarking, "Azaleas! We shall use three of our 200-foot houses to carry these French hydrangeas over winter. We have 60,000 hydrangeas this season, in good variety; some are going now, some will go next spring. See what splendid plants they are."

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The first killing frost of the season visited us October 6, completely devastating the gardens. Up to this time local dahlias had been the mainstay of the market and were in good quantity and quality, but now this source has been extinguished, and the only dahlias in the market are being shipped in from outlying districts. A few gladioli also are being shipped in.

The scarcity of stock is acute; it is a hard proposition to find enough with which to fill orders. Carnations are valuable property, but there are not nearly enough of them to meet requirements, at $2.50 and $3 per hundred. Asters have been completely marked off the lists of available flowers. Chrysanthemums are somewhat more plentiful, in such varieties as Golden Glow, Early Frost, Chrysolora, Smith's Advance and Unaka.

Roses are extremely close, and the quality is good. Some excellent Russells are being cut. The prices range

Blue Rapids, Kan.—Mrs. Edward Craft is proprietor of the Blue Rapids Greenhouse. She built her first house in 1914. As she puts it: "We had no trade and little knowledge of the business; today we have doubled our capacity and have a nice trade, our success being principally due to reading The Review and following its precepts."

Lincoln, Neb.—"Yes, Nebraska is still on the map," observed C. H. Frey, referring especially to his carnation of that name. Nebraska carnation seems to increase in public favor as a real scarlet. There had been no frost October 3, and asters, dahlias and gladioli were plentiful.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—The store of J. F. Wilcox & Sons is a floral bower, and every window of the building has a pretty box. The city must have caught the spirit, as every electric light post along the main street has a "collar" box around its neck. The boxes are filled with Asparagus Sprengeri, vineas and blooming plants.

The Market.

Not for a long time has the market been so bare of flowers as at present, and, as a consequence, prices have advanced sharply all along the line. The practical elimination of outdoor flowers, with the fact that outside of roses only a meager crop of indoor flowers is yet available, has brought about these conditions—not a large demand. Roses are about the only flowers in good supply, and the demand for them has been greatly improved. American Beauties are good and have advanced in price. All hybrid teas are doing much better and short-stemmed stock, which a week ago sold at 50 cents to $1 per hundred, has advanced to $3 and $4. The better grades have advanced moderately. Ward, Ophelia, Russell, Hadley, Stanley, Shawyer and Killarney Queen go especially well. Carnations have been making almost holiday prices, poor as they are—$3 to $4 for good stock, and some specials as high as $5 and $6.

Chrysanthemums are not numerous and clean up quickly. Golden Glow is principally seen, but some Early Snow, Advance and Early Frost are also coming in. It has been a most profitable season so far for growers of early mums. Violets are slowly increasing in numbers; so are yellow marguerites. Snapdragons, even with 8-inch stems, sell well. Lilies are high, from $12 to $16 per hundred being current prices. Speciosums are about over and bring $5 to $6. Valley continues scarce; nice Bouvardia Humboldtii is seen. Some long-stemmed dahlias have sold readily at $6 to $8 per hundred. If growers would only grow fancy flowers and send them in with long stems, the stock would sell well at this season.

The cattleya scarcity is relieved with the arrival of a fair number of labiatas. Other orchids are yellow oncidiums, Dendrobium formosum and Odontoglossum grande. Asparagus shows some improvement.

Club Vegetable Show and Exhibition.

The fact that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society had no regular autumn vegetable show this year led the Gardeners' and Florists' Club to launch one on its own initiative, and, although gotten up at short notice, it proved a grand success, competitors being numerous and the quality of the exhibits high-class throughout. In addition to vegetables, there were many plants, cut flowers and fruits shown. The people were admitted without charge and visited the show in large numbers, many coming to the regular club meeting in the evening, when several short lectures were given, with resultant discussions. James Donald spoke on "Peas and Beans," Frederick Cave on "Leeks and Onions," A. K. Rogers on "Root Crops," James Methven on "Celery" and W. N. Craig on "Mushrooms."

A full discussion on publicity for flowers will take place at the November meeting, and the propagation of trees and shrubs will be handled by several experts.

The death of William Harvey, a member of the club for many years, was reported, and a committee to draw up suitable resolutions was appointed.

James Wheeler made an efficient show manager and, together with Robert Cameron and Fred Palmer, judged the exhibition, the awards giving general satisfaction. Several special cups and other special prizes were awarded, but only one small money prize was given in each class.

Various Notes.

The merging of the two wholesale houses of Patrick Welch and the Welch Bros. Co. is the principal happening of interest this week in wholesale circles. The staffs of the two houses are to be retained and everything done to build up a still larger business. With the redoubtable Patrick Welch at the head and plenty of young, progressive men to assist him, there is no doubt as to the outcome. A rushing business was being done October 6. I noted splendid valley, roses, lilies and chrysanthemums, yellow daisies, gladioli and other flowers.

At the Park street store of Thomas F. Galvin, an arrangement of Golden Glow mums, with a background of red oak foliage, and delphinium spikes dotted among the mums, was effective. Fine baskets of orchids were seen.

Patrick Welch and Thomas Roland are both enthusiastic over their St. Louis trip. Mr. Welch says that the S. A. F. exhibition committee received a royal welcome and everything points to a splendid show.

Professor Hecht, the new head of the floricultural department at Amherst, spent a couple of days in and around Boston this week and visited many of the wholesalers and retailers. He aims to build up a strong department at Amherst.

P. L. Carbone still is in Europe and is not expected home before November. Foreign shipments still arrive in good condition. Business remains remarkably good.

Henry Penn enjoyed his visit to Detroit to attend the F. T. D. meeting immensely and believes much good will result. Business at Penn's remains good. Wedding orders continue numerous. A special window for brides is being featured this week.

Not many tuberoses are now grown for market here, but Mann Bros. have a fine lot. They also make shipments of cosmos, gladioli, dahlias, lilies and chrysanthemums.

Splendid Golden Glow mums are coming in from Frank Edgar, of Waverley, and William A. Riggs, of Auburndale.

The big New England fruit show opens at Horticultural hall October 31 and promises to be unusually fine. There will be no chrysanthemum show this fall, for the first time in many years.

The Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, is featuring baskets of such choice fruits as Gros Colman grapes, peaches, nectarines, etc., in addition to flowers and plants. This concern always has attractive windows.

S. J. Goddard made his first shipment of carnations October 5, and they sold in quick order.

William Sim is still cutting fine indoor asters and they sell remarkably well. He is sending a good number of single violets. At present he is booking many orders for his fine strains of hardy primroses, polyanthus and auriculas.

Wax Bros. continue to keep one window devoted to dahlias and are booking many orders for plants for next season's delivery. They report a good volume of business.

ski, in Roslindale, splendid houses of cyclamens and Begonias Melior, Mrs. Peterson and Cincinnati are to be seen. No Lorraine begonias are being grown this season, but Boston ferns are numerous and of fine quality. Ernest Borowski, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident in July, is recovering slowly and can only perform light work as yet.

At the Brockton fair, which opened October 2, there was a good floral display. H. M. Robinson & Co., of Boston, won first, second and third prizes for fifty roses, with splendid vases of Hadley, Russell and Ward. J. K. Alexander made a big display of dahlias and gladioli. Dahlias from many exhibitors were of fine quality. The display of garden produce from children filled a large tent and was a remarkable one, there being fifty to one hundred entries in some vegetable classes. W. W. Hathaway, Fred French and L. W. Bates judged the flowers; D. Finlayson, vegetables; W. N. Craig, fruits; Ransom Packard, W. N. Craig and A. Packard, the children's exhibits. W. N. C.

nations and roses, too, are improving in both quality and quantity.

Various Notes.

Several outdoor weddings last week added to the volume of business of the retailers.

Ferdinand A. Kuehn, 623 Central avenue, reports that business is good, although not yet really alive. He has just completed alterations to his store, which included a new roof on the building.

Henry Hornecker, of East Orange, says the fall season is opening well and predicts that business will be good this season.

J. W. Blakeley, of Elizabeth, reports that good summer business is continuing into the fall, although there was a dull period following Labor day.

they are good, and the good stock sells fast. Roses have not been plentiful; in fact, some days they have been extremely scarce. The only rose that really can be depended on is Richmond. American Beauties arrive in satisfying quantities and are of fair quality; the prices range from $2 to $4 per dozen. Valley and violets have been in the market during the week, the former bringing $10 per hundred. Boston ferns are plentiful.

It seems that there was a smaller volume of business done during September than during the same month a year ago. More than 14,000 young men have left Buffalo, and in normal times these men surely must have been of great aid to the trade. The September cash sales were better than those of the same month a year ago, but the charge sales were less. For weddings and debutante affairs the people are not making large expenditures for flowers. No doubt the principal reason for this is that, in view of the raising of funds for war relief, the expenditure of money for flowers seems rather extravagant. Neither are there so many balls being given, and the indications are that there will be fewer yet. The middle classes, however, are earning higher wages, which accounts for the increased cash sales. Another thing, the people are not so prompt in paying bills. The florist will have to be more attentive to the small buyer, getting the cash as soon as the sale is made.

Various Notes.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club October 2, Prof. Dunbar, of the Rochester Botanical Garden, delivered a lengthy paper on shrubs. He particularly laid stress on barberries

The Stroh Quality Store is receiving shipments of Mock roses, with 30-inch stems and large flowers, from the greenhouses.

S. A. Anderson has put in a white tile window, and has had the store painted a parrot green, with the ceiling white. A batch of fine crotons has arrived at the Anderson greenhouses. They are bushy plants, in 7-inch pots. With the shipment were large bird's-nest ferns, pandanus and 4-inch palms.

The Street Men and Expressage.

Another week of splendid business, was the verdict of everyone with whom I came into contact. While there has been nothing big for any one florist, that steady normal business which everyone likes has begun, with the counter trade picking up well.

Saturday afternoon I made the round of the wholesale houses, and found everything well cleaned up, with the street men buying what was left. I have always been against the street man in the cut flower business, but since studying this question I have become convinced that they are a necessary evil. I do not believe they injure business as much as I once thought, for they dispose of most of their stock to those who would never think of buying flowers as a regular thing. One of the places where they ply their trade is the better class of restaurants; a bunch of roses often will be bought to take home as a peace offering by someone who has kept dinner waiting; or on the streets many a man will purchase flowers because they are cheap, with no regard to quality or freshness. The people will not complain if the flowers do not keep. The main point is that the street men break a certain class of people into the habit of using flowers. Another point is that the street men are of great help to the wholesale houses in cleaning up a lot of stock that otherwise would find its way to the garbage can. I have been giving this question a good bit of study, and it is only when stock is plentiful that the faker can successfully push his business. When prices are normal, the fakers will not buy and the wholesaler will not offer inducements.

The express trouble at this time is becoming acute. None of the companies will receive perishable shipments except at the owner's risk. At the S. S. Pen-nock Co. store I saw a large shipment of dahlias that had been turned over to the company to get what it could out of the flowers by the Wells Fargo Co., the consignee having refused to accept the flowers because they had been so long in transit. If it is possible, something should be done about this at once, for the way the matter stands at present the florist is taking chances. If this trouble gets worse, there is the automobile. This may be more expensive, but we will all remember the old proverb we were taught when children, "Necessity knows no law."

The Vincent Dahlia Show.

All through last week in the street cars or wherever a crowd of people met in Baltimore, the expression you were sure to hear was, "Are you going out to the Vincents' dahlia show?" It was much the same as we hear when the circus is in town.

lishment, the writer made a pilgrimage to White Marsh, as did many members of the trade. I am sure that everyone who is commercially interested in flowers was well rewarded for the trip, as the concern had staged an exhibition to be proud of. The florists could see, from the great crowds of people who journeyed the eighteen miles, that the interest of the public in flowers is not waning. Indeed, the lawns about this fine old place looked as though there was an automobile show in progress, rather than an exhibition of dahlias. There were about 2,500 people at the exhibition, and on the following day, October 4, which was Governor's day, the largest crowd was expected. The crowd had the run of the entire farm, and it was a sight to see more than 1,000 people, mostly women, walking through the great patches of dahlias in full bloom.

The exhibition was held in the large packing shed, and R. A. Vincent, under whose supervision it had been arranged, deserves much credit for the artistic way the dahlias were staged. Through the center of the building was a table on which were half barrels filled with some of the finest dahlias I have ever seen. The flowers were arranged with oak foliage, which harmonized nicely with the blooms. Along the sides of the room were set pieces, with large wreaths in the center of each piece, while at each end there was an American flag framed in flowers. Features of the exhibition which attracted much attention were two vases, one containing King of Autumn and the other Creation dahlias. Both were all that could be desired, the flowers being large with fine stems and foliage, and from all appearances good keepers.

Everyone in the trade owes a vote of thanks to this firm for the fine manner in which it keeps the florists' business before the public in Baltimore.

Various Notes.

has been with such people in Philadelphia as Pennock's and the Highland Rose Co. He is a good rose grower and comes to our city well recommended by those who have known him for a lifetime.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. is making a good display of supplies. This is a branch of the business that has never had a fair showing in this city. The florists have been depending on Philadelphia and New York for this stock, and the time is ripe for some good hustler to get in on the ground floor. The Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. has made the start, and we wish it success.

At the Leo Niessen Co. store Mr. McKissick said that he and some of the men had been on the job since 6 o'clock in the morning, and that they were still busy cleaning up odds and ends.

At the S. S. Pennock Co. store I heard that J. J. Perry was on a business trip to Frederick. The men reported business good for the week, and the iceboxes verified it. Indeed, every place where stock is sold at wholesale the same thing was to be heard, "If we had more first-class stock, there would be no trouble in disposing of it."

Lohr & Fritze are sending in some good Double White Killarney, Ophelia and Hadley roses.

James Hamilton's Hoosier Beauties and Radiance are especially fine for this early in the season. Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy, has fine Radiance, Red Radiance, Ophelia and White Killarney.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ONION sets continue in good demand at firm prices. Yellow sets are choice, but white sets show some smut.

THE declared exports of grass seeds from Buenos Aires, Argentina, increased from $83,193 in 1914 to $193,411 in 1915.

THE obituary notice of M. P. Hargrave, of Hargraves' Seed Store, Galveston, Tex., will be found in the obituary column of this issue of The Review.

If the war lasts another year or two America will be independent of Europe in such matters as cyclamen and pansy seeds, once largely matters of German origin.

A BRANCH office has been opened at Ames, Ia., by the Blair-Harper Seed Co., of Aurora, Ill. T. D. McClennahan, graduate of the Iowa State College, is in charge.

L. L. MAY & Co., St. Paul, speak of good business. Mr. May is convalescent and is expected back at his post in a few days. L. L. May, Jr., has charge of the store.

THE death of George H. Cummings, secretary of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., is reported in this week's obituary column. He was killed in an automobile accident.

REPORTS are that the advance guard of California seed growers shortly will pass through Chicago on their way east. Most reports show onion seed to be exceedingly scarce this year, Globe varieties in particular being short.

EMPLOYEES of seed houses throughout the country have for the greater part now returned from their vacations. Reports of good business with rapidly accelerating activity are unanimous and seedsmen in general are looking for an exceptionally good season.

IT IS not a question of the value of seeds, but of holding prices down. The tentative prices as established by the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League at its recent meeting in New York, look low when considered either with the prices of most other commodities or with the available supply.

H. A. JOHNS, president of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia., was a Chicago visitor October 5, on his way to Michigan. Mr. Johns reports that about two weeks more are needed on seed corn in Iowa to make it safe and in good shape. He also stated that there was considerable early damage to seed corn.

GROWTH OF NORTHRUP-KING.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., will take full possession of their new building about October 15, retaining the present building for retail purposes. George C. Thomson escorted me through this latest monument to seeds, the consummation of the thought of several master minds. The immensity of the undertaking dawned gradually on one while going through the group of buildings noting the various appliances for handling the large business established and yet increasing, "for," observed my guide, "there is no such thing as standing still and we expect to cover the whole eight acres with other buildings similar to these." Capacity for handling twenty-five cars at one time conveys some idea of the extent.

Great care has been paid to ventilation and it is so perfect that with the air purifier it is almost possible to winnow one's thoughts. "No," replied Mr. Thomson, "we do not intend to lock up our stock of Golden Self-blanching celery in that vault, although the supply of small seeds will certainly be shorter than for years and prices for next season will be the highest in the memory of the oldest seedsmen. My recent survey of the seed farms in the Sacramento valley, in California, where, by the way, 50,000 orientals are employed, convinced me of the fact I have just mentioned and it will be the man who does an ordinary retail business who will feel the pinch. Already feelers are out in all directions as to the situation, known only to those right on the ground."

Observing groups of automobiles standing nearby, I was informed that twenty-three machines, carrying as many travelers, leave at one time in as many directions, their routes covering the entire season. Receipts of onion sets are heavy and the quality is fine, especially of red. Yellow follows, but white is poor and will be scarce.

THE SECOND BOAT IS IN.

The second cargo of Holland bulbs arrived at an American port Sunday, October 7, on board the Schiedyk. The shipping papers for part, if not all the bulbs came with the merchandise and the stock is being passed through the customhouse without delay. The quantity in this cargo is not known with accuracy, but is presumed to be in the neighborhood of 20,000 cases. The Schiedyk is not so large a steamer as the Waaldyk, which brought 23,000 cases.

Apparently the bulbs on the Schiedyk will get into the hands of the trade sooner than those that came on the Waaldyk, although the latter docked at the American port almost two weeks earlier. The shipping papers for the stock on the Waaldyk were taken off at Halifax and have not yet been received by the importers. The law provides a way for releasing imports under bond in the absence of the papers, and this has been availed of by most of the consignees, but where the consignee is a forwarding agent and his own advices are missing he has no means of knowing to which of the numerous buyers these particular cases belong. The greater part of the Waal-dyk's cargo was so consigned in bulk to forwarding agents, to be split up by them and reconsigned to the purchasers. In the absence of their instructions, indefinite delay is probable.

BERMUDA ONION.

"The biggest crop of Canary Island onion seed ever grown finished its movement toward United States ports today," wrote Consul G. K. Stiles at Tenerife August 31, "when large final shipments brought the 1917 value of this export to America up to $137,289 ($131,882 for the United States and $5,407 for Porto Rico), as compared with $84,387 for 1916 and only $40,828 in 1915. While good results had been expected, even the most optimistic planters were surprised by the great quantities of high-grade seed produced and the large buying orders from the United States, which country has bought nearly all available seed, only small quantities remaining on the market.

"These conditions were foreseen in a report sent by the Tenerife consulate as far back as August 31, 1916, when it was forecast that 'the showing made by American purchases of onion seed (1916 crop) has had a most stimulating effect on the industry in these islands, and heavy planting may be expected for the 1917 crop.' These expectations were more than fulfilled in the actual results of the crop movement just ended. The majority of the growers are now figuring on even larger plantings, with the intention of surpassing in 1918 the record results obtained in the present year.

"A number of American seedsmen and onion growers having recently inquired as to the development of the Canary Island onion-seed business with American firms, the following statement of the value of the declared exports of seed from these islands to the United States is appended for their information: In 1909 the declared value totaled $57,170; in 1910, $36,509; in 1911, $30,753; in 1912, $74,686; in 1913, $84,345; in 1914, $43,293; in 1915, $40,828; in 1916, $84,387, and in 1917, $137,289."

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The heat of the last few days has developed stock rapidly and caused a decrease in the shipping business, with the result that stock has accumulated at the wholesale houses and prices have favored the buyer. This condition, however, is sure to be only temporary, as a cool spell would shorten stock and harden it for shipping; so by the time these lines are read the condition probably will be different. The biggest loss is in mums and violets, for it is difficult to ship the mums, and the violets will be impossible until the middle of the month. The hot spell so late in the season was totally unlooked-for and will materially shorten the shipping season, which has been unusually good so far.

Roses are arriving in fairly good shape, and there are a few outdoor blooms useful for store decoration. Baby roses are plentiful and the Beauties from the young stock are improving daily. Carnations from outdoors are plentiful and good, but the greenhouse stock is still short. Orchids are more plentiful, but valley remains scarce. Cosmos makes a nice display, and there is a fair quantity of such small flowers as cornflowers, marigolds, marguerites and other daisies. All greens are plentiful. There are no pot plants, except ferns.

Various Notes.

J. Dieterich is on a business trip to San Francisco this week.

Oscar Schneider, for about fourteen years on the staff of O. C. Saake, has joined S. Purdie in his new business on Fourth street. It will be recalled that Mr. Purdie and Mr. Schneider worked together for Mr. Saake for a long time, and that recently Mr. Purdie bought the Freeman & Lewis business. This business in the future will be known as S. Purdie & Co.

Dr. J. P. Parker, of Santa Cruz, the well known orchid grower, has been in the city on a visit. He says that the northern market takes practically his entire cut, and that his labiatas are extremely late this year, or he would be cutting more heavily.

Albert Weedall, of Bakersfield, paid us a visit last week. In addition to his nursery and florists' business, Mr. Weedall and his son are going into the automobile repair business.

Fred W. Tredup, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has been calling on the trade this week.

The Golden State Floral & Bulb Co., of Riverside, has been lifting gladiolus bulbs. The stock is in first-class condition. E. Stonebrook, manager for the company, reports a bigger demand than ever before for the stock and has sold out many varieties. Last season the company grew nearly three acres of bulbs, but Mr. Stonebrook is looking for additional land this year. The whole of the crop of cut flowers was contracted for by S. Murata & Co.

Armstrong's Nurseries, at Ontario, report an extraordinary demand for fall, especially in first-class fruit trees, for which this firm is famous.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held at 237 Franklin street, October 3, with President Taylor in the chair. The attendance was not large, but many of the more prominent men in the business were present. James McGillivray read his paper on annuals, which had been held over from the previous meeting. It was well received and brought out a rising vote of thanks. H. R. Richards was down for a talk on bulbs, but, having regard to the nature of the audience, which consisted almost entirely of members of the trade, the speaker suggested a discussion of the bulb situation. This was done, and some interesting points came up. W. W. Felgate was the bearer of an invitation from the Pasadena Horticultural Society to visit the Pasadena show, and it was decided to go in a body the first evening of the show, October 25.

Frank Raymond is now with J. Roleri, at the California Cut Flower Co. store. Business is improving there.

S. Murata & Co. report a good shipping business. Outside of hose, the demand for which naturally falls off at this season, the business in all classes of nursery supplies has been good.

J. Dieterich is known locally as the lucky man of Wall street. Oil wells on his property at Montebello, big business in the nursery and other details of this kind, prove the assertion. But when the battalion chief of the fire department runs into the auto which Mr. Dieterich is driving and Mr. Dieterich comes out of it without a scratch, this proves that his star is lucky. It might easily have been a fatal accident.

The L. A. Floral Co. is receiving fine seedling carnations from one of its growers. The blooms are not from named varieties, but they are of exquisite color, have stiff stems and last well over the long-distance route. Paul Miller, formerly of this firm, writes that he is getting on well at the cantonment at American Lake.

Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has been under the weather for several days, but at last report he was improving rapidly. Mr. Wright was at his ranch at Bakersfield and was taken ill on the way home. Driving his car alone, he arrived in a bad way with a temperature of 102 degrees. Pneumonia set in and it was touch and go for a few days.

Frank Lichtenberg made a big hit with an orchid window this week. At a time when cattleyas are selling as high as they are now, it needs courage to do it, but it pays. Bert Bateman left this week for his vacation.

John Fincken, of West Washington street, says that landscape work is opening up well and that funeral and other work in the cut flower department is far above the average for this time of year. Though suffering from severe cold, Mr. Fincken says he has to stick to business.
H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.The Market.

Chrysanthemums continue to dominate the local cut flower market and promise to hold first place for some time to come. The supply is increasing from day to day, and the quality improving. The blooms are large and well formed and the stems all that can be desired. The demand is well up to expectations; in fact, growers, wholesalers and retailers are well satisfied with the season's returns to date. Most of the early varieties are about gone, but they are being replaced by some of the later varieties, which show wider assortment in colorings and are larger for the most part; the early offerings are not missed. The situation in whites is much improved with the arrival of Queen. The first bright rose mum to appear, Columbia, is meeting with instant popularity. The only colors lacking now are good bronzes and golds, but they will be in soon.

Little improvement can be reported in the rose situation. There are practically no American Beauties to be had, and other offerings are much under standard. There is little hope of betterment until the rains start, which probably will be about the first of November. The violets need some rain also, before they come to their best. Dahlias are drawing near the end of their season and zinnias are nearly gone. Few asters are to be seen. Carnations are scarce and poor. Liberal arrivals of cut cyclamens clean up rapidly. For the first time in weeks orchids are sufficiently plentiful to meet requirements fairly well, as evidenced by their appearance in the window displays of the downtown stores, after being out of sight for a long time.

Various Notes.

The October meeting of the Pacific

Coast Horticultural Society will be followed by a smoker. The program includes a stereopticon lecture by Prof. E. O. Essig, on "Common Insects and Their Remedies."

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., was in San Francisco last week on a flying visit.

MacRorie & McLaren have five houses of cyclamens, from which they are filling large orders. The plants are the finest ever grown by the firm, according to Daniel MacRorie. Mr. MacRorie has just returned from a trip to Los Angeles and other southern points. He reports a strong demand for heathers, the firm having placed an order for 15,000 of the one variety, Erica melanthera.

Robert Bernadeau, formerly with MacRorie & McLaren, has accepted a position with Podesta & Baldocchi.

Henry O'Day is a new employee at the Powell street store of MacRorie & McLaren. He was formerly with Charles Stappenbeck.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, has returned from an extended eastern trip, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. McLaren.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., came to town to attend the dahlia show at the St. Francis hotel, and then went to his country place near Los Gatos, Cal.

Nicholas J. Canevaro, with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has resumed his duties after a month's vacation in the high Sierras of Trinity county, where he enjoyed himself thoroughly hunting, fishing, etc. His return closes the vacation season at this establishment, with the exception of that of Frank Pelicano, who has only been taking two or three days off at a time.

Charles Shellgrain, manager of the J. B. Boland establishment on Kearny street, reports business seasonably good. He has been busy this week with table decorations.

The C. Kooyman Co. has improved the appearance of its wholesale establishment on Bush street, by the installation of new fixtures for showing bulbs, and

SECOND FRISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

The dahlia show held at the St. Francis hotel, San Francisco, by the Dahlia Society of California, was a fitting successor to the one staged at the Palace hotel earlier in the month. The display was arranged in the famous Italian and Colonial rooms of the hotel, which adjoin each other. They made an ideal setting for the comprehensive exhibit of dahlias. Practically the same exhibitors participated in both shows, and while the last one probably was not quite so well attended, the results were satisfactory. The unusually hot weather which prevailed during the three days of the show was held responsible for any lack of interest. The heat made it hard on the exhibitors, also, as they were forced to give their exhibits constant attention to keep them in first-class condition. They succeeded admirably, however. More than 2,000 varieties of dahlias were shown, and more than 105,000 blooms. The new California creations, of which there were many, attracted principal attention.

A number of live butterflies at the exhibit of C. S. Quick made that display a center of attraction. In another part of the show was a fine bloom of Campanille, a novelty originated by Mr. Quick and grown by R. V. Killilea, which was awarded first prize for the best bloom in the show. It is a handsome, large red and gold dahlia with a fine stem.

Frank Pelicano again was awarded first prize for the most meritorious display. Besides, he took three first prizes on his special dahlia, Dr. Tevis, for a basket of twenty-five blooms, a vase of six blooms and a single bloom.

Richard Lohrman had a notable display, in which his Pride of California attracted much attention. He was awarded first prize for the best 1917 seedling, on a dark salmon dahlia.

F. C. Burns' contest for a name for his new red dahlia, which won prizes last year and the year before, was the feature of his exhibit. Hundreds of names were suggested.

Mrs. Jessie L. Seal, who carried away a number of first prizes, had one of the largest and finest exhibits in the show. One of the most notable features was

Coast Horticultural Society will be followed by a smoker. The program includes a stereopticon lecture by Prof. E. O. Essig, on "Common Insects and Their Remedies."

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., was in San Francisco last week on a flying visit.

MacRorie & McLaren have five houses of cyclamens, from which they are filling large orders. The plants are the finest ever grown by the firm, according to Daniel MacRorie. Mr. MacRorie has just returned from a trip to Los Angeles and other southern points. He reports a strong demand for heathers, the firm having placed an order for 15,000 of the one variety, Erica melanthera.

Robert Bernadeau, formerly with MacRorie & McLaren, has accepted a position with Podesta & Baldocchi.

Henry O'Day is a new employee at the Powell street store of MacRorie & McLaren. He was formerly with Charles Stappenbeck.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, has returned from an extended eastern trip, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. McLaren.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., came to town to attend the dahlia show at the St. Francis hotel, and then went to his country place near Los Gatos, Cal.

Nicholas J. Canevaro, with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has resumed his duties after a month's vacation in the high Sierras of Trinity county, where he enjoyed himself thoroughly hunting, fishing, etc. His return closes the vacation season at this establishment, with the exception of that of Frank Pelicano, who has only been taking two or three days off at a time.

Charles Shellgrain, manager of the J. B. Boland establishment on Kearny street, reports business seasonably good. He has been busy this week with table decorations.

The C. Kooyman Co. has improved the appearance of its wholesale establishment on Bush street, by the installation of new fixtures for showing bulbs, and

SECOND FRISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

The dahlia show held at the St. Francis hotel, San Francisco, by the Dahlia Society of California, was a fitting successor to the one staged at the Palace hotel earlier in the month. The display was arranged in the famous Italian and Colonial rooms of the hotel, which adjoin each other. They made an ideal setting for the comprehensive exhibit of dahlias. Practically the same exhibitors participated in both shows, and while the last one probably was not quite so well attended, the results were satisfactory. The unusually hot weather which prevailed during the three days of the show was held responsible for any lack of interest. The heat made it hard on the exhibitors, also, as they were forced to give their exhibits constant attention to keep them in first-class condition. They succeeded admirably, however. More than 2,000 varieties of dahlias were shown, and more than 105,000 blooms. The new California creations, of which there were many, attracted principal attention.

A number of live butterflies at the exhibit of C. S. Quick made that display a center of attraction. In another part of the show was a fine bloom of Campanille, a novelty originated by Mr. Quick and grown by R. V. Killilea, which was awarded first prize for the best bloom in the show. It is a handsome, large red and gold dahlia with a fine stem.

Frank Pelicano again was awarded first prize for the most meritorious display. Besides, he took three first prizes on his special dahlia, Dr. Tevis, for a basket of twenty-five blooms, a vase of six blooms and a single bloom.

Richard Lohrman had a notable display, in which his Pride of California attracted much attention. He was awarded first prize for the best 1917 seedling, on a dark salmon dahlia.

F. C. Burns' contest for a name for his new red dahlia, which won prizes last year and the year before, was the feature of his exhibit. Hundreds of names were suggested.

Mrs. Jessie L. Seal, who carried away a number of first prizes, had one of the largest and finest exhibits in the show. One of the most notable features was now on the wane, as also are marigolds and bachelor's buttons. Carnations are to be had, but the quality is poor. Of lilies, rubrums are plentiful, but the quality is not up to standard. Auratums are scarce, with a fair demand. Callas are arriving sparingly. Gypsophilas are off the market. This necessitates the use of extra greens, of which there is not an overabundance. A few early cyclamens and ferns, with some begonias and other foliage plants, have put in an appearance. They receive an active demand. Roses are arriving from local greenhouses in insufficient quantities, with promise of a good cut later in the season, when prices for choice stock will be better.

Various Notes.

James Simpson, of the Acme Floral Co., is coaxing along some fine roses and poinsettias for the winter trade.

The Tacoma Wholesale Floral Co., formerly the Van Slyke & Seamons Co., will be ready to cut the first of the mums next week. A fine house of carnations is coming on. B. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The bright fall weather, with continuous sunshine, has brought carnations, roses and chrysanthemums into bloom and there is an oversupply in the market, while the growers are doing their best to hold the stock back, fearing a shortage later in the season. So far there has been no frost, and garden flowers are still abundant. The presence of dahlias and chrysanthemums gives the stores an appearance of fall. Violets are coming in and find a ready sale. Zinnias, asters, and gladioli are about out of the market. Cosmos are plentiful, and with the hardy asters make up the supply of outdoor stock. In pot plants a few cyclamens have come in, and celosias are appearing. The Minnie Burtle dahlia is much in favor among the retailers, it being about the only good dahlia in the market with a strong stem. Pampas grass is being displayed in the stores and sells well.

Various Notes.

The 8,000 employees of the shipyards have been out on strike, and there seems no prospect of their returning to work at once. This already has had a depressing effect on business among the florists in the residence sections, but so far has not affected the downtown stores.

Clarke Bros.' range, on the Mt. Scott line, occupies about eleven acres of ground, on which there are twenty-two houses with about 75,000 square feet of glass. The firm grows carnations, chrysanthemums, ferns, palms, orchids, poinsettias, gardenias, begonias, cyclamens and other pot plants. Under lath houses there is a fine collection of potted hydrangeas, azaleas and ericas. Other stock outside consists of bedding plants, perennials, roses and ornamentals. The first planting of Paper Whites and Romans was well rooted and soon can be forced. A. J. Clarke spends considerable time at the range, now that Albert Pierce, the foreman, is away on a vacation. This firm also has a range of glass at Hillsboro, where all the roses are grown.

NURSERY NEWS.AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.;
 Vice-president, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie,
 Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith,
 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W.
 Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

AFTER a legal battle lasting three days in the district court, F. H. Stannard & Co., the Ottawa, Kan., nurserymen, were awarded damages of $245 against Crosby Bros., of Topeka, for an alleged breach of contract in a sale of 7,000 peony roots in 1914.

NEW ASSOCIATION FOR SOUTH.

If a plan suggested at last month's Waco meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association is adopted, a body to be known as the Southwestern Nurserymen's Association will be organized. The movement contemplates including the states of Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Louisiana in the proposed association. A committee was named for Texas to meet with committees from the other states to draft a constitution and by-laws and to decide the date and place for bringing the new organization into existence. This committee is composed of J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie; W. B. Munson, of Denison, and W. C. Griffing, of Port Arthur.

The balloting for new officers at the closing session resulted in the choice of the following: President, W. C. Griffing; vice-president, J. M. Ramsey, Austin; secretary-treasurer, John S. Kerr, Sherman, reelected.

The question of raising a publicity fund was discussed at length, some advocating the appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose. It was decided to use the code of the American Association of Nurserymen for the standardization of plant names.

CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION.

The seventh annual meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen is being held this week at San Jose, the site of the University of California. The program this year is unusually complete, and for that reason the papers of the many committee chairmen are limited to ten minutes. The chairmen of the committees are: Legislation, George C. Roeding, Fresno; insects and diseases, George H. Hecke, Sacramento; transportation, J. D. Meriwether, Fresno; deciduous fruits, Max J. Crow, Gilroy; citrus and tropical fruits, D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; viticulture, Frank T. Swett, Martinez; gardens, Fred H.

EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES.

In the spring of 1916 I set out a few hundred plants of Superb and Progressive everbearing strawberries, which have done well for the two years. Would these plants do well for another year or should they be dug out and replaced by new ones? What is the right way to plant and treat these varieties for best results?
 C. W. P.—Can.

I think you will find Superb to be a superior variety of strawberry to Progressive; at least, I have found it to be so. I always pick off the first crop of flowers from Superb. This causes the plants to throw up a new crop of flower stalks and to fruit freely when the ordinary strawberries have passed. The new runners will fruit the same season, as well as the old crowns, and fruiting will continue until frost destroys the flowers. In mild seasons I have picked fruit as late as Thanksgiving, but I always get a good crop in August and September.

The everbearing strawberries are not quite so robust in habit as Marshall, Sample, Dunlap, Gandy and the larger-fruited sorts and for that reason can be planted more closely. You can plant in the spring or late summer. I prefer to plant as soon as runners can be had early in August and to keep the plants in single hills the first season, removing all runners made. I set the plants twelve inches apart in the rows, with eighteen inches between the rows, leaving a 30-inch path between each two rows. All runners are removed the first season and the plants are kept constantly cultivated as long as they grow. A winter mulch is given after the ground freezes, usually early in December. This is not removed until early in May. If it is removed earlier, the plants start to grow too quickly and late frosts are liable to kill the flowers. Of course this will not matter if you prefer to pick off your first flowers. The second season the plants can be allowed to make runners

DWARF TYPE OF BERBERIS THUNBERGII

New Edge and Dwarf Hedge Plant

ORIGINATED at our Nursery sixteen years ago among a batch of Japan Barberry seedlings. It attracted attention in the seedling bed and has been under careful watching since. The original plant is now about two and one-half feet wide, and globe-like in shape, its natural form.

It is pronounced a most valuable find by all who have seen either the original plant or the stock we have propagated from it, including experienced nurserymen, landscape architects and gardeners, experiment station men and amateurs.

The public will take to it immediately. It's just what is wanted. As a formal-garden edge plant it is ideal—this means thousands of it for many a single order. Equally desirable as a low and medium hedge plant, assuring a heavy demand. Trims into perfect formal specimens.

Propagates readily from either hard or soft wood cuttings. Will not come true from seed.

OFFERED TO THE TRADE FALL, 1917—NO RESTRICTIONS

Offered to the general public and will and will be freely advertised in Fall, 1918, and Spring, 1919. Get up a stock and be ready for the certain heavy demand.

Prices to the Trade, November delivery—strong 2-year field plants, no growth removed:

market it would be well to set the rows a yard apart, to permit horse cultivation, allowing the plants to make runners. You should remove any flowers carried by the plants which are spring planted.

Strawberries of any kind are not good for more than two seasons. It is best to make a new bed each year. With hand culture and late summer planting you can get quicker and better returns than from spring planting, but if the plants are grown on a large scale I would run the rows three to four feet apart, to permit horse culture. Strawberries succeed best on land which has been liberally manured. They do specially well on land vacated by early peas and beans. C. W.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O.—A clearly printed 12-page catalogue of bulbs, hardy plants and shrubs. The stock of herbaceous plants is varied and comprehensive. The principal shrubs listed are berberis, cornus, Rosa rugosa, spiræas, snowberries and weigelas.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—Illustrated fall catalogue of roses, vines, hardy perennials, shrubs, ornamental trees and fruit-bearing stock; twenty-four pages. "We try," says the company, "to do the most of what we can do the best and that is why we have always made rose growing our leading specialty." Offered conspicuously, as "of special interest to florists," are some pot-grown hydrangeas and other stock for forcing.

Wagner Park Nursery Co., Sidney, O.—Three persuasive appeals for trade. One of them is a general catalogue of bulbs, hardy plants, shrubs and other ornamental nursery stock; this book consists of twenty-four good-sized pages, illustrated, and bound in a colored cover. Another list contains bulbous stock only. The third appeal is of unique and artistic design and is entitled "Wagner Landscape Service." Enclosed with these three catalogues is a 2-page circular offering plant tubs, garden furniture and "evergreens for winter decoration."

Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Cal.—"California-grown Holland Bulbs," an illustrated 32-page catalogue, with cultural directions and with some arguments to demonstrate the superiority of bulbs grown on the Pacific coast. "We are the largest growers of Holland bulbs in America," says the company. Besides the bulbous stock, the catalogue offers peony roots and sweet pea seeds.

The John Henry Co., Lansing, Mich.—"A Catalogue of Florists' Cards and Envelopes, Special Cards for Every Occasion, Florists' Printing of All Kinds, Embossing Machines." This is an exceptionally attractive catalogue, finely illustrated in colors, and contains many suggestions and designs for florists' cards, labels, tags and other printed forms.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.—A well-illustrated catalogue of florists' supplies, such as ribbons, chiffons, baskets, Christmas specialties, artificial flowers, insecticides, etc.; twenty-eight extra large pages, in a strong and tasteful cover. Patrons are warned that prices are subject to change without notice. A probable scarcity of Christmas decorative materials is indicated and early ordering is suggested. With reference to the prices of wirework, this statement is made: "Due to the fluctuations of the market on the raw and manufactured wire, we prefer to quote you on your needs."

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

The Helmer Floral Co., Toledo, O., had a fine window of fall flowers. Miss Helmer was showing some cultivated wild asters, which were greatly admired.

Miss Helen F. Patton is remodeling her store at Toledo, preparatory for the fall season.

The Posy Shop, Fremont, O., had a display of hand-painted novelties in the window. It consisted of flower pots, boxes and vases.

T. J. Enright, Fostoria, O., is building another greenhouse, which will be devoted to roses.

George M. Palmer & Son, Findlay, O., are putting in a new boiler, which they expect will conserve their coal supply.

Hardesty & Co., of Columbus, were awarded nineteen honors at the Ohio state fair in August. Paul Hardesty is preparing to leave, having accepted a position as traveling salesman for an eastern concern. The best wishes of the trade are extended to him. W. T. U.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

W. Onishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., which handles the output of a large number of Japanese chrysanthemum growers, is well satisfied with the demand. During the hot weather he notes that the retailers buy just what they must have early in the morning, and then fill in as the day advances, which makes a closer clean-up of the day's supplies than the surplus after the usual morning buying hours would indicate.

Francis Schlotzhauer, proprietor of the Francis Floral Co., reports many military wedding decorations, which, in addition to a brisk general business, keep his staff busy. He is meeting with good success with the Lotus, which he treats in old rose, mulberry, burnt orange, Chinese red and various other tints.

Fred Bertrand, manager of Joseph's, has no complaint to make about business, the demand for chrysanthemums being particularly gratifying.

At the Art Floral Co. store, funeral work, table arrangements, wedding decorations and brisk counter trade brought last week's sales up to a comparatively high figure.

L. L. Morse, president and manager of C. C. Morse & Co., who makes his home in San Jose, Cal., paid a visit to his firm's San Francisco headquarters this week.

S. H. G.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business has been improving and good stock is coming in. Chrysanthemums are arriving in considerable quantities and are of good quality. Golden Glow and Chrysolora are excellent and move rapidly at good prices. The only complaint has been that there were too few of them to supply the heavy demand. Roses are excellent, but have not been in supply large enough for the demand. New carnations are coming along nicely, and are filling the gap since asters disappeared. There is still some outdoor stock, such as dahlias, zinnias, marigolds and cosmos.

Various Notes.

T. J. Ludwig reports that business has been good during the last two weeks.

The Munk Floral Co. had a clean-up on everything October 6.

The Columbus Floral Co. has given up its retail store and is selling the stock from its greenhouses at wholesale. The company is cutting some good chrysanthemums.

E. Randall has taken a position on a private place at Indianapolis, Ind.

Emil Metzmaier reports excellent business.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting chrysanthemums.

S. F. Stephens & Son sold their supply of Golden Glow chrysanthemums rapidly.

James McKellar has been handling quantities of chrysanthemums. Mrs. Julia Stubenrauch McGannon, who was at Livingston's several years ago, is now with Mr. McKellar.

Albert Knopf, of Los Angeles, Cal., was a visitor last week. He was formerly head of the Franklin Park Floral Co.

The Market.

There has been little change in market conditions during the last week. The weather has been cool, with rain nearly every day. A frost put an end to good outdoor stock, and this made the shortage of other flowers somewhat more acute.

Of course, asters are a thing of the past as to quantity, and gladioli are about out of the market. Carnations, while arriving more satisfactorily, are far below the normal cut, and the demand, for the next two weeks at least, will have to remain unsatisfied. Roses are not plentiful by any means, and, while the quality is fine, there are a number of orders that must be turned down.

Orchids are more plentiful, and as the quality is fine they move nicely. Chrysanthemums are selling well, but the supply as yet is small and regular shipments are not to be expected. The first violets of the season reached the market about a week ago and were disposed of with no difficulty. They look well for this time of the year and undoubtedly will cut quite a figure in the sales later on.

Business in general has not seemed to have the usual fall push to it, although the demand has been more than enough to keep the market cleaned up.

Various Notes.

William C. Zimmermann showed his interest in the World Series by going to Chicago to see the first game between the White Sox and the Giants.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Zender, of Rogers Park, Ill., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Holton last week. Mr. Zender has been taking the mud baths at Waukesha for the last few weeks and was on his way home at the time of his visit.

F. H. Holton was appointed chairman of a committee to solicit subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan from florists and seedsmen in the county. Mr. Holton is enthusiastic and it is hoped that the time and effort he is spending so freely

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Stock has been more plentiful during the last week than for some time, with good lilies, gladioli and chrysanthemums playing leading parts. Roses are received in larger quantities, and the first violets are here. Fine dahlias are being shipped in and command fair prices. Retailers are doing about the usual volume of business.

The wholesale trade has been active, but has been hampered by the uncertainty of expressage. It is hard to get shipments started, and when once on the way delays of from twenty-four to forty-eight hours seem to be the rule. Nearly all of the express companies have put embargoes on the return of empties.

The coal situation does not improve, and at the present prices dealers do not like to contract for their season's supply. There is considerable anxiety even about present needs. The quality of the coal available is inferior, much of it being slack. The $2 coal we have been hearing about must still be in the mines; it is not on the market, at any rate.

Various Notes.

The Blind Floral Co. has sold its retail business to Edward McGrath and Harry Langhans, who will give the establishment the new name of Empire Flower Shop. As Messrs. McGrath and Langhans have been conducting the business for several years, and have made many friends, the success of their venture is assured. The Blind Floral Co. retains the greenhouses and will grow some flowers for cutting, but most of the space will be devoted to plants for the wholesale trade.

At the meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' Club October 2 there was a handsome display of dahlias. The S. A. F. publicity plan was discussed, but as most of the members present were gardeners there was not the interest shown that is expected of the florists. Pittsburgh doubtless will be in line for this campaign, however. Clarke.

From the Production Standpoint

We have grown many good roses that were good producers, but Mrs. Henry Winnett stands out as the greatest of them all. Four big benches full of this new rose coming on in grand shape show up as the best we have ever seen in the rose line. Compare it with Hadley or Hoosier Beauty and satisfy yourself.

It comes away quickly. It carries more and better crops. It comes into flower more quickly. It is the best red rose that has ever been offered. Investigate it and watch it. It is the rose that you should grow. We believe in Mrs. Henry Winnett and we know you will. Get acquainted.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

General business conditions were excellent last week, the demand being larger than during any previous week this season. Wedding and funeral orders were numerous, and there was a good call for decorations for social affairs and homes. Flowers for the sick room were in good demand.

The supply has been equal to requirements. The receipts of chrysanthemums are increasing, and besides the yellow and white varieties there are some good double pink mums. Pompons are selling extremely well, especially for table decorations. Roses have been in heavy demand, and many are cut closely in order to fill all orders. The miniature roses are taking well this season. The frosts have done away with practically all outdoor flowers, marigolds, zinnias and dahlias being about the only ones left. Carnations are improving in quality, though they still are short-stemmed and are used chiefly for funeral work. They are not so plentiful as they might be. A large number of chrysanthemums are being shipped in from California because of the lateness of the home-grown stock. Pompons are included in these shipments, and the quality is fine. American Beauties are of good quality. Lilies are meeting with a fine call; the florists are glad to have them to fall back on. Orchids and valley continue scarce. Violets are arriving, but there are not enough to be reckoned with as yet. The supply of greens is normal for the season of the year.

Various Notes.

Frank J. Knecht has returned from a week's visit to Detroit, where he attended the F. T. D. meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., have returned from a several days' trip to Toledo, O., Detroit, Mich., and Cleveland, O. The Flick Floral Co. has been rushed with decorations and funeral work.

Edgar Wenninghoff has been displaying some excellent October Frost and Smith's Advance mums. Business has been good, with funeral work in the lead.

The regular meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held October 10, at the greenhouses of F. J. Knecht & Co. R. F.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

CAN HEAT 25,000 FEET GLASS.

How many square feet of glass can be heated to 50 degrees by a horizontal tubular boiler 4x12 feet, with forty-one 3-inch tubes? Also, what should be the grate area of the boiler?

C. O. G.—Mo.

The boiler described would be rated at about forty horsepower, and it is customary to consider each horsepower capable of handling seventy-five to a hundred square feet of radiation. To maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather, there should be one square foot of radiation to eight square feet of glass. On this basis a 40-horsepower boiler should heat 25,000 square feet of glass to 50 degrees, provided, of course, the houses are well built and have an average exposure to high winds. While twelve square feet of grate might be satisfactory, it will be better to have sixteen square feet of grate area for the highest economy in labor and fuel.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Meeting of National Show Committee.

On arrival in St. Louis after a 6-hour delay due to a railroad wreck, the members of the National Flower Show committee were entertained at luncheon at Hotel Jefferson by the officials of the city, including the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary of the convention bureau, secretary of the bureau of public safety, the park commissioner, representatives of the daily press and others prominent in the different business interests.

The committee met and held meetings September 29 and 30 and October 1.

Those present were: George Asmus, chairman; John Young, secretary; J. J. Hess, treasurer; Patrick Welch, Charles H. Totty, Thomas Roland, A. Farenwald and R. C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F. Jules Bourdet, president of the St. Louis Florists' Club, was in attendance at all the sessions. Many of the representatives of the florists' interests in St. Louis attended these meetings, among them being J. F. Ammann, F. H. Meinhardt and J. J. Beneke. Philip Foley, of Chicago, was present in an advisory capacity in regard to the auxiliary buildings, which are to be erected adjoining Moolah Temple.

Planning the Show.

Arrangements are now practically completed for the Fifth National Flower Show, and it may confidently be expected that it will be a success in every way. Jules Bourdet brought up the question of retail florists' exhibits, and suggested that it would be necessary to make some concessions to the florists in order that their coöperation in the trade exhibition be assured. The committee considered this question care-

The Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler

WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER, a quick steamer, and holds the steam; the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

New Haven, Ind., Oct. 13, 1916.

The two No. 46 KROESCHELL WATER TUBE STEAM BOILERS which you furnished for our new plant surely are giving us satisfactory service.

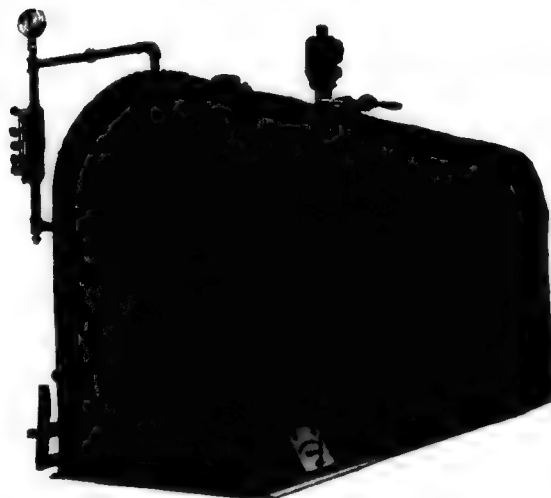

These boilers are internally fired, and ECONOMICAL fuel burners, being very fast steamers.

With baffle arrangement such as you have, it consumes all the heat cast from the combustion chamber instead of letting it out of stack.

WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 KROESCHELL WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever.

It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers.

If I should need another boiler, I would not think of buying any other kind.

program were submitted for the consideration of the committee.

Secretary Young was authorized to proceed with the sale of space, and the work in connection with the advertising in the official souvenir program, on the same basis that prevailed at the Fourth National Flower Show.

Upon the recommendation of the local publicity committee, Miss Anita Moore was appointed publicity manager for the exhibition. Several meetings with the lady officials of the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross Society were held, but definite arrangements with them as to any coöperation with the exhibition were not at the time possible.

The Local Committees.

Gentlemen: Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants. Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

and it was recommended that the local executive committee hold meetings every two weeks from this date. J. J. Beneke was appointed secretary of the local executive committee.

A resolution was introduced and unanimously passed thanking Frederick R. Newbold for the assistance he was giving the committee, and for the great interest he was taking in advancing the popularity of flowers in this country. The secretary was instructed to write Prof. E. A. White, secretary of the American Rose Society, suggesting that he notify all rose growers as to the proper time to "pinch," so that their exhibition blooms would be on time for the show.

Sunday, September 30, there was a general meeting of representatives of florists' interests in St. Louis, held in connection with the meeting of the National Flower Show committee at the Planters' hotel, at which time the chairmen of the different committees were notified of their appointments, and the work of the show was outlined.

Several conferences were held with the representatives of the Automobile Association of St. Louis, in regard to their coöperation in subletting the auxiliary buildings previous to our dates.

Prior to the meeting in St. Louis, the committee held a full-day session in Cleveland, looking over the building which had been used there for exposition purposes, with a view to the possibility of securing the same for use in St. Louis.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Abraham L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., offers for registration the following:

Primula malacoides Townsendii; originated with James Duthie, of Oyster Bay, N. Y. Compact growth; prolific bloomer; individual flowers as large as a 25-cent piece; color, bright lilac pink.

Christmas Joy pepper (capsicum), a cross between the Christmas and Bird's-eye varieties; height, 12 inches; fruit, cone-shaped, one-half inch long, well above the foliage; color, very bright red; plant very prolific.

Richard F. Gloede, Evanston, Ill., offers for registration the following:

Delphinium hybrid, America, single-flowering; individual flowers two and one-half to three inches. Color, top and two lower petals true blue; two side petals mauve pink, shaded toward center with a true blue; very prominent white center. Strong grower, four to five feet; foliage of extra color and texture.

Delphinium hybrid, Prof. James T. Hatfield, double-flowering; individual flowers two inches. Color, unusual combination, consisting of a beautiful blue, petals being streaked with pink mauve tipped with green; full white center, with extended prominent brown petaloids streaked with lavender and blue. Strong grower, four to five feet.

Valuable Aid in Transplanting

Following is an extract from a letter from Hull Brothers, of Waymart, Pa.:

Delphinium hybrid, Randolph Culver Gloede, double-flowering; individual flowers two to two and one-half inches. Color, first layer of petals a deep azure blue overlaid with a second tier, which is of a delicate heliotrope pink; prominent white center. Five to six feet.

Delphinium hybrid, Miss Gertrude Lane Moggie, double-flowering; individual flowers two to two and one-half inches. Color, beautiful sky blue interwoven with heliotrope pink; dark tan center; prominent white eye with white and lavender petaloids. Four to five feet.

Delphinium hybrid, Richard F. Gloede, single-flowering; individual flowers two to two and one-half inches. Color, a beautiful dark sky blue mingled with a light proportion of dainty lavender; very prominent, loosely formed petaloids, which have a combination of pink, brown and yellow, spreading themselves over the entire flower as it expands. Four to five feet.

Delphinium hybrid, Mrs. Cody Hoops, semi-double-flowering; individual flowers two to two and one-half inches. Color, true blue overlaid with lilac lavender; brown eye; petaloids lavender with cream edges. Four to five feet.

Delphinium hybrid, Little Bob, single-flowering, of medium size; the flowers, however, are produced almost from the bottom of the plant. Color, a most pleasing blue with a very prominent eye of a dainty lavender and white; three extended white petaloids containing a dark golden spot. Very finely cut foliage of dark texture.

Delphinium hybrid, Charles Speed, semi-double-flowering; individual flowers two to two and one-half inches. Color, a dainty blue; second layer of petals inflamed with lavender; gray eye, with prominent petaloid with a combination of color, or white, lavender, brown and gold. Four to five feet.

The R. S. Bradley Greenhouses, at Prides Crossing, Mass., William Canning, Supt.

IN what the office boy called "our old green covered catalogue," printed over twenty years ago is the picture of a greenhouse erected for Peter B. Bradley, at Hingham, Mass.

"R. S." is a brother to "Peter B."

They are the Bradleys of the Bradley Fertilizer Company, and the American Agricultural Chemical Company.

In a recent letter from our Boston manager, he writes that:

"On the site now occupied by Mr. Bradley's greenhouses, at Prides Crossing, was a range of four or five heavy, wooden, old-fashioned side hill houses. All of these houses, except the old grapery, were taken down at the time we built the first big house. Then it was Mr. Bradley's intention to leave the old grapery standing, but it looked so badly alongside of the new house that almost before it was finished, he gave us an order for tearing it down and the erecting of a new one over the old vines. This was done without harming the vines in any way, although one or two of them had to be removed to make room for the passage connection. The vines have kept right on bearing, however, as profusely as they did in the old house."

The point we had particularly in mind was that twenty years ago one brother buys Hitchings houses. Twenty years after, the other does likewise. Also that our new house made that old grapery look so badly; Mr. Bradley couldn't stand the contrast.

Evidently Hitchings were building satisfactory houses twenty years ago. Evidently twenty years later they are still building satisfactory houses.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business has not been especially good during the last week, but all stock has been cleared. The colder weather is having a beneficial influence on stock. Outdoor flowers, except those in sheltered spots, are nearing an end.

There has been trouble in the matter of express shipments to and from the city. The troop movements have monopolized the railways, and stock has arrived from twenty-four to thirty-six hours late. Fortunately, the cool weather is a salvation, as it helps to keep the stock in a salable condition.

The demand for roses is increasing, and extra good stock is in the market, but few blooms of the longer grades are seen. White roses are exceptionally scarce, while the demand appears to be heavy. Sunburst, Shawyer, Russell and Ophelia are in splendid condition and sell well. American Beauties are good, but there is no great demand for them. Good single and double violets are here and sell well at 50 cents per hundred. Carnations are moderately scarce and apparently it is too early for them as yet.

Chrysanthemums are becoming better as the season advances. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are the principal varieties at present, but Chrysolora is in large bud and will arrive in a few days. Dahlias have been good and have sold well. Harrisii lilies are plentiful, while gladioli are about over for the season. Calendulas, larkspurs, scabiosas, sweet alyssum, stocks and miniature daisies have sold well. The market is well stocked with all kinds of greens, except asparagus.

Various Notes.

Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., last week had an interesting display of Japanese vases in his window. "Artware" is one of the leaders of this concern, and good business is done.

The annual picnic of the employees of James Vick's Sons was held at the summer home of Will H. Dildine, at Elmgrove, October 4. The trees were decorated with lanterns and tables were arranged on the lawn. A fine dinner was served to about seventy-five people.

Three of the Rochester florists who came under the draft are now serving their country. The three, who are in training at Spartanburg, S. C., are Harry Guernot, Max Pawliczek and Lester Brown. Dewey Lester, formerly with the Rochester Floral Co., writes from the south that he expects orders at any time to proceed to France.

George T. Boucher and members of his store force made an automobile trip to Buffalo recently, visiting several of the stores in that city and later having dinner at the Statler hotel. Oliver Boucher is expecting to leave in a few days for a trip to Montreal, Quebec and Toronto, Can.

N. A. Hallauer, of Ontario, N. Y., is shipping in some exceptionally fine dahlias, which find a ready sale.

George Cramer has received a letter of appreciation from the committee of the Rochester exposition organization, in which he is thanked for his untiring efforts in the decorations done during exposition week.

The Market.

The colder weather has been like a tonic to business, and the demand has been greater than the supply. American Beauties arrive in quantities insufficient for the demand. Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia and other roses also are in short supply. Few chrysanthemums have arrived. Gladioli and asters are about done, although they still are to be had. Violets have made their appearance and sell readily. Valley and orchids move slowly. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Bowling.

The newly formed teams of the Detroit Florists' Bowling Club met October 4 for the first contests, with the following results:

Various Notes.

The F. T. D. convention kept the committees of the Detroit Florists' Club busy during the two days. After the convention had adjourned, club members and some of the visitors were entertained on an automobile ride, which ended at the Fetters store on Woodward avenue, where dinner was served and a program of entertainment given. Messrs. Grady and Schoemacher pleased the party with their singing.

The opening of the National Bank of Commerce brought sales of many baskets of American Beauty roses and chrysanthemums. H. T.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Heavy frosts at the end of last week killed nearly all outdoor stock, and as a result the market has tightened and everything is selling as fast as it arrives. Prices are better than they were.

Roses are in good supply and find a lively market. Carnations arrive regularly and sell well. Easter and rubrum lilies are in fine supply. Chrysanthemums, though in stronger supply than at the last writing, still are far from plentiful. Another week, however, should see many of them. A few dahlias and cosmos are to be had. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

P. J. Olinger is spending October 8 and 9 at his greenhouses at Newcastle, Ind.

E. G. Gillett goes to Springfield, O., for three days this week to attend a conclave there and to look after some business affairs.

The William Murphy Co. has been getting in some excellent home-grown chrysanthemums. They have sold well.

C. E. Critchell has returned from his trip to Detroit. Mr. Critchell has been disposing of many excellent early chrysanthemums. C. H. H.

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

We now are in the grip of that acute scarcity of stock which annually precedes the arrival of chrysanthemums. During the week ending October 6, an air of bustle was everywhere apparent, and practically all stocks cleaned up early in the day.

The beginning of the present week brings no signs of relief. Dahlias are scarce and the threatened frosts bid fair to finish them any night. Roses are as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth. A few chrysanthemums have put in an appearance, but not in sufficient numbers to make their mention worth while. Carnations are improving in size and length of stem. They arrive regularly now and are quickly sold, but there is a general complaint occasioned by their slowness in cropping this fall. Easter lilies also are in low supply, with demand strong. Greens are plentiful, boxwood, leucothoe and string smilax being offered in addition to the usual supply.

Various Notes.

Thieves broke into the Knoble Bros. garage, which is in the rear of the store, during the night of October 5, and helped themselves to the extra tires attached to several automobiles.

Silvius & Silvius report a successful opening of their new store at Ashtabula, O. They gave roses as souvenirs and so great was the crowd at times that the traffic police were compelled to clear the sidewalk in front of the store.

The Wyckoff Floral Co., of Chagrin Falls, O., reports that the frost of October 8 killed its fine crop of dahlias. The dahlias were late this year, and fully three-fourths of the best flowers perished.

The various committees will meet this week and next for the purpose of completing arrangements for the staging of the big November flower show.

Cleveland was favored last week by visits from many florists who had attended the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit. Among them were John V. Phillips, Brooklyn, N. Y.; G. E. M. Stumpp, New York; W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; V. J. Gorly, St. Louis; Albert Knopf, Los Angeles, Cal.; J. J. Karins, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; S. Green and Paul Berkowitz; of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

C. W. Reep has opened a flower stand in the People's market, Elyria, O., and to facilitate getting in flowers from his greenhouses at North Olmsted, O., he has added a new auto truck to his rolling stock.

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, DELAWARE, O.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 thoroughbred varieties of show and fancy Pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. I have received thousands of testimonials from florists and amateurs, similar to the following samples from leading and well-known florists. "Your Pansies could not be beat for color or size and long stems. I grow for cut flowers only (Boston market) and consider your strain way ahead of anything I have tried or seen"—Perry Green, Quincy, Mass. "Pansies arrived in good condition, in fact they are the best plants we have ever bought."—Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind. "The pansy plants arrived in best possible condition and were strong and sturdy, well-rooted. I have bought from you for the past 8 years and have never seen such a variety of color as yours."—C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo. "The Pansy plants received from you last Fall were entirely satisfactory in every particular. We shall probably want 5,000 to 10,000 in the near future."—Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C. "I was well pleased with the 6000 Pansies I got from you last Fall. I want 12,000 this Fall. Please let me know the price."—Hugo Koopman, Davenport, Ia. "Your Pansy Park Perfection Pansy plants had immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 next Fall of the same Giant strain?"—F. B. Peckham, Norwich, Conn. I have made a specialty of growing Pansy seeds and plants for nearly 50 years and have the largest stock of hardy, stocky, field-grown plants in America for the wholesale trade. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it, and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Strong plants from July sown seed, $4.50 per 1000, 500 $2.50; 250 $1.50. Medium size from August sown seed, $3.50 per 1000, 500 $2.00. Cash with order.

The Market.

Seldom at the beginning of the fall season has there been so brisk a trade as has marked the opening this year, and the trade is looking for an exceptionally good winter total.

The week closed with the growers in a somewhat relieved state of mind. The announcements during the week of the arrival of Dutch bulbs at New York and the promises of an easement in the prices of coal, afforded the greenhouse men much consolation. Roses are in good supply and of good quality; carnations show daily improvement and violets are arriving in larger quantities.

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, Etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912.

Of The Florists' Review, published weekly, at Chicago, Ill., for October 1, 1917.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss.
COUNTY OF COOK, }

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Walter S. Miller, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Secretary of the Florists' Publishing Co., publisher of Florists' Review, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

NAME OF— POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.
Publisher, The Florists' Publishing Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Editor, H. B. Howard, 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Managing Editor, H. B. Howard, 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Business Manager, Chas. L. West, 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.)

Northern Trust Co., Trustee, Chicago, Ill., and Chas. L. West, Trustee, 310 No. Ada St., Chicago, Ill., for the heirs of the G. L. Grant Estate, as follows:

Mrs. May L. Grant, Soquel, Calif.
Miss Helene Grant, Soquel, Calif.
Edward Grant, Soquel, Calif.

Estate of Christina F. Scott, Robt. A. Scott and David J. Scott, Executors, Main and Balcom Sts., Buffalo, N. Y.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders, owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

There are no bonds, mortgages or other securities outstanding against The Florists' Publishing Co.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

WALTER S. MILLER, Sec'y.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 29th day of September, 1917.

WILLIAM A. BARNES, Notary Public.

[SEAL.]

(My commission expires November 29, 1917.)

Taken all in all, the local situation is most promising.

Various Notes.

The M. B. Saunders Co. has removed from 25 Burnette street to 638 Public street.

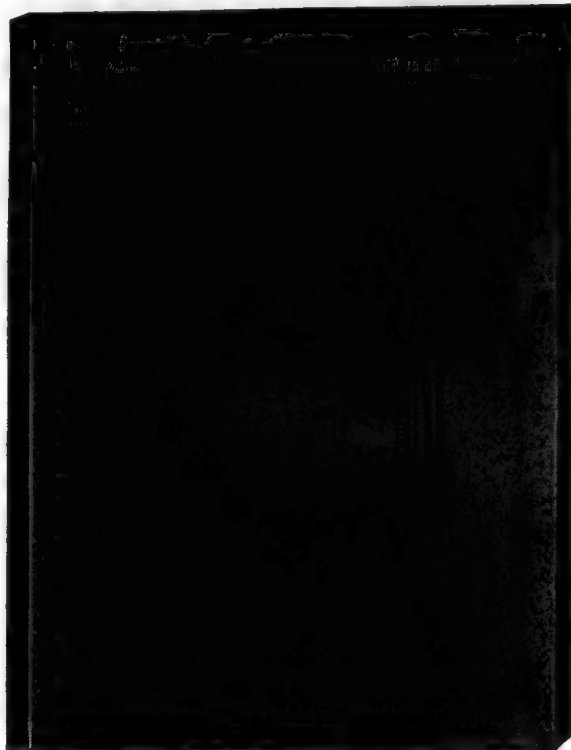

William H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich, last week took several prizes at the Banbury fair with asters and dahlias. He had more than 5,000 blooms of each on exhibition.

Joseph Solomon has opened his enlarged flower department at S. S. Kresge's store, Westminster street, for the season.

William Crompton, of East Greenwich, has been confined to his home by a severe cold.

Eugene McCarron has been making extensive repairs and renovations at his houses on Hope street.

Samuel Resnick, with J. E. Koppelman, was in Boston last week on business.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Yes," observed William Scott, of the William Scott Co., of Cold Springs, N. Y., who is known to his host of friends as "Willie," "it will make considerable difference to us if we do not receive any bulbs from Holland. Our order with one house alone usually amounts to more than $2,000. Caring for the bulbous stock kept many employed during the winter, and, as we always succeeded in having the bulbs in bloom when prices were the best, it is a good source of revenue to us. There are many others who, doubtless, are in the same boat. We are much interested in the venture of C. W. Ward, for if the culture of the bulbs in California is a success, we see no reason why, when every item of expense incurred in shipments from Europe is taken into consideration, the cost to the grower should not average about the same, and, more over, the bulbs be more satisfactory to handle. The question of azaleas will possibly be also met, though it will be difficult to fill their loss completely this year, as, you see, we have a fine lot of plants, which were blind last year. They were carried over in the houses and now are heavily set with buds. We are working up a good stock of French hydrangeas, believing that they will take; also a lot of scarlet geraniums for the holidays, with the usual number of poinsettias. Our cemetery trade has been fully up to that of our best season. Tastes vary, and a greater assortment is grown than when father first made this a specialty with us. The same applies to bouquets for cemetery use. Doubtless this custom can be made just as popular elsewhere as it is here." A fine lot of chrysanthemums were noted and the opinion is that the demand will be fully as good as ever. The store is having a new front put in—large bulk window, raised floor and white tiling. "Brother David, at Corfu," continued Mr. Scott, "mentioned, when I paid him a visit a few days ago, that Comet tomatoes in two of the largest houses had been one of the best-paying crops ever grown, the fruit bringing as high as $1.60 per basket. By rotating with sweet peas, an all-year crop is secured; the peas do as well as the tomatoes. Mignonette is fine, and there is a good sale for the seed. Mignonette was the sweetest flower in the place until the advent of a baby girl, a sister to the two husky, prospective florists."

Dole's Flower Shop, at Lockport, presents an attractive appearance. As it is centrally located, it catches much transient trade.

Forber & Bird, of Davenport, Ia., do extensive local advertising and reap a good harvest of results. W. M.

CYPRESS SHINGLES BEST

If you would have the whole Greenhouse job standard—uniform throughout—you must put cypress shingles on the boiler room. And for the barn and other buildings about the place, nothing else will do the business and continue to do it, year after year, like cypress shingles.

REMEMBER that every endurance record in the history of shingles was made by cypress shingles.

Read from the report of the U. S. Gov't., in Bulletin No. 95, Forest Service, Department of Agriculture:

A shingle roof on a house at Greenwich, Conn., was said to have lasted 250 years; another in Brooklyn, N. Y., was reported to have lasted 223 years, and still another at Clifton, Staten Island, was still doing business after 200 years of continuous service. Cypress shingle roofs at New Orleans, La., that are 100 years old are no curiosity—plenty of them.

There is no discount on a Cypress shingle roof.

MAGNOLIA FACTS

Q Yes, Mr. Florist, be particular as to what kind of Magnolia Leaves you buy now, under the present conditions.

Q Dye colors have advanced from 1000% to 2000%; preparing chemicals have exactly doubled in prices since the war began, as have also the paper cartons. In spite of this, we are in position to furnish you with first-class Magnolia Leaves through your wholesaler at a small advance in comparison with the above.

Q We guarantee that the quality of our leaves is as good now as they were before the war, and that they are prepared fully, regardless of the above-stated high prices of the materials.

Q You fool yourself if you buy the cheaper grade of leaves, as they will become mildewed and they will dry out shortly after the boxes are opened. Our goods are sold by every leading wholesale florist in the United States and Canada, and they have stood the test for the past six years.

Q A magnolia leaf is only worth using if it has been fully preserved, but NOT by a cheap process, which enables others to sell the leaves cheaper by a few cents. You pay these few cents about ten or fifteen times over, when you consider the poor value of these goods.

A Money Making Proposition for Progressive Florists

Showing one style of Evergreen Window Box Planting

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG.
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of Boxwoods and other imported plant material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the class of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Push Evergreens now and the coming months. Talk Evergreen Boxes and Hardy Tubbed Evergreens to the people who have had summer decorations. Both are as easy to sell as Summer stocks and give complete satisfaction. Try out this line now and see for yourself. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no efforts to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements, but the demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders should be placed now for immediate or late delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

Four typical examples of perfect healing

Showing how Nature unfailingly responds to the scientific methods of Davey Tree Surgeons NATURE responds to the Tree Surgeon's art by healing over the filling—if the work has been properly done. The rapidity of the healing depends on the size of the cavity and the vitality of the tree. Illustrated here are four typical examples of perfect healing following Davey Tree Surgery. They are merely representative of the many thousands of successful cases handled by the Davey organization in the past generation.

Photograph No. 1 shows a tree at the Christian Herald Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y. This tree had a splitting and badly decayed crotch, requiring a filling from the top of the crotch almost down to the ground. Note how the bark has completely healed over the filling in about four years.

Photograph No. 2 was taken on the estate of John D. Archbold, Tarrytown, N. Y., and shows a tree with a filling in the side of the trunk. Almost healed over in about six years.

Photograph No. 3 illustrates a tree on the estate of the late Julius French, Wickliffe, Ohio. Filling at the base of the trunk with about five years' healing.

Photograph No. 4—A tree at Kent, Ohio, treated by the students of the Davey Institute, class of 1913. Showing about two years' healing; countersunk boltheads completely healed over. Filling in the crotch and on one limb partly healed over.

To be perfect, Tree Surgery must embody the three following principles: All decay must be removed and further decay prevented. The cavity must be so prepared that the filling will remain permanently in place. All foreign matter must be excluded, especially water. It is difficult to say which is most important. They are inter-dependent. If the operator fails in one he fails entirely. These principles embody both science and mechanics. A Tree Surgeon must be trained in mind and in hand. He must have both knowledge and skill. A man who has only theoretical knowledge fails miserably. An unscientific operator works without understanding.

ALL SAINTS' IS SOUTH'S BIG DAY

All Saints' day in and near New Orleans is to the southern florist what Memorial day is in the north. Everyone carries flowers to the cemeteries, which means good business for the retailers. Mums have the call and are grown in quantities now by the florists near the Crescent City.

FLORISTS in and about New Orleans now are as busy as their northern brothers in the trade are about the middle of May. This is because November 1 is All Saints' day, which in the south, or rather in that section of the south that is peopled by the descendants of the early French settlers, calls for the extensive use of flowers that Memorial day does in the north. It is the day for the annual pilgrimage to the cemetery, where decorations elaborate and simple, costly and inexpensive, are placed at each grave.

All Saints' day is a day of feasting, following a night of prayer for the saints and martyrs recognized by the Roman Catholic church. This night of prayer and the feast day following are observed in practically every country by the Catholic church, but the decoration of graves on All Saints' day is peculiar to New Orleans.

Originated in France.

The custom is the outcome of a practice in France of leaving a calling card at the tombs of the dead. This is called La Fete des Morts. However the practice of grave decoration began, it has made All Saints' day the largest in the year for the New Orleans florists, and has done much to promote the growing of chrysanthemums in the south, as it furnishes a demand for these flowers at a time when they are near the height of their season. Not only are the flower stores rushed with orders for this day, but on All Saints' day itself the curbs of the streets adjacent to the cemeteries are lined with flower stands, which do a rushing business.

Some idea of what All Saints' day means to the florists of the Crescent City can be gathered from the accompanying illustrations, made at midnight previous to All Saints' day in the retail store of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans. The picture of the interior of the store shows part of the staff busy getting orders ready for early morning delivery. The window already had given up a part of its stock for the orders, and no attempt had been made at arrangement.

Mum Most Popular Flower.

There is little business done by the florists on the day itself, practically all the worth-while sales having been made in advance. However, there are some calls for flowers at the stores, and the curb retailers sell many small and cheaper bouquets to the visitors to the cemeteries.

Chrysanthemums are used more freely than any other flower; carnations are second in demand, and Easter lilies third. Roses are too costly for the general public, but sell well to the wealthy. There is not much call for designs, the trade being like that in the north on Memorial day.

It was not until a few years ago that southern growers produced any considerable portion of the stock to supply the demand at New Orleans on All Saints' day. Before that time New Orleans florists depended on the Chicago market for their supply. Two or three days before November 1, a carload of flowers, and sometimes more, was shipped by express for the observance of this day.

In recent years, however, growers in and near New Orleans have been able to supply much of the demand of the local retailers. Large quantities of flowers still are shipped from Chicago, but a majority of the mums in a good growing year are from local establishments. The supply of chrysanthemums comes from outdoors, where the flowers are grown under the protection of cloth coverings. Sometimes the crop is ruined by storms on the eve of All Saints' day, but in 1916 one grower produced 10,000 Mrs. Henry Robinson chrysanthemums, which he sold on All Saints' day at retail for prices ranging from $2 to $6 per dozen.

Cities of Tombs.

It is an interesting sight to visit the New Orleans cemeteries on All Saints' day. There are few cemeteries in the world more unique than those at New Orleans. The city itself is below sea level, protected from the Mississippi river by dikes, while small lakes, called bayous, are numerous. Because of its level it is impossible to bury the dead beneath the ground, excavations of only a few feet quickly filling with water, which seeps through the soil composed of sand and silt thrown up in centuries past by the overflowing river. Consequently the dead are placed either in single tombs or in mausoleums, the latter made for the accommodation of several bodies.

These structures of stone, marble and granite predominating, are ranged along narrow ways, which might be called the streets of these cities of the dead. On many of the tombs are projecting shelves, giving places for the flowers.

It is to these cemeteries that the relatives of the dead make their annual pilgrimage and remember the departed ones with flowers. However, the visitors make of the occasion a holiday. Masses have been said in the churches for the repose of the souls of the dead, but there is nothing somber about the day's observance; the only religious touch is provided by sisters of charity, who stand at the gates of the cemeteries ready to receive gifts of money for charity and the hospitals.

Through this custom of taking flowers to the cemeteries, All Saints' day in New Orleans has lost much of its significance, just as Memorial day has become a holiday. The tombs being decorated, the visitors to the cemetery spend much of the day there, walking through the narrow streets, admiring the floral decorations, meeting and chatting with friends.

Petersons in the War.

William A. Peterson, the Chicago nurseryman, has given two sons to the war. The elder, Harold, aged 24, is a secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and is attached to the British army in India. His headquarters are at Lucknow, but his duties carry him over a large part of Asia. When last heard from he cabled from Shanghai, "Leaving Calcutta," and the cable censor at San Francisco held up the message until the Chicago nurseryman satisfied the censor's curiosity as to the identity of Peterson of Shanghai.

Norman Peterson, aged 20, is in the Red Cross service, attached to a hospital company now stationed at Chillicothe, O. After the war Norman hopes to return to take up active work in the nursery business, but Harold will continue in Y. M. C. A. or missionary work.

More Bostonians Go to War.

There is a good representation of the trade in the large quota of fighting men which the Hub City is contributing to the army and navy. In addition to those who previously were announced as having joined the ranks, is Thomas Iliffe, son of Daniel Iliffe, the Boston greenhouse builder, who is learning how to fly at Camp Kelly, Tex. Charles A. Stellberger and Norman W. Hunter, members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, are also in khaki. Mr. Stellberger is at the camp at Ayer, Mass., and Mr. Hunter is seeing training with the Pennsylvania engineers at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. Melvin Grey, of the Hitchings & Co. Boston

ANSWERING THE CALL.

Florists Are Patriotic.

The government continues to call the young and physically sound men of the country to the various army training camps, where civilians are turned into soldiers. Men from all walks of life are responding, among them being many members of the florists' trade. The Review has printed the names of many of these patriotic young men; it will continue to print the names of others. News of those who have left their businesses to become fighting men, or of those who intend to go, will be welcomed.

Santa Barbara Florist Enlists.

The feeling that he must do his part to help his country in the war was greater in Arthur Gleave, Santa Barbara, Cal., than his devotion to business. Although over the draft age, Mr. Gleave has enlisted in the army. During his absence the store at Santa Barbara will be in charge of Miss Trussell, who has been connected with it ever since Mr. Gleave started in business.

Writes of Camp Life.

In the issue for September 27, The Review published the fact that Edwin M. Nelson, formerly a member of the staff of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., had left September 21 for Camp Taylor, near Louisville, Ky. October 8 Mr. Nelson wrote The Review regarding life at the camp. His letter follows:

"I arrived at camp and found that it is not so hard on a fellow who has spent his summers under glass, for he

J. R. Cowgill Seeks Commission.

J. R. Cowgill, who, with his brother, V. G. Cowgill, has flower stores at Canton and Salem, O., went to the second officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, eight weeks ago, and is confident that when his training is over near the end of November he will be given a commission. Mr. Cowgill had been a member of the Eighth O. N. G. regiment, being discharged at the end of his enlistment period with the rank of corporal, so that the training camp was no new experience to him.

Besides the two named, there is a third, younger and unmarried brother in the family. The latter tried to enlist in the army, but was refused through physical incapacity. It was then that J. R. Cowgill felt that it was the duty of one member of the family to go, and he enlisted at the officers' camp, although he is over draft age, is married and has one child, a son.

Mr. Cowgill has been in the florists' business since 1907, when he became associated with V. G. Cowgill in the retail and wholesale establishment at Lima, O. In 1910 he purchased the Canton store of L. L. Lamborn, of Alliance, O., and has been in the business since. The brothers have 30,000 feet of glass in addition to the two retail establishments. Another brother, Carl, who during the last four years was associated with the Lamborn Floral Co., at Alliance, is now with his brother.

Mr. Cowgill is a member of the S. A. F. and F. T. D. He also is an Elk, being the Past Exalted Ruler of the Can-

The government continues to call the young and physically sound men of the country to the various army training camps, where civilians are turned into soldiers. Men from all walks of life are responding, among them being many members of the florists' trade. The Review has printed the names of many of these patriotic young men; it will continue to print the names of others. News of those who have left their businesses to become fighting men, or of those who intend to go, will be welcomed.

Santa Barbara Florist Enlists.

The feeling that he must do his part to help his country in the war was greater in Arthur Gleave, Santa Barbara, Cal., than his devotion to business. Although over the draft age, Mr. Gleave has enlisted in the army. During his absence the store at Santa Barbara will be in charge of Miss Trussell, who has been connected with it ever since Mr. Gleave started in business.

Writes of Camp Life.

In the issue for September 27, The Review published the fact that Edwin M. Nelson, formerly a member of the staff of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., had left September 21 for Camp Taylor, near Louisville, Ky. October 8 Mr. Nelson wrote The Review regarding life at the camp. His letter follows:

"I arrived at camp and found that it is not so hard on a fellow who has spent his summers under glass, for he

J. R. Cowgill Seeks Commission.

J. R. Cowgill, who, with his brother, V. G. Cowgill, has flower stores at Canton and Salem, O., went to the second officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, eight weeks ago, and is confident that when his training is over near the end of November he will be given a commission. Mr. Cowgill had been a member of the Eighth O. N. G. regiment, being discharged at the end of his enlistment period with the rank of corporal, so that the training camp was no new experience to him.

Besides the two named, there is a third, younger and unmarried brother in the family. The latter tried to enlist in the army, but was refused through physical incapacity. It was then that J. R. Cowgill felt that it was the duty of one member of the family to go, and he enlisted at the officers' camp, although he is over draft age, is married and has one child, a son.

Mr. Cowgill has been in the florists' business since 1907, when he became associated with V. G. Cowgill in the retail and wholesale establishment at Lima, O. In 1910 he purchased the Canton store of L. L. Lamborn, of Alliance, O., and has been in the business since. The brothers have 30,000 feet of glass in addition to the two retail establishments. Another brother, Carl, who during the last four years was associated with the Lamborn Floral Co., at Alliance, is now with his brother.

Mr. Cowgill is a member of the S. A. F. and F. T. D. He also is an Elk, being the Past Exalted Ruler of the Can
